PREFACE

Emily Jane Angell Ordway provided a warm and hospitable home for her family and her death left a void difficult to fill. In time, this legacy passed to her youngest granddaughter, Gladys Ordway Murphy, who opened her house and her heart, keeping the extended family together during the difficult Depression years. To "Aunt Gladys" as she is affectionately known to many, the last surviving granddaughter of Emily Jane Angell, this work is fondly dedicated.

In the three years it has taken to bring this book to press, many helpful hands have turned the pages of its early drafts. We want to thank the reviewers, Robert Charles Anderson, F.A.S.G., George Freeman Sanborn Jr., Ann Smith Lainhart, Jerome E. Anderson, Helen Ullmann, C.G., Robert H. Rogers, and especially Jane Fletcher Fiske, F.A.S.G., who made style and content notes.

Many contributions of time and knowledge were donated by friends and colleagues, especially Douglas Richardson, who shared research on the Johnson and Heath families before it appeared in print; Walter Beaupre and Steven Gifford who share an interest in the Youngs of Rhode Island; Steven Grimes, Judicial Archivist for Rhode Island for help in accessing the old court records; Elizabeth Crowley for special assistance with Smithfield, Rhode Island, records at the Central Falls City Clerk's office; Mark Jones, Connecticut State Archivist for granting special access to archival material; and Peter Drummey of the Massachusetts Historical Society for special access to the Winthrop Medical Journal originals. Several Angell family members who were living on the old homestead were very helpful, including the late Ruth Johnson, the late Edith Harrison, Joel Harrison who loaned us several old photographs of the early houses, Jeanne Weinstein, Jolyon Johnson, and particularly Doddridge Johnson who took us up the hill in Wendell where the old Angell homestead once stood.

Among those who contributed their special expertise were Roberta J. Smith who added the Whipple and Smith ancestry in the Angell chapter; the late Ruth Ann Sherman, F.A.S.G., co-editor of The American Genealogist, who, with David Greene, F.A.S.G., worked in preparing the Angell article that appeared in TAG; Robert Charles Anderson listened patiently to several dry runs on the Wolterton problem and searched Norfolk Administrations with good results, as well as provided insight into the Barnes family, and did independent work on the Johnson and Heath families; Ruth May reviewed the Inman chapter; Robert Charles Anderson, George Freeman Sanborn Jr. and particularly Jerome E. Anderson provided detailed assistance in reading the old English wills; State Archivist Frank Mevers gave special help at the New Hampshire State Archives; and Edward Hanson of the Massachusetts Historical Society shared his research on the Quarles family, including Joanna Quarles, wife of Richard[2] Smith.

The following persons conducted research at our request: John McCabe of Stoneyford, Antrim, Ireland, did work on the Cochrans and Hoggs; Dwight Radford of Salt Lake City shared work done on the Cargills, Hoggs and Greggs of Londonderry; Weldra Welch of Salt Lake City did English will transcriptions; William Arbuckle of Salt Lake City photocopied many English wills; Gordon Remington of Salt Lake City did in-depth work on the family of Jonathan and Grace (Strickland) Beckwith and prepared an article for The National Genealogical Society Quarterly, as well as worked on the family of Solomon Angell which was extensively connected to that of Brigham Young; Jane Fletcher Fiske did early work on the Young family as part of the N.E.H.G.S. auction of professional research; P. Ll. Gwynn-Jones, Lancaster Herald, worked on the Angells of Peakirk at the College of Arms, London; Mrs. Ella Bubb did work at the Society of Genealogists in London on all the English families; Neil MacDonald of Designline in Westboro, MA, did the excellent drawings, maps and sizing of photographs; George Redmonds gave opinions on the name Amphillis and the Beckwiths.

We acknowledge Archivist for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Albert Whitaker for permission to publish several items from the Massachusetts Archives series.

Gary Boyd Roberts presented the project for approval to the New England Historic Genealogical Society Publications Committee.

Special thanks go to Roberta J. Smith for her patient assistance in proofing the index for this book.

REFERENCES

An effort was made here to abbreviate references in an understandable manner, so that the experienced reader would quickly grasp the meaning, and the new reader could figure it out. In several cases, when a published work was used only once, its citation was presented in full in the text. Deeds and probate were referenced by the name of the county followed by either the file number, or the volume and page. In some cases, especially with inventories, both the file paper original and the copybook were used in an attempt to acquire a complete record and many differences were noted between the two "originals." Unfortunately, in a few cases both versions were partially illegible. Only totals were used for inventory items, even if they were individually appraised.

It was beyond the scope of this work to trace the paternal lines of spouses of direct ancestors' siblings. However, where these lines were seen in generally reliable secondary sources, they are inserted here, with this disclaimer. In a large number of cases, children or spouses cannot be cleanly proven to modern standards of proof, especially where vital records are lacking. Proof in such cases could constitute a book in itself and were not attempted.

All microfilm numbers refer to films at the Family History Library in Salt Lake City. Newspapers used in this book were the Argus & Spectator, Boston Transcript, Charlestown Observer, New London Gazette News-Letter, Providence Gazette, Providence Phoenix, and Providence Sunday Journal.

THE MYSTERY OF THOMAS ANGELL'S ENGLISH ORIGIN

Despite years of effort by researchers in Rhode Island, Salt Lake City and London, the parentage and origin of Thomas Angell of Providence remain unknown.

Simple chronology has shown that Thomas Angell could not descend from the Angells of Peakirk, Northamptonshire, in the manner often suggested (TAG 66[1991]:129-132). Still, it has been tempting to think that Thomas Angell could belong to some branch of the Peakirk Angells since a daughter of that family married one of Roger Williams' Pemberton uncles. The process of elimination now shows that Thomas Angell of Rhode Island cannot be part of that family.

The surname Angell is seen in many parts of England at the onset of recording of vital records by the churches in the 1530s. A large concentration of Angells is found in the Northamptonshire and Lincolnshire areas, suggesting that the surname established a very early foothold there. Doubtless there were many independent appearances throughout the country due to the generic nature of the name, which, in a majority of cases, refered to either the heavenly angels or to an angle of land.

While eliminating all males born into the prominent Peakirk Angells, considerable detail on this distinguished family was gathered. Even though this is not the family of Thomas Angell of Providence, Rhode Island, the following outline of Angells unrelated to the American immigrant may simplify the work of future researchers who wish to unravel the true origins of Thomas Angell.

The Angells of Peakirk and London

A coat of arms appearing in the Visitation of London 1633, 1634, and 1635 credited to William Angell of London was researched by P. Ll. Gwynn-Jones, Lancaster Herald of The College of Arms. The arms were authentic and material on the family included the following as reported by the Lancaster Herald:

> Although Angell entries are to be found in the official records of the College of Arms, these have been collated and combined with other material in unofficial collections, particularly that of Sir Ralph Bigland.

I have found reference to a family paper which states that "Thomas Angell of Peakirke, Co. Northton, Gent, lived in the 22 year of Qu. Eliz. anno 1580, son of Robert Angell who was son of Captain Roger Angell [sic], one of King Hen. VII captains who very probably was a Switzer by birth and came with him into England and my reasons for the same are as follows - I having upon occasion met with one Mr Peter Angell, a Protestant Switzer who told me he was born at a town called Lygerts which lies in one of the Chiefest Cantons called Bearne and that there were many of the Name of Angell both in the Town of Zurick and in the County of Towrga [i.e., Thurgau] who were great Traders in making and selling Linen and more particularly that there was one John Leonard Angell, a very wealthy man living in Bearne, a magistrate of the same Town, whereupon I enquiring what was the Coat of Arms belonging to that family in Switzerland, he told me it was a Pegasus or flying horse which is the Crest of the Angell's Arms in England whose Coat is three fusils or spindles azure in a field or."

As you are aware, a grant of Arms was made 1 May 1614 to William Angell of London, the son of Thomas Angell, the son of Robert Angell of Pekirk/Peakirke. These same Armorial Bearings may be blazoned as:- Gold three fusils in fess azure over all a baston gules; and for the Crest:- Out of a coronet gold a demi Pegasus volant argent maned and unguled gold.

The above account of the family in the 16th century conflicts with a pedigree found in the Bigland Collection. This pedigree refers to Robert Angell of Peakirke in the County of Northampton, described as a Captain during the reign of King Henry VII and the son of Thomas Angell of Peakirke with whom this pedigree begins. Robert Angell was buried at Peakirke 22 August 1568 and is stated to to [sic] have had three sons, namely Henry Angell of Downham in the County of Norfolk, Thomas Angell of Peakirke who was buried there 25 December 1581 and William Angell of Deeping in the County of Lincoln.

Of the above named sons, only particulars of the descendants of Thomas Angell are given. By his first un-named wife, Thomas Angell had an only son, namely John Angell who died an infant. By his second wife, Anne Harvye, Thomas Angell had six sons.

The first son was John Angell of Peakirke who is stated to have been "disinherited by his father for dissolution and debauchery according to family tradition." ...P. Ll. Gwynn-Jones, 22 May 1991

The following outline of the Angell family of Peakirk is based on the information reported by Mr. Gwynn-Jones found in the Bigland Collection, and on research done in probate material, visitations, Boyd's Citizens of London and parish registers on microfilm at the Family History Library in Salt Lake City.

Not unexpectedly, items of information were found to be in conflict between the various sources, and only the information judged to be more reliable is presented here. Of these, it is significant to note that based on the first Robert Angell's will, there is no evidence of a son Henry Angell or a son William Angell, though these are stated in the Bigland abstract above. Robert Angell does mention a William Angell, son of Henry Angell, but this is most likely nephew William Angell, son of brother Henry Angell, as the custom of the time would dictate. Likewise, a will for one William Angell of Market Deeping in 1547 shows a man with a wife of childbearing years and a large family of Angell relatives, some of whom are undoubtedly the children of Robert[1] of Peakirk. Speculation based on this will and the 1565 will of John Angell might assign Robert, William, Henry, John, and George Angell to a family headed by yet an older Robert Angell.

The suggestion that the first Robert Angell was the son of a Roger Angell, a Switzer, is difficult to support, despite the common Pegasus and fusils on the coats of arms. The name Roger is never seen in this Angell family, and no Roger is found in the early Peakirk records. It would be easier to imagine that several generations in the early 1500s have been compressed in the recorded charts and that our Robert[1] was the son of an earlier Robert who was an officer under Henry VII.

In the absence of further information, we present a rough outline of the Angell family of Peakirk below.

1. Captain ROBERT[1] ANGELL, born say 1490s or earlier; died Peakirk, Northamptonshire between 20 June 1566 when he wrote his will and 6 February 1566/7 when his will was proved in Peterborough Court; married at least once, but widowed at the time he wrote his will.

He calls himself husbandman in his will, but is repeatedly called "captain" in authorities such as Boyd's Citizens of London (#32818), and Heraldical Collections (British Museum, Harleian mss #1046, p.189), which credit him with service during the reign of Henry VII. Since this would be between 1495-1510, Captain Robert may be older than projected here.

It may be suggested, but not proved, that Henry Angell of Rothwell, whose will was written in 1534 naming a son William, a daughter Isabel and his wife Isabel, may have been the Henry Angell whose son William receives a comparatively large bequest in the will of Robert[1]. Likewise, William Angell of Market Deeping, Lincolnshire, a parish immediately across the border with Northamptonshire, writes his will in 1546 and after naming his wife (who might be pregnant) and one child, goes on to name six other Angells, who may or may not be the children of Robert[1] and any unknown brothers. It is even possible that the Robert Jr., John, Thomas, Joan "and every one of her sisters," and Alice, were all children of Robert[1], and that some of them did not survive to appear in their own father's will in 1566. Likewise, if the "Goerge" who has no surname in William of Market Deeping's will, was George "Angell," then surely John Angell of Peakirk (will written 1565), is a brother [see Angell will abstracts].

Child, surname Angell:

1) James, a minor in 1547, named in father's will

2. THOMAS[2] ANGELL (Robert[1]), born say 1520s; buried Peakirk, Northamptonshire 25 December 1581; married first the mother of his first child, name unseen; married second circa 1550s ANN HARBY, daughter or sister of John Harby of Glinton.

This family is seen in outline form in the Visitation of London 1633, 1634 and 1635 and in the Bigland manuscript. No probate was found for this Thomas, but his children were careful to include each other in their respective wills. Although John, the eldest surviving son, was said to have been disinherited, there is no evidence to support this in the wills of his brothers.

7. vii. ROBERT, baptized Peakirk 27 October 1570.

3. JOHN[3] ANGELL (Thomas[2], Robert[1]), born Peakirk say 1550s; died St James Deeping, Lincolnshire shortly after 13 October 1610, when he wrote his will; married presumably as his only wife JOAN _____, born say 1550s, died between 30 September 1624 and 30 March 1625, the writing and proving of her will.

According to research done by the Lancaster Herald (see above), this John Angell was disinherited for dissolution and debauchery, yet no evidence supporting this appears in his brothers' wills. Brother Edward remembers John and John's son Robert in his will of 1603, and surviving brother Robert remembers John's sons and daughters in his will of 1628. In 1624, brother Thomas remembered John's grandchildren, all giving no hint of a division in the family.

iii. ROBERT, baptized Peakirk 17 October 1586; this Robert is mentioned in the 1603 will of uncle Edward Angell, but not in the later wills of his other Angell uncles, so likely died without children. He is possibly the Robert Angell of Peakirk who left a will in 1621 (see abstracts below), but it is very strange that he did not appear in the will of his father in 1610. It is most likely that he died between 1603 and 1610.

It is possible that the Bakers and Risleys named in Thomas' will were grandchildren of his second wife, but, unfortunately they are not specifically identified by him.

Despite her earnest wishes, it can be seen that William Angell set aside his last wife's will. Many of the bequests given in his own will required that the heirs decline to claim amounts given in his wife's "pretended" will.

In a document found at the Society of Genealogists in London, an outline of the male descendants of William Angell are described. This chart evidently came from a court case shortly after 1789, in which John Angell of Dublin, Ireland, attempted to prove he was the male heir of William Angell the Accaterer, and thus entitled to the estate of Crowhurst. The Crowhurst estate was the legacy left by another John Angell, born at Lambeth 28 January 1700 and buried 6 April 1784, having married Mary Gresham, daughter of Sir Charles Gresham, but having left no issue (Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica 4:305). John Angell was the last in his branch of the family to inherit Crowhurst, an immense estate entailed on the male heirs of William the Accaterer at the time of the marriage of William's eldest son, John Angell to Elizabeth Edolphe. When John died in 1784 without any close male relations, it was necessary for the claimant or claimants to prove that all senior branches of the family were extinct. The chart produced as part of this effort contained a few surprises. In addition to the sons named in William the Accaterer's will, the Crowhurst chart shows a Richard Angell, second son, who died in the lifetime of his father, without children. While we have no independant verification of this, the chart in almost all other particulars is quite accurate, and Richard is included here based on its authority.

ANGELL

THOMAS[1] ANGELL, born England before 1619 and likely much earlier, since he calls himself "very Aged" in his 1685 will; died Providence, RI between August 1688 (Providence estate tax) and 18 September 1694 when his will was proved (EPR X:17); married possibly Providence before 1642 ALICE ASHTON, baptized St. Albans Abbey, Hertfordshire 1 February 1617/8 (parish register), died Providence, RI 24 December 1694 (ERP X:20), daughter of JAMES[A] and ALICE (____) ASHTON (see Ashton Chapter).

The Angell surname appears several times in 17th-century New England. Philip and Pierce Angell took the Oath of Allegiance in Marblehead, MA on 18 December 1677 and in October of 1687 Philip Angell paid personal taxes in what would become Newtown, Maine (Register 32[1878]:315). Neither man has been found to have had a family and no connection is known with Thomas Angell of Providence.

The 1872 Angell genealogy claims that there was a class of men of distinction who escaped to America from England as servants to those who were permitted to come, and that Thomas Angell came with Roger Williams on the Lyon as a servant or apprentice (Angell genealogy, p.8). But Angell does not appear on Winthrop's partial passenger list for this ship, nor does Williams ever name Angell as his servant. Dr. Guild, Librarian at Brown University in the last century, claimed that Thomas Angell was a lad of 14 and servant to Roger Williams. Guild was quoted by Henry F. Waters (Register 43[1889]:299), who offered no proof to support his statement, and proceeded to propose a familial relationship, since disproven, between Angell and Williams (see Peakirk Angells Chapter and TAG 66[1991]:129).

Perhaps the basis for these traditions was a reminiscence published in the Register 14[1860]:31 almost thirty years earlier. A visit by Ezra Stiles to John Angell of Providence on 17 November 1771 resulted in a diary entry which included the following:

> I visited (in Providence, R.I.) Jno. Angel, who told me he was born in Providence, Oct. 4, 1691, son of James Angel, son of Thomas Angel, who > came from Salem with Roger Williams....His grandfather he said was Mr. Williams' hired man at Salem, & came away with him; and the Angel family preserve many particulars respecting Mr. Williams.

Unfortunately, the rest of the diary entry shows John Angell to have been intent on illustrating Roger Williams' errors in theology. Angell's authorities were his mother (a daughter of Rev. Gregory Dexter) and the connection his grandfather had as a hired man. While interesting, John Angell's remarks should be taken in context as memories of events over one hundred years earlier, and with a grain of salt, given his purpose.

Roger Williams, himself, had little to say about Thomas Angell. Certainly he never called him his servant. On the contrary, there is reason to believe that in the early years he had a servant named Joshua Winsor, as the following abstract from Williams' October 1638 letter to John Winthrop would suggest:

> ...I understand that a Servant of yours Joshua _____ is some trouble to your Selfe, as allso to others and consequently can not (if he desire to feare the Lord) but himselfe be troubled and grieved in his condicion though otherwise I know not where under Heaven he could be better.
> If it may seeme good in your Eyes (wanting a Servant) I shall desire him (not Simply from you) but for your peace and his. I shall desire your best and full Satisfaction in payment, and what summe you pitch on to accept it either from this Bill... (Correspondence of Roger Williams 1:190).

An editorial note to the Williams volume suggests that this Joshua was Joshua Winsor, as does the editorial note to the identical letter published in the Winthrop Papers IV:66. In any event, it would seem that Williams was in need of a servant in October 1638, either having expanded his household to the extent that he needed one, or needing to replace one who had moved on.

Another mention of Roger Williams' hired man is found in a November 1677 letter to the Rhode Island Commissioners, in which Williams asserts that Caunownicus and his people had "my person my shallop and Pinnace and hired servant at etc. Command on all occasions, transporting 50 at a time, and lodging 50 at a time at my howse" (Correspondence of Roger Williams 2:752). Unfortunately, this seems to apply to a relatively long period of time, and there is no assurance that one particular hired man was intended. Certainly Williams had more than one servant during his years in Providence, including poor John Clawson (Jan Claesz), a runaway ship's carpenter from New Netherland, who became Williams' household servant after 1647 and died tragically in 1661 (ibid., 2:518).

More detail is found in Williams' defense against the charges of William Harris in November 1677. In a letter to the Rhode Island Commissioners, Roger Williams maintained that it was ridiculous for Harris to charge that

Williams had taken up the earliest land in his own name when it should have been in the names of all the little group with him. To prove this, Williams recalled that none of these men were of sufficient status to be seriously considered:

> For first it is not true that I was imployed by any, made Covenant with any, was supplied by any, or desired any to come with me into these parts. My Soules desire was to doe the Natives good, and to that End to learne their Langwage (wch I afterward printed) and therefore desired not to be troubled with English Company. Yet out of Pity I gave leave to W. Harris then Poor and destitute to Come along in my Company. I Consented to John Smith[,] Miller at Dorchester (banished allso) to goe with me, and at John Smiths desire, to a Poore young fellow Frances Wicks allso to a lad of Rich. Watermans. These are all I remember. But to what Could any of these pretend to be put in the grant, aequal to my selfe? (Correspondence of Roger Williams 2:750).

Here we learn that Williams asked no English person to go with him, but suffered a few in poor circumstances to come along. The term "lad" suggests a youngster, perhaps just into his teens, something quite different from the image conjured by "hired man."

Tradition asserts that Thomas Angell was born about 1618, the year his wife was baptized. To be a lad of 14 in 1636, places Thomas' birth circa 1622 and makes him only age 8 or so when the Lyon left England in December 1630, bringing Roger Williams and his supposed servant to the New World. It would make the signer of the 1638-1640 agreement between 16 and 18 years old. The later end of this range would not be impossible, and by all accounts, Thomas Angell and his male descendants were very large men, perhaps large enough to appear older than their years. Yet Thomas Angell calls himself "very aged" in his 1685 will, when if born in 1622, he would have been just 63 years old.

It is odd that Roger Williams, who had lived much of his life near Thomas Angell and who dealt with him frequently for decades, failed to call him by his name when remembering those momentous days when he fled the Massachusetts Bay Colony. The "lad of Richard Waterman" sounds like a son or servant of Roger's contemporary, Richard Waterman.

Another point against Thomas Angell being Williams' companion is that he was illiterate. Given the concern for learning, and the translations of the Indian languages, which occupied Williams' early efforts in Rhode Island, it seems highly unlikely that he would accept illiteracy in one who was as close as Thomas Angell is purported to have been, particularly if Angell came to him as a child. Joshua Winsor, who is known to have been Williams' servant, was literate.

Yet another point against the close relationship proposed between Angell and Williams is the fact that in 1657 Thomas Angell is named as one of the fomenters of dissent with William Harris. Since Roger Williams himself was the accusor, and the charge of treason carried the death penalty, a close relationship with Angell is most unlikely.

The first appearance of Thomas Angell in the colonial records is his mark on a document which bears no date. The establishment of that date is a matter of some controversy, as it has been variously reported in many published histories. In a letter written by Roger Williams to his friend and mentor, John Winthrop, about September 1636, Williams tells of the simple form of government that his fledgling colony had enjoyed until then. However

> Now of late some young men single persons (of whome we had much neede) being admitted to freedome of Inhabitation, and promising to subject to the Orders made by the Consent of the Howseholders, are discontented with their estate, and seeke the Freedome of Vote allso, and aequalitie etc.

To answer this, Williams proposed two compacts be drawn up. One was intended for the householders and the other for the single men. He drafted these two agreements and tried the language out on his friend Winthrop (Winthrop Papers, III:296-8). Apparently, the final draft was modified to include any new person wishing to become an inhabitant, and it is to this paper that Thomas Angell made his mark, sometime between 13 July 1638 (the earliest date signer Chad Brown could have been present) and 1640 (when Angell was granted a houselot, ERP I:1).

> We whose names are hereunder desirous to inhabit in the town of Providence, do promise to subject ourselves in active and passive obedience, to all such orders or agreements as shall be made for public good for the body, in an orderly way, by the major consent of the present inhabitants, masters of families, incorporated together into a town fellowship, and others whom they shall admit unto them, only in civil things.

THE LAYOUT OF THE HOME LOTS OF THE ORIGINAL PROVIDENCE PROPRIETORS

The signers included both married and unmarried men, making it clear that Rogers' original idea of two separate agreements, one for single men and one for married householders, was merged. It is not certain whether Thomas signed as a married man or whether he was still single. No marriage record has been found for Thomas Angell and Alice Ashton, but they probably were married by this date, and from the ages of their children, surely no later than 1642.

Alice Ashton's arrival in Providence is unrecorded, but several likely possibilities suggest themselves. In 1638 her brother-in-law Thomas Olney, made his way with his wife and three tiny sons from Salem to Providence with others whose religious views caused them to be warned to either leave Massachusetts Bay Colony or appear at the next court. It may have been to this move that John Angell referred when he said that his grandfather had come from Salem with Roger Williams. Indeed, some of the traditions that the family came from Salem may have stemmed from the fact that the Olneys and possibly young Alice, left that town shortly after March 1637/38 and were among the first to join Roger Williams at Providence.

Although Alice is not on the list of passengers on the April 1635 Planter with her sister's family, she may have come later, alone or in company with brother, James Ashton, who made a considerable mark in Providence and arrived before 11 February 1642/3 (ERP I:64-6). Either arrival date would have allowed time for Alice to meet and marry Thomas Angell by 1642. It is equally possible that the couple married in England and proceeded with or without her brother, James, to join sister Marie (Ashton) Olney in Salem or Providence.

Although Thomas Olney, James Ashton and Thomas Angell are seen together witnessing deeds, the only evidence for Alice (Ashton) Angell's identity comes from a deposition dated 14 December 1716 by her eldest son. John Angell deposed that in 1667 his uncle, James Ashton, had asked him to care for Ashton's 60 acre lot (Austin, p.4).

The rare and unusual first name given to Thomas and Alice's eldest daughter may provide a clue to Thomas' origin. The name Amphillis is not used in the known Ashton family, although several Angell descendants in America carry the name, presumably in honor of Thomas and Alice's daughter. If it is not an Ashton name, then perhaps it is an Angell name.

Research by George Redmonds of Huddersfield, Yorkshire, shows that the name was not commonly nor widely used, but is recorded as early as the 12th century when Alan of Leigh gave land to the Priory of Godstow (near Oxford) on the occasion of his daughter becoming a nun there. She was called Amphelisia and probably became the abbess at Godstow, whose name was recorded "Amphelice, Amfelice, Felice and Felicia." Redmonds suggests that these various forms indicate that the scribes were unfamiliar with the name, associating it with Felicia, the feminine equivalent of Felix, Latin for "happy," which entered the language at about this time. The name is thought by some to be related to "Phyllis," a Greek derivative of a word meaning "leafy." In mythology, Phyllis was a girl who hanged herself for love and was turned into a tree.

Redmonds further comments that there are 13th and 14th century examples of Amphillis and that the name was used in the 16th century (personal communication, 17 September 1992).

American researchers have long considered Amphillis to be a Northamptonshire and Hertfordshire name, based on the single appearance of the name in the ancestry of George Washington in the person of Amphyllis Twigden of Spratton and Tring (Register 94[1940]:256). A laborious search through the International Genealogical Index shows that Amphillis was much more widely spread, with occurrences in Cambridgeshire and London among other places, in the 16th century. The largest number of appearances found to date are curiously centered in the parish of Aldenham, co. Herts., where Amphillis is seen in the Peter, Amery and Baseley families. There are no Angells nor Ashtons in that parish, however, and the hoped-for value of this unusual name has not been realized.

On 27 July 1640, Angell was one of the thirty-nine signers of an agreement for a government (EPR XV:5). He took his status as an inhabitant and freeman of Providence very seriously and was politically active until the last decade of his life. He was one of the twelve signers of the Providence Oath of Allegiance, making his curious circular mark.

A forceful and opinionated man, Thomas Angell held many town offices, despite being illiterate (or at least unable to write). He was a member of the Town Council in 1650 and was also surveyor and commissioner that year (ERP II:46,47,52). He was one of the six jurymen in 1650, 1652 and 1659 (ERP II:46,69,116).

In December of 1652, Angell filled an important position as one of the six Providence commissioners at the General Assembly at Hugh Bewitt's trial for high treason (ERP II:68,70). Bewitt had been found guilty by the Court of Trials and he appealed to the Court of Commissioners, and Angell and the five other commissioners acquitted him, sparing Bewitt the dreadful punishment reserved for traitors.

Angell was frequently associated with matters of defense, upholding of the law, and other physical matters. On 18 4mo 1649, Thomas Angell was one of those who brought in an indictment against Wesuontup, that he broke prison and feloniously entered widow Sayers house at night (ERP XV:223).

On 25 3mo 1653, Thomas Angell was ordered a commissioner to meet with the Warwick commissioners regarding Captain Underhill and Mr. Dyer and the manner and means of making war upon the Dutch. Due to the merchant trade up and down the coast, there were several intermarriages between Dutch and Providence colonists. This did not prevent the Council of State from directing the people to annoy the Dutch and forbidding them to send provisions. In one of the most aggressive responses from a New England colony, Rhode Island voted cannon and small arms and twenty volunteers be sent to the English on Long Island.

Thomas Angell served the community as a grandjuryman 24 June 1656 (RICR, 1:17), hearing the Ralph Earl case, Brenton vs. Coddington, Morris vs. Coddington and later Coddington-related cases (RICR 1:18,19,24). He was a grand inquest member at court 13 October 1657, 8 March 1658/9 and a juryman 10 March 1662 and 16 May 1663 (ibid., 1:30,51,52; 2:14,17).

Thomas Angell acted as constable for the town of Providence in the precedent-setting case of Richard Chasmore, in which Rhode Island's sovereignty over its citizens versus the authority of the Massachusetts Bay Colony was tested, as the following deposition by Richard Wright indicates:

> Haveinge a commission from authority to goe unto Pawtuckittsit for to seaze uppon the body of Richard Chasmor, the which I did: but in our returne backe againe unto providence teakeinge up our quarters that night by reason of the nights approachinge uppon us: about eight or nine a clock in the night as we conseve there comes in three men, and brought a warrant from Arthors Fenner of Providence for to show to the Townes men my warrant or a coppie of itt, but I denied them either for to lett them see my warrant or to give them a coppie of itt unless they would lett me know by what power they did demand such a thinge of mee: about two howers after or thereabouts comes in Thomas Angell the cunstabel of Providence and a sergant with foure men more for to apprehend my body and Rich: Cashmor whoe then was our prisonor for to appere before the townes men that was met at Rogers Mories: Arthro Fenner sittinge in cheife amongsth them: the said Fenner said I in the townes name and with there consent sent a warrant for to see your warrant or a coppie of itt wherein you had seazed the body of Rich: Chasmore but you resisted unless you did know by what power wee did itt there fore I have sent for you in his hineses name to answer for the afront you have put uppon us in takeinge away our prisner from us: he beinge bound over to answr in or Collinie: then I replied I must say as I sayed before I desire to know by what power you doe question me whoe am a passenger returninge back to the bay: desireinge to molest noe other man woman nor child: then rises up one Dexter and said I desire to speake my consence and to stand for our liberty: Pawtucksitt is in our liberties and not in the bays: William Harris he said wee had noe right to seaze a man att Pawtucksitt and if wee had yett we could not answr what wee had doun for he was there prisnor and had given in bayle for to answer in there Colloney: Dexter he stands up againe and said Mr. President as he is our prisnor I stand for our libertye deliver him to the cunstabl: so hereuppon Fenner he commanded the cunstabl to carry him

Marshal Wait's retour and Rich. Wrights Deposn. 1656/57 Court of Assistants, March 1656/7
(Register 8[1854]:293; ERP II:100-102)

The men of Rhode Island took exception to the Massachusetts Bay Colony authorities assuming that they had jurisdiction on Rhode Island land. They further resented the implication that Roger Williams was the only man in Rhode Island with any power. By standing strong and silent in this altercation, Thomas Angell and his four deputies withstood the implied challenges of the Massachusetts Bay Colony.

Mr. Roger Williams brought a presentment against Thomas Harris, William Wickenden and Thomas Angell on 13 March 1656/7, charging them as ringleaders in the new division in the colony. Harris was charged with treason as a result of his views of liberty, which differed from those of Williams, but the charge was dropped. The three men appeared in court and three times an appeal was made for the prosecutor to come forward, but Williams did not come and no other appeared to take his place, so the men were dismissed (RICR, p.27). The divisiveness in question was a matter of teachings on the nature of liberty, Angell apparently being a strong adherent of Harris' rather than an originator of the concepts involved.

Thomas Angell was a juror on the inquest upon the body of Margaret Goodwin 4 3mo 1651 [sic, more likely 1657] when the jury made the curious assessment that, "the terribleness of the crack of thunder on the second of the third month, 165[ ], or the coldness of the night, being she was naked did kill her" (ERP II:104).

Austin claims that Thomas Angell was Town Clerk for Providence in 1658 and 1675, but his illiteracy makes this highly suspect.

In the second year of the plantation, Thomas Angell and five others were asked to pay two shillings apiece in consideration of the ground that had been granted to them (ERP I:3). This was Angell's first land in Providence, beginning a long string of acquisitions which left him with considerable property to grant to his eldest son, John, in his lifetime, and to bequeath to his younger son, James. Angell was on a list of persons who had paid all their purchase money and had quittances 19 2mo 1645/6 (ERP II:31). He witnessed, by mark, a deed by William Arnold on 11 January 1642[/3] (EPR I:66).

Thomas Angell is seen as an abutter to land of Ezekiel Holiman in a deed dated 27 11mo 1644 (ERP II:6) and again on a deed of Thomas Harris 7 12mo 1647 (ERP II:8). On 27 January 1648, Thomas Angell of Providence sold to James Mattason a five acre lot bordering the sea to the north and Thomas Clement on the west, and Benedict Arnold on the east (ERP II:21).

Thomas Angell witnessed several deeds for his brother-in-law, Thomas Olney, including one from Matthew Waller 20 April 1649 (Providence Deed 1:62) and one from Stuckley Westcott on 4 May 1649 (ERP II:9).

On 27 October 1660, Thomas Angell sold a cove and piece of salt marsh to William Carpenter of Pautuxet (EPR I:102). In the division of lands at Providence, 19 February 1665, Angell drew lot #82 and on 27 October 1666, he had sixty acres in Providence (ERP III:73). In the divisions of 1675 he had lots #44 and #23.

Robert West filed a complaint against Thomas Angell on 27 August 1646 for having trapped and attacked some of West's swine with a pitchfork after they had entered Angell's property in July. Thomas killed a sow and "bruisd as black as a shoe" some of the pigs. Angell was ordered to pay damages for the dead sow and for the value of her skin, which had been torn by the pitchfork (ERP XV:8). Angell's neighbors, Robert Cole, Richard Waterman, William Field, John Liggit, Thomas Harris, Christopher Parkhurst, and Bethia Waterman, were called to appear in this case.

At the beginning of King Philip's War, the neutrality of Providence was respected by the Wampanoags, close friends to Roger Williams from the beginning of his settlement. The United Colonies, however, raised a sizeable army and marched part of it through the towns of Providence and Newport. There was no harm in this. The harm came when colonists from these two towns joined the army as it marched through, violating the towns' neutrality.

The Narragansetts were wintered in a swamp of four or five acres in the area now known as South Kingston. The results of the "Great Swamp Fight" were a small number of colonists killed and well over one thousand Narragansetts and Wampanoags killed, hundreds by burning to death in their wigwams, and countless more starved when their provisions for the winter were burned in the battle (for a further account of this conflict, see Bodge).

On 26 March 1676, a small force of colonists was attacked by the Narragansetts on the Massachusetts side of the Blackstone River. Outnumbered, the colonials were slowly reduced until the survivors broke and ran into the woods. Only one escaped, bringing the news to Providence. Three days later, Providence, sheltering only about thirty men who had "staid & went not away," was attacked, evidently the Narragansetts first violation of the town's neutrality. Roger Williams went alone and unarmed to plead for peace, and was well treated and allowed to return to one of the two garrison houses in the town. No attack was made on the garrison houses, and none of the inhabitants killed, but before leaving, the Narragansetts set fire to the town. Williams' own account of this is unclear, but the implication was that all buildings except the garrison houses and the house of Thomas Field, near the William Field garrison, were burned to the ground, presumably including the Angell homestead (for a further account, see Correspondence of Roger Williams).

Shortly after the burning of Providence, Canonchet, who had led the Narragansetts in their comparatively bloodless destruction of the town, was captured and taken to Stonington, where he was shot and dismembered. Shortly thereafter King Philip was killed and it was only a matter of time before the Indians were decimated.

At the annual town meeting 5 June 1676, five Providence men were chosen to settle the question of what to do with the surviving Indians. As one of these five, Thomas made his mark to the decision that they should be placed in servitude for a number of years, according to their present ages. Other colonies were not so generous, either killing their vanquished enemies, or selling them to permanent slavery in distant lands.

Thomas Angell had little to do with probate matters, but he did make his mark as witness to the will of William Field, dated 30 May 1665 (ERP VII:225-7) and he was one of those who took the inventory of debts in the estate of James Olney 30 January 1676/7 (Providence Probate A24).

Although he dropped out of public service in the 1680s, Angell appeared on the regular Providence tax lists from 1680 through 1684. In 1685 and after, under Andros, it is recorded that Thomas was taxed with his son, James Angell. He last paid a poll tax 14 July 1688 and paid an estate tax August 1688 (Tax Lists of the Town of Providence, pp.12,34,40). His will was written 23 May 1685, at least three years before his death:

> At a Meeting of the Council, 18 Sept. 1694: "This Day the last will & Testament of Thomas Angell (deceased) beareing date ye 23 May 1685, hath been Examined; the which was some time since Exhibited; James Angell the Exsecutor made Oath unto ye same Tho: Olney Nathaniell Waterman & Ep: Olney as witnesses made oath to the sd will; The said will is this day approved" (ERP X:17). The abovesd Inventary is a just appriseall of ye Estate of sd Alice Angell; of what was brought to our vew, Taken & Made ye day & yeare abovesd by us Tho: Olney, Nathaniell Waterman. The 12t day of ffebruary 1694/5 James Angell the Executor of the deceased Alice Angell hath made oath to the truth of ye Inventary above written; And also Tho: Olney & Nathaniell Waterman.

Recorded August ye 21: 1711 P Tho: Olney Clerk. (ERP VII:77-91)

That the inventories of both Thomas and Alice Angell were taken the same day, coupled with the fact that Thomas paid no taxes after 1688, suggests that Thomas died about 1689 and that the family waited until Alice died in December of 1694 before probating their estates. The Angell genealogy reports that Thomas died at the age of about 76 years, but this age was most likely arrived at by subtracting 1618 from 1694 and not a reliable tradition (Angell genealogy, p.11).

JOHN[2] ANGELL (Thomas[1]), born circa 1646; died Providence, RI 27 July 1720 (PVR 5:532); married Providence 7 January 1669/70 by Thomas Olney (PVR 1:452) RUTH[2] FIELD, born circa 1649, died after 1727 (Austin, p.4), daughter of JOHN[1] FIELD and an unknown wife.

Family tradition has it that John was a man of large frame and possessed of great physical strength (Angell genealogy, p.13). A great-grandson, Enoch Angell, stated a family tradition on 13 February 1820 that

> My great grandfather, John, was said to be a man of enormous strength, having on one occasion nine bushels of pears on his old mare, and she would not carry them, he took them on his own back and carried them, which seems incredible. He said he once attempted to carry four bushels of salt up stairs, but the stairs broke down and he was injured by the fall (ibid.)

His disposition must have been calm and responsible for there was no bloodshed when John Angell, John Field and Resolved Waterman were suprised by an extraordinary constable, appointed by William Harris and William Carpenter, who arrested them as they came peaceably from their work in mowing a small piece of meadow in the summer of 1667. They were charged with "a Riot in mowing ye aforesaid Meadow," and were kept prisoners all day, night and the next day to their, "owne great Grievance & dammage & ye amazement & great grievance of ye Generalitie of this whole Towne..." (ERP XV:117-8). A complaint about this unlawfull appointing of an "extraordinary" constable, was brought to the General Assembly, but we do not learn the outcome.

John Angell was one of the soldiers credited with military service under Capt. Daniel Henchman and paid £1.15.02 in a list of 20 August 1675 (Register 37[1883]:65; Bodge, p.51). He was paid £3.12.00 by Hull for service in King Philips war (Register 37[1883]:65) credited in Capt. Samuel Wadsworth's Company 24 August 1676.

John Angell was one of the twenty-seven who "staid & went not away" during the Indian troubles. As such he was entitled to Indian servants captured during the war (ERP VIII:12). He was among those who determined the fate of the Indians left in Town, condemning them to slavery for varying periods of years, depending on their ages (ERP XV:154). Arthur Fenner, William Hopkins and John Whipple Jr. were appointed to take charge of selling the Indians 16 August 1676 (ERP XV:156). John Angell's share for his service was four Indian servants (ERP XV:161).

John Angell was one of the twenty-one responsible men named to lead ten men in reconnaissance patrols in the following order given by the Council of War for Providence,

> Whereas there hath Bin a late inCurtion & invation made upon some of Our English plantations: by the Cruel and Barborous Indian Enemies: whose tender mercies are Cruel: and Considering the dainger of manie of our Neighbours who Live Remote from our Town Wee the Councel of war for the Town of providence Have thought fitt: in his Majesties: Name to Nominate and Appoynt you ... and Every of you to take the Comand and Conduct of Ten men as they are severally Named in your severall Lists: and with them to Rainge beyound the outmost of our plantations Each of you two Daies at a time or more as Need shall Require: to serch after the Enemies: and Upon Discovery of anie of them you are according to the best of your skill: to indevour to Resest Expulse Kill and Distroy them accoring to the best of y[o]ur Indevour but in Cace you judge them to be two strong for you: you are to alarem as manie of our inhabitants as in yor wisdom yu Can or may: you are allsoe to observe such Directions and instructions as shall be from tim to tim Given you by the Counciel of war aforesd: and in Case anie of your Company should Neglect or Refuse to goe upon sd service: haveing had sufficient Notis thereof you are: impowered to Take as a fine three shillings for Every days Neglec[t] and in soe doing this Comission shall be your warent and Discharge: Signed by order of the Counciell of war for the town of providence: this 24th of Aprill: 1697

John Angell was permitted to pay a small fee to exchange the sixty acres of land which his father gave him on the plain between John Field's meadow on Smallbrooke and Wanasquatuckett River for land elsewhere on the common 27 October 1666 (ERP III:86). Evidently John's father, Thomas, had established his elder son with considerable property shortly before John's marriage, because in his will, as was often done in New England, Thomas left the homestead to his youngest son, James, with whom Thomas had lived.

The families remained close, however, for when one share of lowland was laid out to Thomas Angell about 1673, it was bounded on the west side by the land that John Angell was building his house upon (ERP IV:5). He paid 5s in the £51 rate 3 June 1671 (ERP XV:135). In the various rates of the 1680s, John Angell paid a comfortable sum, indicating his upper-middle ranking among the inhabitants of Providence.

In 1667, John Angell's uncle, James Ashton, requested that John take care of Ashton's 60 acre lot. John deposed to this 14 December 1716

(Austin, p.4), providing the only hard evidence for John's mother's identity. In 1667, when cousin Epenetus Olney's land at Cancaunjawatchuck was laid out, John Angell's land bordered him on the southwest (ERP I:35).

As opportunity presented itself, John made useful purchases of land and housing, obviously with an eye to providing for his five sons. On 6 January 1693/4, John Angell purchased eighty-nine acres of land in Providence from William Smith, cordwainer of Providence, who shortly thereafter left the town (ERP V:190-3). He purchased fifty-eight acres and housing from Pardon Tillinghast 3 May 1695 (ERP V:193-6). Neither of these deeds was recorded until a decade later when John Angell passed the land on to his sons.

John Angell purchased land from Elisha Arnold, fifty-six and a half acres 1 June 1702 (ERP XX:338-9). Land laid out to John Angell 9 November 1702 included fifty acres near Captain Arnold's new mill with an allowance for a highway, and land Angell had bought from Thomas Harris, as well as ten acres Angell had from William Hopkins on exchange for six and a half acres in the Neck (ERP IV:200-1).

John Angell presented a bill to the Providence Town Council 1 June 1674 complaining about the lack of a highway near Thomas Walling's land (ERP IV:8). A highway was laid out past his property 20 May 1717 (ERP IX:23).

On 15 January 1703/4 John Angell Sr. of Providence for good affection towards his son John Angell, "and also for his settlement and well being," deeded to John the house and lands which he had purchased from Pardon Tillinghast 3 May 1695, including all the buildings which had been erected since the purchase, approximately 58 acres, as well as about 4 acres of lowland which he had purchased from William Smith (ERP V:183-6). On the same day, John Angell provided for his eldest son Thomas Angell, giving him for good affection and for his settlement and well being, a mansion house, and eighty-nine acres between Nonpluss Hill and Clemence's Meadow, which he purchased of William Smith, and ten acres of land he bought of William Randall (ERP V:186-190).

A few years later, on 28 April 1705, John Angell deeded to him in consideration of the good will and affection which he had for his son Daniel Angell, a parcel of land of eighty acres on the eastern side of Wanasquatucket River, land he had purchased in pieces from Thomas Harris, Elisha Arnold, and William Hopkins. Ruth released her dower to this land (ERP XIV:296-7).

These deeds left only his two youngest sons, James and Hope, unprovided for at the time of his death. John bought a house and ninety-seven acres from Elisha Smith 27 October 1709 (ERP XX:340-2). He may have intended that this house and property go to his son Hope, but evidently failed to record a deed to that effect. His inventory shows John to have had no land in his name at his death, suggesting that such deeds existed but were not recorded.

On 30 May 1667, John Angell was one of twenty-five men who swore allegiance to Charles the Second (ERP III:102). As a loyal subject, inhabitant and freeman, John Angell performed his civic duties for the town and colony. These included appointment on 17 March 1670/1 as a grandjuryman to serve on the General Court of Trials at Newport (ERP III:166) and as a petit juryman in 1695, 1697 (ERP XI:35) and again in 1715 and 1717 (ERP XI:20,177, XIII:9). In these appointments, his occupation is designated as weaver.

Despite twice failing to appear when called to the General Court, once in 1678 and once in 1681 (Newport Ct Bk A:43-45; 57/59), at a town meeting 16 March 1685/6, John Angell was chosen a Deputy to the General Assembly (ERP VIII:162). The next year, he was chosen constable for the town of Providence (ERP VIII:164). He was a way warden in 1701 (ERP XI:63). He was Deputy Sheriff for Providence in 1713 (ERP XVII:284) and served in the place of the Town Sergeant that same year (ERP XVII:291).

Neighbors and family relied on his judgement as he served on Coroners' inquests and as bondsman when relatives died. John Angell joined with eleven others of the Coroner's jury in judging that Samuel Belloo, son of widow Hannah Belloo, had gone into the river by the mill in Providence to wash himself, and was by a Providence of God, drowned, 10 June 1669 (ERP V:337). As one of the men on the Jury of Inquest 8 January 1716/7, John Angell joined in the verdict that the female child found dead in the house of Mr. Obadiah Brown where one Mary Rootingburgh had dwelt, who acknowledged that the child was born of her body at night under an apple tree some few rods from the house, had died as a result of the mother's want of suitable help in the time of her travail (ERP IX:18). On 26 February 1716/7, he and others agreed that, having viewed the body of Samuel Wright and finding no harm done to him, that "he being an aged man It Pleased God to Take his Life away" (ERP IX:21).

John Angell served with brother-in-law Richard Arnold and nephew Edward Smith as bondsman for his sister, Amphillis Smith, when she took the administration of the estate of her deceased husband Edward Smith 9 January 1693/4 (Providence Probate A57). John Angell served with Samuel Wilkinson as bondsman for Deborah Wilkinson when she took administration of the estate of her deceased husband, John Wilkinson, 18 May 1708 (Providence Probate A98). He also served as one of the appraisers of this estate (ERP VI:275, X:99).

In the second decade of the eighteenth-century, John Angell witnessed the deeds of many of his neighbors. He witnessed twice for Edward Hawkings Jr. when he sold land to Joseph Mowry, for John Steere, for James Angell when he sold to Joseph Smith, and for John and Nicholas Lappan to Walter Pheteplace (ERP XX:402-3, 316-8, 338-9, 340-2, 435-6, 449-50, 427-8).

Unlike his father, John Angell did a fair amount of work on the probates of his neighbors. With Zachariah Field, John Angell took the inventory of James Mathewson, on 17 October 1682 (ERP VI:71). He took the inventory of the estate of Samuel Wright 13 April 1717 (Providence Will Book 2:60) and the inventory of John Smith 26 May 1719 (ibid., 2:124). A horse of his appears in the inventory of Captain John Dexter circa 1716 (ibid., 2:130).

John died intestate and his wife and youngest son, Hope, were chosen administrators. The inventory included a negro woman about whom nothing else is known.

HOPE[3] ANGELL (John[2], Thomas[1]), born Providence, RI 22 December 1685 (PVR 1:410); died Providence, RI 11 February 1759[/60] (PVR 5:532); married Providence by Joseph Jenckes 22 May 1712 (PVR 1:409) LYDIA[4] OLNEY, born Providence 30 April 1688 (ERP III:222), died Providence 1748, daughter of THOMAS[3] (Thomas[2,1]) and LYDIA (BARNES) OLNEY (see Olney Chapter).

Hope and Lydia lived on the land his father, John Angell, bought of Elisha Smith (ERP XXI:42-3).

As the youngest son, and closest to his mother, Hope Angell served as co-administrator with her on his father's estate 30 September 1720 (ERP XVI:164).

Hope witnessed the deed of his brother, James Angell, to Peter Barnes 20 April 1710 (ERP XX:381). This was the first evidence of a long history connecting the two youngest sons of John Angell. Near the end of his life, Mr. Hope Angell of Providence, who had for some time been guardian for his brother James Angell of Smithfield, appeared before the Smithfield Town Council and declined to continue as guardian. The Council appointed Mr. James Muzzey as James' guardian to take care of him and his estate, and invited Hope Angell to bring an account to the Council so that they might settle with him (Smithfield Town Council Book 1757-1765, p.15, 15 September 1757).

Like his father before him, Hope Angell served as a way warden for the town of Providence in 1709 (ERP 11:138). On 20 May 1717, Hope Angell and others reported their service as a jury to lay out highways in Providence (ERP IX:22-24). Hope served again in 1721/2 (ERP IX:33) and in 1738 (ERP IX:81).

His abilities were recognized early and while still in his thirties the town called on him to perform responsible duties, such as taking the inventory of William Hawking's estate 16 October 1723 (ERP XVI:247). Obadiah Olney, grandson of the late Thomas Olney, chose his brother Thomas Olney and his brother-in-law Hope Angell to be his guardians 4 February 1722/3 (ERP XII:66).

Hope served as a Deputy to the General Assembly at Warwick for Providence in 1719 (ERP XIII:18,33) and was a petit juryman in the same year for the Court of Trials (ERP, XIII:49). With the respectable title "Mr.," Hope Angell was one of the men chosen to serve as deputies at the General Court of Elections at Newport in May of 1720 (ERP XIII:33).

After the considerable prominence of his youth, Hope was less involved with town affairs in later years. He helped to lay a highway across the Mill River 13 March 1738 (ERP IX:81).

On 13 January 1740[/1], Hope Angell of Providence, yeoman, for love and good will deeded to Abiah Angell, his son, of Smithfield, husbandman, the land on which Abiah then lived, being 130 acres in Smithfield, bordered by Elisha Brown, John Brown, Noah Whipple, and Robert Gibbs, which Hope had purchased of John and Charles Field (Smithfield Deeds 1:600). A highway was laid out between the lands of Mr. Hope Angell and Mr. John Brown in 1741 (ERP IX:90-1).

Hope Angell wrote his will about four years before his death:

The Angell genealogy errs in naming this Thomas' children, evidently confusing his family with that of his son of the same name.

ABIAH[4] ANGELL (Hope[3], John[2], Thomas[1]), born Providence, RI 1 July 1713 (ERP V:204); died Smithfield, RI 14 September 1760 (Smithfield Probate 2:353-355); married Smithfield Monthly Meeting 17 May 1738 (SMM 1:27) FREELOVE[4] SMITH, born say 1710s, baptized 17th 3mo 1738 (Quaker Smithfield, p.18), died Smithfield 20 August 1766 (Smithfield Probate 2:527), daughter of EDWARD[3]and MERCY (MOWRY) SMITH (see Smith Chapter).

In the marriage intention of 30 1mo 1738, the groom was called "Nedebiah." It appears from the names of the witnesses to the couple's marriage, who were largely close relatives of Freelove Smith, that it was the Smith family who were Quaker. Certainly there were few indications before this that the Angell family were Quakers, yet Abiah must have been acceptable to the Friends to be allowed to marry in their Society.

On 15 September 1740, Abiah joined many of his brothers-in-law, signing a legislative petition requesting that bills of credit be offered by the government (Legislative petition, RI State Archives 4:67).

Comfortably situated in Smithfield on the 130 acres his father had given him on 13 January 1740[/1], bordered by Elisha Brown, John Brown, Noah Whipple, and Robert Gibbs (Smithfield Deeds 1:600), Abiah received very little in his father's will. He made his living as a husbandman, but did not find it necessary to buy and sell land at the pace seen in earlier generations.

On 5 June 1741, Abiah and Freelove Angell quitclaimed their rights in their honored father, Edward Smith's, estate to Freelove's brother, Edward Smith for £100 (Smithfield Deeds 2:74).

Abiah Angell was surveyor of highways for the section of Smithfield beginning at the dividing line of Providence and Smithfield, southeast from Christopher Brown's, to William Pullens, including Christopher Brown, Nathan Brown, James Young, James Muzzey, Thomas Woodward, Robert Woodward, Ezekiel Angell Jr., John Wilkinson Jr., and John Clerk (Smithfield Town Council Book I, pp. 91, 111). He continued as surveyor of that section until shortly before his death in 1760.

He might have served in the courts and held positions in town government, just as earlier generations of Angells had, if he had lived beyond the short 47 years given him.

The will of Abiah Angell, written the day before he died, appears in Smithfield Probate 2:353-355:

> In the Name of God amen I Abiah Angell of smithfield in the county of providence in the colony of Rhode Island ec: yeoman being sick and weak in body but of perfect mind and memory thaks be Given to God: therefore calling to mind the mortality of my body: and that it is appointed for all men Once to die: do therefore make and ordain this my Last will and testament: that is to say - my soul I recommend too [sic] almighty God that Gave it: and my body I Recommend unto the earth to Return unto the dust from whence it come: to be deasently enteard at the

The inventory of Freelove Angell, widow of Abiah, totalling £2351.12.0 and taken by Christopher Brown and Thomas Angell, was entered in the Smithfield Probate records (Smithfield Probate 2:527) on 1 November 1766. Her sons Eber and Gideon Angell were chosen administrators. Thirty-three years later, on 16 September 1799, their brother, Rufus, informed the Town Council that the estate had never been settled and division made. The Council called Eber and Gideon, who did not appear, so the administrator's bond was turned over to Rufus Angell (Smithfield Probate 3:29-33).

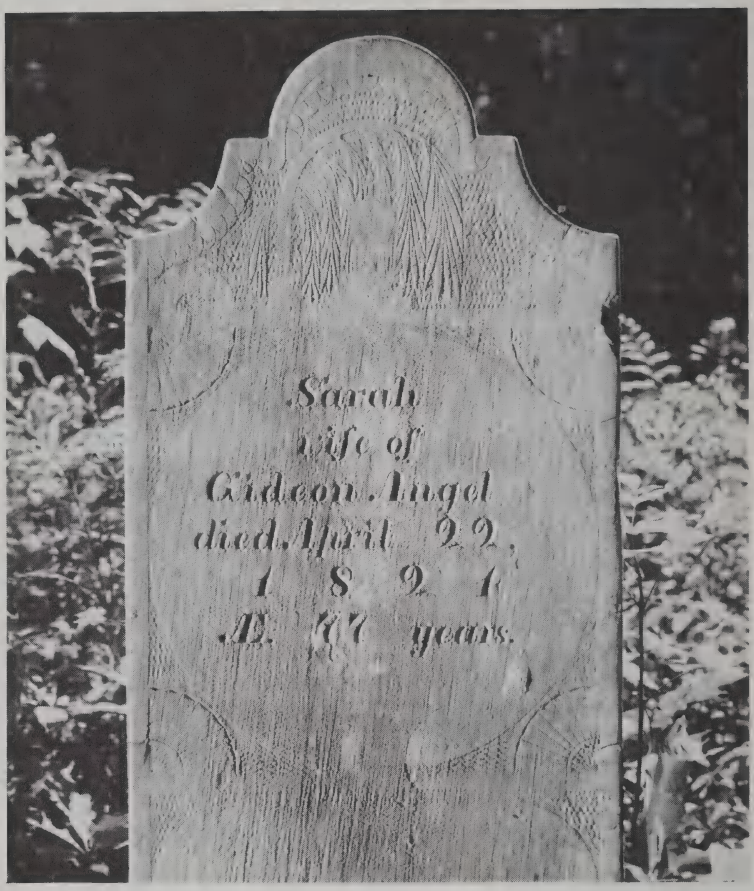
Gravestone of Gideon Angell



Gravestone of Sarah (Young) Angell

After the death of his parents, we may assume that Gideon remained on the family land, waiting for his youngest brother to come of age, so that the estate could be divided. Gideon Angell appeared in the 1774 census of Rhode Island, residing in Smithfield with his young family, consisting of 1 male over 16 years, 1 female over 16 years and 1 female under 16 years old. The brothers, Eber, Solomon and Gideon Angell, appear together in a single entry in the Smithfield Tax List of 1778, no doubt reflecting the joint inheritance of their father's land, although they lived in two separate houses. The tax list shows them with 3 polls, 2 dwelling houses, 2 horses, 13 horned cattle, 22 sheep, 8 swine, 30 acres of pasture, 14 cows it will keep, 12 acres tillage, 120 bushells of grain, 3 acres of orchard, 10 barrels of cider, 30 acres for mowing, 9 tons of English hay, 16 tons of fresh hay, 75 acres of wood and wasteland, 150 total acres, the value of their personal estates being £104.12.00 and the value of their real estate being £1000, for a total of £1104.12.00 rateable, altogether a prosperous appearance, but one which probably grew more strained as the younger brothers grew up (manuscript tax list, 1778, Central Falls City Clerk's Office).

In 1771, John Wendell placed advertisements in the Providence Gazette enticing settlers to come north into the area that had been chartered as Saville, NH in 1768. As people from the Providence area began to relocate in New Hampshire, word was passed regarding the quality of the land and opportunity to be had. By the end of the decade, Gideon Angell, his brothers Eber and Benjamin, and a number of his Young brothers-in-law had made the move. By 1781, Saville had been renamed "Wendell," for the early grantee, John Wendell of Portsmouth, NH. The name Sunapee was finally adopted in 1850 for this area, derived from the Pennacook Indian word for the lake, "Soo-Nipi," or "wild geese."

We learn a number of things from grandson John Angell's obituary in 1882. Borrowing liberally from this lengthy write-up, we are told that "Gideon Angell came to Wendell in 1779, three years before the town was incorporated. He was then a young man with a wife and two children." It is possible that he had three children at this time, since the third child, Smith, claims in the 1860 census that he was born in Rhode Island. In a deed dated 7 June 1779, Constant Hart of Charlestown, NH, cordwinder, sold lot #4 in the fourth range, first division in Saville, NH containing 75 acres to Gideon Angell of North Providence, Rhode Island, yeoman, designating Josiah Hart to receive Gideon's £220 (Cheshire Deed, E:629).

> "Gideon purchased a farm of between four and five hundred acres. It is an indication of his good judgment that no selection in the township could have been better, extending as it did from the easterly accessible hills on the one side, and gently floating south and west to the fertile lands lying in the valley below."

The location is still [1992] a striking one.

> "Here the sturdy pioneer made a clearing, built a log cabin and planted an orchard. A large flat stone that once formed the back of the chimney on the log house is the only thing remaining to mark the sight of that primitive home made in the wilderness over one hundred years ago."

The stone would more aptly be called a boulder and in 1992, no trace of the house nor chimney can be seen on the surface.

> "Gideon afterwards built a frame house, and still later he and his son John built the commodious and pleasant house from which three successful generations of occupants have been carried to their graves."

Wm Heywood Just peace.

In a deed dated 15 February 1780, Gideon and Sarah Angell sold all his rights in the real estate of his honored father, Abiah Angell, late of Smithfield, RI, by his last will for the sum of £2,100 to Silas Arnold of Smithfield (Smithfield Deed 7:289). Gideon signed this deed and Sarah made her mark. This cut the final ties Gideon had to Rhode Island, and we have no evidence that he ever travelled back to visit, although both brothers Eber and Benjamin returned to the Smithfield area after a few years.

Once settled in Wendell, Gideon served the town in many capacities, with particular emphasis on the church and schools. He was selectman in 1784. He served on the committee to build the meeting house in 1785 and served on the committee to account for the ministerial land and to choose the first minister to settle in the town. He was chosen a deacon on 27 March 1795 and it was voted that public worship occur half the time at the school house and half the time at the home of Gideon Angell.

Gideon collected the penny tax in 1795 and served on the committee to provide school masters and mistresses in the district. He was on the committee for settling accounts with selectmen in 1796 and served as a grand juryman for one year in Cheshire County 14 March 1798. Gideon was among those who chose the spot a little west of Mr. Joseph Silloways house for the new town house on 10 March 1802. He served on the road alterations committee in 1783, was highway surveyor in 1789, 1791, 1794, 1795, 1796, 1800, 1802; and was fence viewer in 1796, 1797, 1800, 1803, 1807 and 1808. This last service in 1808 when Gideon was in his early sixties marked his final appearance in town office (Wendell Town Records).

Over the years, Gideon took many opportunities to add to his land holdings. In 1781 at a tax sale, Gideon Angell purchased the right of John Huntington to 30 acres in lot #6 of the 75 acre lots (Cheshire Deed 32:22). That same year, he purchased Joshua Whitney's right to the lot #5 in the 4th Range (Cheshire Deed 23:393). From Jonathan Call of Newburyport, MA, baker, Gideon purchased 50 acres next to old Smithfield neighbor Nehemiah Woodward 21 February 1791 (Cheshire Deed 21:229).

Nehemiah Woodward and Sarah's brothers, were part of the cluster of relocated Smithfield men who made many depositions in the 1830s supporting each other in their petitions for Revolutionary War pensions.

From Nehemiah Woodward, minister of the Gospel, Gideon Angell purchased on 9 June 1794 an entire 75 acre lot, #17 in the 3rd Range, that had been granted to the first settled minister (Cheshire Deed 23:373). From this same Nehemiah Woodward, Gideon purchased part of the 75 acre lot in the First Division of Lot #7 in the 9th Range in Wendell on 7 July 1793 (Cheshire Deed 21:223). It is likely that Nehemiah Woodward was a cousin to Sarah (Young) Angell. Sarah's father had a sister, Anne, who married Thomas Woodward, and whose family lived near the Youngs in Smithfield. Nehemiah Woodward was probably a child or grandchild of this family, but records are lacking to allow a certain conclusion. At any rate, in all his appearances with the Angells and Youngs, Nehemiah Woodward behaves like a relative or at least a very close friend.

Sarah's cousin, Israel Bryant, who had also made the move from Smithfield to Wendell, sold his part of lot #3 in the 2nd Range on 31 October 1800 to Gideon Angell (Cheshire Deed 44:564). Less than a year later, Gideon spent $19 to purchase the residue of the lot Nathaniel Treadwell of Portsmouth, merchant, had sold to Joshua Whitney of Wendell (Cheshire Deed 72:439).

On 2 June 1801, Gideon Angell of Wendell, yeoman, purchased, "the farm on which I now dwell," with barn and buildings from Joshua Whitney of Wendell, gentleman for $800, it being one half of lot 5 in the 4th Range of 75 acre lots, next to the land of Joseph Chase (Cheshire Deed 44:561-2). On 20 September 1802 he purchased land formerly owned by William Gage from Joseph Chase (Cheshire Deed 47:326).

From Obediah Dickinson of Northfield, MA, Gideon purchased part of lots #9 and #2 in the 3rd Division near the Newport line for $800 14 June 1803 (Cheshire Deed 45:409). A highway was laid out beside his house on the road that goes by Smith Angell's house in 1807 and another was laid out across his pasture in 1821 (Sunapee Town Records, p.10).

Although he left no will, Gideon provided land for his children. He sold to John Angell of Wendell part of lots #1 and #2 in the 3rd Division on 7 March 1814 (Cheshire Deed 64:436). He sold 68 acres to his son David Angell of Wendell bordering on the schoolhouse lot 21 October 1816 (Cheshire Deed 76:274).

To son Smith Angell he sold part of lot #7 in the 3rd Range, which Gideon had purchased from Nehemiah Woodward (Cheshire Deed 94:536, 20 October 1818) and "the farm where the said Smith Angell now lives," to him on 4 November 1818 (Cheshire Deed 94:597).

On 4 November 1818, Gideon Angell of Cheshire County sold for $2000 to his son John Angell, yeoman, the bulk of his remaining real estate, calling it "the farm which I now live on scituate in Wendell with the house barn and buildings thereon" and also one other piece south of the road containing 12½ acres adjoining David Angell's land, which he had bought of Israel Bryant; also another piece south of the road leading by the farm bordered by David Angell and Smith Angell, about 147 acres (Sullivan Deed 10:68). This deed was acknowledged the same day, and although it dealt with the homestead land, Gideon's wife, Sarah, did not release her dower. Since the dower rights were often omitted from the body of the deed and only alluded to specifically at the time of acknowledgement, Sarah may never have seen the deed. It was not recorded until 24 September 1832, many years after her death, and about a year before Gideon died.

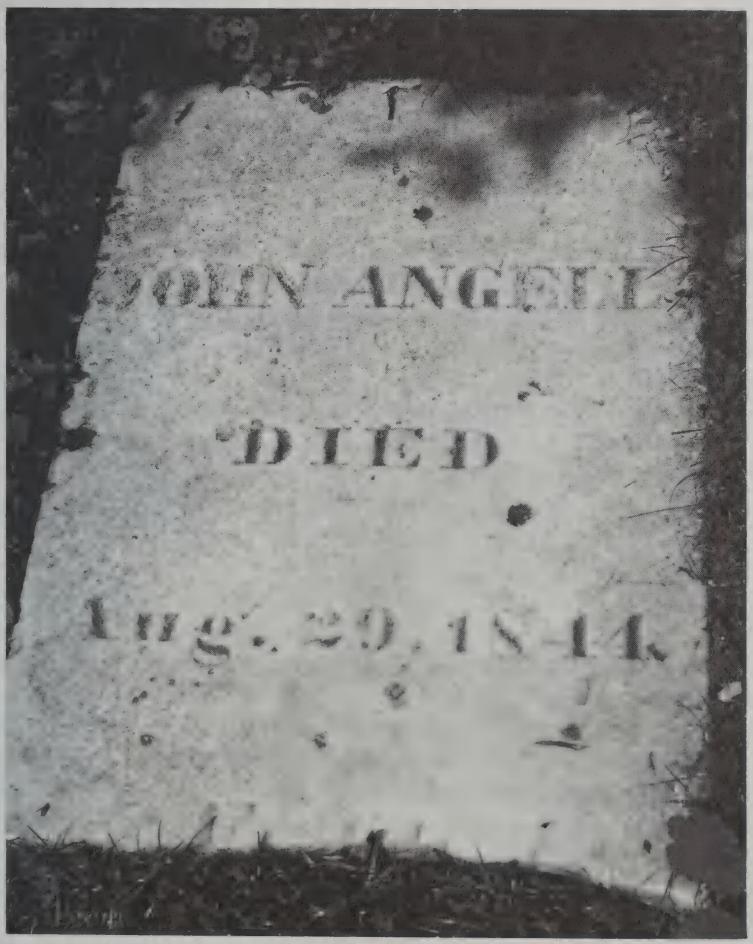
A contemporary gravestone rests near the home John built in Wendell, and a modern stone marks his actual grave in the South Sunapee Cemetery.



Gravestone of John Angell

John was an infant when his parents removed from Smithfield and settled in the wilderness that was to become Sunapee, NH. As part of the second generation of settlers whose burgeoning population was being augmented by additional settlers coming up the Connecticut River Valley, he did not have the relatively high profile enjoyed by his father. He did serve as Highway Surveyor for the Town of Wendell, NH in the years 1820-1822, and 1824, but after that had little to do with town or church government.

The Sullivan County Court of Common Pleas did not discriminate between John Sr. and his son, John Jr., so it is not clear which man took the following actions. At the October 1840 term, John Angell of Wendell, yeoman, sued Daniel S. Currier of Wendell, yeoman, who was called three times, but failed to appear. Angell won $22.37 in damages and $9.78 in costs by default (Sullivan Court 1840 #245). John Angell of Wendell, yeoman, sued his relative Welcome A. Angell of Wendell, laborer, in the October 1842 term. Welcome failed to appear and John Angell recovered $14.23 damages and $6.30 in costs by default (Sullivan Court 1842).

On 1 November 1808, John Angell of Wendell, yeoman, purchased land bounded by David Angell, Israel Bryant and Gideon Angell from Robert Woodward of Wendell, yeoman for $300 (Cheshire Deed 66:418). John Angell purchased two tracts of land from his father, Gideon Angell, including, "the farm which I now live on in Wendell with the house, barn, and building thereon," plus 12½ acres and 147 acres on 4 November 1818 (Sullivan Deed 10:68) and 132 acres, part of lots #1 and #2 in the 3rd Division on 7 March 1814 (Cheshire Deed 64:436).

John disposed of some of his land to his eldest son before his death. On 24 September 1832, the same day that he recorded the deed his father, Gideon, had given him fourteen years earlier, John deeded two parcels of land in Wendell containing about 50 acres to his son, John Angell Jr. for $700 (Sullivan Deed 10:69).

John Angell died intestate. His widow declined administration and J.D. Nettleton was appointed in her stead (Sullivan Probate #103-A). On 16 October 1844, Rebecca petitioned for an allowance from the estate for her support. As her dower, on 26 October 1844, the court caused the following property to be set off for her use: the 2 front square rooms in the house front entry, the bedroom in the west end of chambers, the cellar under the two square rooms, priviledge to the buttery, the east part of the east woodshed (except a spaceway to the backhouse), the north part of the hog pen and a priviledge to pass to and from the same, also the woodhouse and to both wells at the house and two small parcels of land bounded on land of Welcome Angell, Hiram Angell and Gideon Angell.

The inventory of John Angell, late of Wendell, was brought to the court 18 September 1844 by William Young, Bailey Pillsbury and Silvan S. Wilcox:

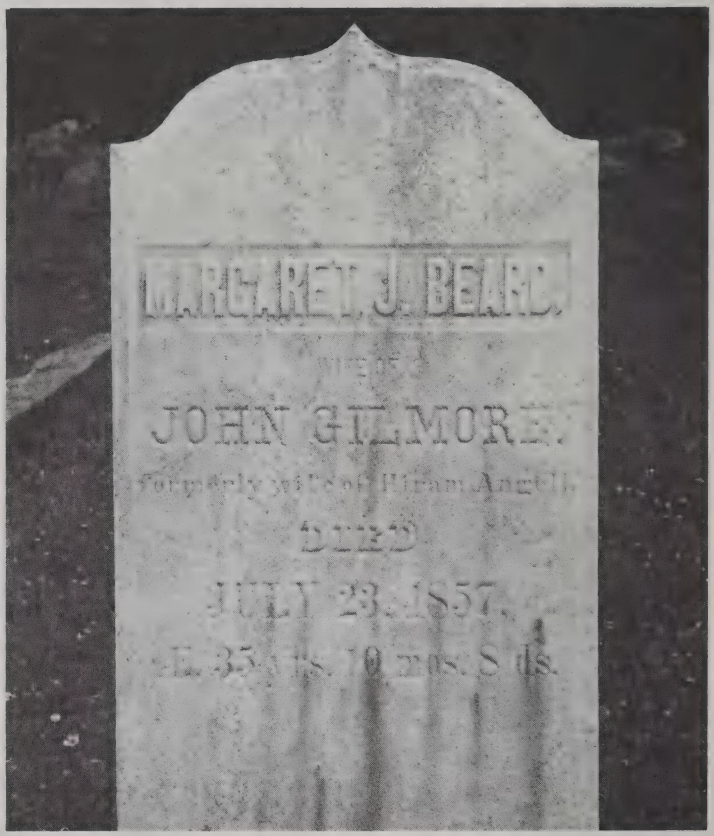
Hiram Angell

Margaret J. Angell

Gravestone of Hiram Angell



Gravestone of Margaret Jane (Beard)(Angell) Gilmore

Margaret Jane married second Newport, NH 8 June 1852 (NHVR) JOHN GILMORE, born circa 1816 (age at second marriage), died between 1866 (when his last child was born) and 20 June 1870 when a guardianship was taken for that child (Hillsborough Probate #2528), son of Whitefield[4] (James[3], Whitefield[2], James[1]) and Mary (Robb) Gilmore.

Two years after Margaret Jane's death, Gilmore married second New Boston, NH 18 October 1859 (NHVR) to her first cousin Ann Augusta[4] Beard, born circa 1828 (age at marriage), died Ambia, IN after 21 December 1880, when she signed a receipt for legacies from her father's estate (Hillsborough Probate #7056), and before 27 December 1883 when her siblings claimed they were her only heirs (Hillsborough Probate #7056), daughter of William[3] (William[2], Andrew[1]) and Eleanor (McMillen) Beard.

John and Ann Gilmore had two daughters; Margaret Jane Gilmore, who died 2 May 1864, age 3 years, 3 months, 16 days (gravestone, Maple Street Cemetery, Newport, where she is buried in the plot with Margaret Jane [Beard][Angell] Gilmore) and Esther H. Gilmore, born New Boston, NH circa 1866 (1870 census, Hillsborough County, p.211) and died between 20 June 1870 when her mother was appointed her guardian (Hillsborough Probate #2528), and 27 December 1883 when her aunts and uncle claimed they were her mother's only heirs (Hillsborough Probate 7056).

Hiram was elected Highway Surveyor for the town of Wendell, NH in 1840 and 1842. He was also Fence viewer in 1840 and served as Selectman in 1843. It is likely that not long after his marriage, Hiram moved his family to Newport, since he held no further positions in Wendell. He may also have been quite sickly, and unable to do much, since it is believed that he suffered from consumption.

Recent residents of the original Angell farm in Sunapee said that at least one of the large stone walls on the property was built by Hiram Angell.

At the death of his father, Hiram signed a number of documents for his mother, "Rebecca Angell By Hiram Angell" (Sullivan Probate #103-A). Part of the dower land from his father's estate bordered on land of Hiram Angell.

From his brother, Erastus Angell of Wendell, Hiram Angell of Wendell purchased approximately 57 acres of land in Wendell bordering land of Smith Angell for $410 on 18 November 1840 (Sullivan Deed 28:123). It is likely that at this time Erastus moved from Wendell to Newport.

Shortly after their marriage, Hiram and Margaret J. Angell of Wendell quitclaimed their rights in the farm formerly owned by his father John Angell, deceased, except the right of dower set off to his mother, Rebecca Angell, to brother John Angell for $400 on 26 October 1844. Erastus Angell and his wife, Fanny, also quitclaimed their rights to John for the same sum on the same day (Sullivan Deeds 37:238-9). The next day, Hiram and Margaret J. Angell sold the 57 acres Hiram had purchased from Erastus to John Angell for $400. This reunited all the lands owned by Gideon's son John, except the dower lands, into the hands of John's eldest son John.

Hiram and Margaret Jane, and their daughter, Emily Jane, moved to Newport shortly after quitclaiming to John. It is likely that they lived with or near Erastus Angell and his family. While in Newport, Hiram and Margaret Jane sold the William Dow farm which straddled Newport and Wendell and had been owned by father John Angell, to William Cutts of Newbury, NH for $1300 on 16 August 1848 (Sullivan Deed 45:522).

Hiram's early death appears to have been the result of illness, possibly consumption, since one of the debts of the estate was a hefty bill from Dr. Hatch for expenses of the last sickness, $26.10 (Sullivan Probate 2599-A).

The widow declined administration of the estate and her father, Andrew Beard, was nominated in her place 20 June 1849 (ibid.). The judge allowed the widow $250.00 from the estate for her support.

Among the probate documents was a list of items paid by the administrator:

A guardian, Bailey Pillsbury, was appointed 22 October 1851 to see to the rights of the only child, Emily Jane Angell (Sullivan Probate #2578-A). Margaret Jane and Emily Jane continued to live with the family of Erastus Angell in Newport until Margaret Jane's second marriage.

Margaret Jane Gilmore and her husband, John, witnessed two deeds of her brother, John Beard, both on 16 January 1854 in Newport (Sullivan Deeds 57:357-360).

Emily J Angell

circa 1862

In 1849, when Emily Jane was only four, her father died, and two years later at the death of her grandmother, Rebecca (Way) Angell, a guardian, Bailey Pillsbury of Sunapee, was appointed to look out for her one quarter interest in her grandmother's dower. Permission to sell this dower land was given by the Probate Court and on 31 March 1852 an auction was held at John Angell's house, and the land was purchased by him for $175 in a deed signed 3 April 1852 (Sullivan Deed 55:300-2). The resulting money was invested for Emily's benefit.

Emily was living with her widowed mother in the household of Erastus Angell in Newport when the 1850 census was taken. Either when her mother remarried or at her mother's death, Emily Jane went to live on the homestead farm in Sunapee with her Uncle John Angell.

Her guardian resigned his trust 24 November 1858 and a new guardian, Silvan S. Wilcox, was appointed the same day. The $103.61 from her father's estate and the proceeds of the sale of her grandparents' land were well invested, and when the money was released to her at her majority, despite paying her expenses for many years, the balance was greater than the original sums.

In January of 1884, Emily Jane Ordway received a legacy of $100.00 from the will of her great-uncle John Cochran, as one of two surviving heirs of her grandmother, Elizabeth (Cochran) Beard (Hillsborough Probate #8616).

Her sudden death was most unexpected, as is seen in her obituary:

> Entered Into Rest.
> Mrs. Emily J. Ordway died very suddenly of cerebral hemorrhage, on Monday morning, Aug. 29, aged 65 years and 7 months. The sudden passing away came as a great shock to her family and many friends. She was born in Sunapee, the only child of Hiram and Magaret [sic] Angell. In early life she was left an orphan, and lived with her uncle, John Angell. Sept. 5 1865 she was united in marriage with S.B. Ordway, who, with three sons George and Chester of this town, and Arthur of Ashland, Ohio, are left to mourn her loss. Another son, Emery died five years ago. She was a devoted wife and mother, and a kind neighbor, loved by all. She was a constant attendant of the Baptist church of which she was a member - also a member of the Woman's Relief Corps, of the G.A.R.
> Funeral services were held from the house on Maple ave., attended by Rev. O.C. Sargent, who spoke comforting words to the mourning family. The beautiful hymns she so much loved - "Jesus Lover of my Soul," and "Nearer my God to Thee," were sweetly sung by Mrs. Prescott, Mrs. Patten, Messrs. Hawkins and Pierce. The services were in charge of F.M. Spaulding, and she was laid to rest amid a profusion of beautiful flowers, in Mountain View cemetery. The bearers were Charles Freeman, Henry Sanders, George O. Neil and Walter Pierce.

ADAMS

JAMES[1] ADAMS, born likely Argyleshire, Scotland before 1680; died Londonderry, NH between 5 March 1742/3 and 25 May 1743 (NH State Papers, XXXIII:148-9); married north of Ireland circa 1700 ELIZABETH ELDER, born say 1680s, living 5 March 1742/3 (named in husband's will, ibid.), daughter or sister of JOHN ELDER.

According to tradition, James Adams was born in Argyleshire and moved before 1700 to Ulster, possibly to Aghadowey, Londonderry, or to Ballywattick, Antrim (Andrew N. Adams, The Descendants of James and William Adams of Londonderry, Now Derry, N.H. [Rutland: Tuttle Co., 1894], pp.14-23). He married and his children were born in Ulster. Tradition further says that when his youngest son, James, was ten years old, the family came to America, placing the date of the immigration in 1721.

They settled briefly in Billerica, MA and while there, on 27 March 1722, James purchased of General James McNeal the McNeal homestead in Nutfield along with a second-division lot, totalling 140 acres plus improvements (NHPD 12:573). This evidently included McNeal's proprietary rights, because James Adams was assigned James McNeal's one hundred acres by the selectmen of Londonderry on 28 January 1726/7 (NHPD 15:512). James Gilmore of Londonderry, wheelwright, who had also purchased meadowland from General McNeal, sold part of it to James Adams 30 March 1730/1 (NHPD 19:370). He sold a small amount of the meadow he bought from McNeal to Alexander McMurphy of Londonderry for £6 on 5 March 1726/7 and his wife Elizabeth released her dower (NHPD 16:435).

In 1727, James Adams was one of the many men who signed the Oath of Allegiance in Londonderry (NH State Papers XXX:85).

James Thomson of Londonderry, husbandman, sold him a small strip of upland on 15 March 1730/1 (NHPD 19:369) and on the same day, James Adams sold a piece of meadow to this same James Thomson (NHPD 42:264). Samuel Rankin of Londonderry, innholder, sold lot #25, one hundred acres in Chester, to James Adams of Londonderry, husbandman, on 25 April 1739, and another, smaller lot in Chester on 6 April 1741 (NHPD 25:533 and 25:534).

James Adams of Londonderry, yeoman, gave individual deeds to his sons, John and James, for love and affection, on 15 March 1737/8, 25 March 1741 and 3 March 1740/1 (NHPD 23:297; 25:146; 25:155). He also remembered his son Robert of Newcastle, York County, then Massachusetts, yeoman, with 66 acres in Londonderry. Elizabeth released her dower to this land 25 March 1741 (NHPD 25:147).

There is speculation that William Adams, who settled in Londonderry, NH, was a younger brother .

James made a will, to which he made his mark:

> In the name of God Amen I James Adams of Londonderry within the Province of New Hampshire in New England Husbandman Being Sick and full of Pain but of Sound mind and memory thanks be Given to God therefore, Calling unto mind the mortality of my Body and that it is appointed for all men once to die do make and ordain this my last Will and Testament that is to Say Principaly and first of all I Give and Recomend my Soul into the Hands of God that Gave it, and my Body I Recomend to the Earth to be Burried in a Decent Christian manner at the Discretion of my Executors nothing Doubting but that at the Generall Resurection I Shall Receive the Same again by the Mighty Power of God and as touching Such worldly Estate wherewith it hath pleased God to Bless me in this life I Give Devise and Dispose of the Same in the following manner and form

One proven captivity began 20 October 1746 and ended 16 August 1747. He petitioned for relief saying that he was obliged to sell what small stock he had at the beginning of the war to prevent its falling into the enemy's hands and that he had been a sergeant in the service about fifteen months (ibid.).

ASHTON

The Ashtons appear abruptly in the St Albans Abbey, Hertfordshire parish register at the beginning of the 1600s. There is evidence of at least one family with several adult or near-adult males present. No clues have been found suggesting an earlier location for this family, and few Ashton entries appear in this parish after the 1680s. Beyond the parish registers, only the 1687 will of James Ashton and a few references gleaned from records of the American immigrants add to our knowledge of the family. A reconstruction of the Ashtons based on these slim sources is presented below, and for those who might care to try their own reconstruction, abstracts from the parish register follow it.

JAMES[A] ASHTON, born say 1580 or earlier; buried St Albans Abbey 27 May 1651; presuming an only wife, he married before 1604 ALICE _____, born say 1580s, buried St Albans Abbey 22 May 1643.

In her will, written 21 October 1694, Alice (Ashton) Angell, bequeathed one "Trunke & a Deske which my mother gave to me," to her own daughter, also named Alice (ERP VII:77-91). These two objects were valued at 10 shillings in Alice Angell's 1695 inventory (ibid.).

Although the names they chose for their own children were not unusual, among the given names borne by their grandchildren were Epenetus, Nedabiah, Discovered, Hope, and Amphillis.

Children, surname ASHTON:

i. JAMES[1], baptized St Albans Abbey 4 March 1603/4; certainly alive 27 October 1682 when his nephew requests land against the lot of his uncle James Ashton (ERP XVII:8) and possibly alive in 1691/2 when his meadow is a boundary and he is not called deceased (ERP XXI:4-5).

James Ashton was literate and his clear signature is often seen on early Providence records. He first appeared in Rhode Island when he witnessed the deed of William Arnold to Thomas Olney on 11 11mo 1642 (ERP I:64-6), but doubtless he was in the colonies some little time before this. He purchased his homelot on Wickenden Street, originally owned by Hugh Bewitt, in 1644 and land was laid out to James "Eshton," sixty acres and one share of meadow including a little of Eddy Pond, in 1648 (ERP XV:21).

Epenetus Olney was given a strip of land "to run ye sayd Bredth to ye sea Channell, against fronts of ye lotts of James Aston," 27 October 1682 (ERP VIII:117). In his bill requesting this land he says, "I Desire you would Grant me liberty to have forty Foot Square of land above high water marke, against ye lotts of my Uncle James Aston: and in soe Doeing you will oblige yor freind:" 27 October 1682 (ERP XVII:8). The deed for this land and a warehouse lott was laid out 3 June 1682 (ERP XIV:38). He was called uncle by John Angell, who deposed on 14 December 1716 that in 1667 his uncle, James Ashton had asked him to care for Ashton's 60 acre lot (Austin, p.4).

Ashton's public service was extensive and his value to the community acknowledged very soon after his settlement. He was called to serve on the trial of Indians 2 June 1649 (ERP XV:25). He went to Portsmouth, RI in the respectable position of Commissioner in 1650 and in 1651 and was paid, with others, £2.12.04 for the latter service (ERP XV:48). He was Commissioner again in 1652, 1653, and 1663 (ERP II:52,68; III:35, XV:66). He was a grandjuryman in 1662 (ERP III:31) and a juryman in 1652, 1655/6, 1657, 1659, 1660, and 1663 (ERP II:62,69,92,103,116,120,132,133; III:37). He is on a list of men who were at court 4 May 1669 (ERP XV:73). He held town office 7 4mo 1652 (ERP II:64 fragment).

Ashton served on the commission gathered to advise about making war upon the Dutch 29 3mo 1653 (ERP II:76). With others he was ordered to take fines from absent soldiers 10 7mo 1654 (ERP II:77).

He was added to the Town Council for the levying of the rate 22 September 1659 (ERP II:119). His accounting skills ensured that he was asked to do the levying many times, including the years 1662 and 1663 (ERP III:28,31,43).

Ashton was backup to Valentine Whitman in choice for Constable 6 June 1659 while in his mid-fifties (ERP II:115). With this same Valentine Whitman he was chosen surveyor for the repairing of highways in 1667 (ERP III:105). He was a Deputy to the Court of Election in May 1665 (ERP III:62).

He was chosen one of the four men sent out to talk to the inhabitants who opposed the fencing in of the neck and learn their reasons for opposition in December 1666 (ERP III:89). He swore allegiance to King Charles 31 May 1666 (ERP III:101).

With others he conducted the inquisition post mortem on Margaret Goodwin, reporting, as near as they could judge, "that either the terriblenes of the crack of thunder on the second of the third moneth 16[ ] or the coldnes of the night, being she was naked, did kill her" dated 4 3mo 1651 (but more likely a clerical error for 1657, ERP II:104).

James Ashton witnessed the written request of John Warner, who, returning to Old England, desired Robert Williams, Thomas Olney and Thomas Harris and others to watch over his child, Rachel Warner (Warwick TR, pp.328-9, 11 July 1652).

James Ashton was one of those who had paid their purchase money and had quittances circa 1650 (ERP II:31). He is called a purchaser in 1661 (ERP III:12). Land was granted at James Ashton's house prior to 27 11mo 1650 (ERP II:55), when he exchanged land with William Hawkins (ERP II:11). He drew lot #38 in the 1665 Seven Mile Division (ERP III:72), lot #83 in 1675 in the division west of Seven Mile Line (ERP IV:46) and lot #75 in a later division that year (ERP IV:48). He received an additional 2½ acres of land granted to make up his homelot size 27 April 1657, later laid out on the side of Bayliff's Cove between the great swamp and the salt marsh (ERP II:102-106). He drew lot #38 in the division of 17 March 1683/4 (ERP IV:66, XVII:32). Ashton traded small pieces of land with William Carpenter of Pautuxett 10 February 1661 (sic) (ERP I:84, 92).

He witnessed many deeds, including that of Thomas Olney 27 July 1659 (ERP XIV:66), of William Arnold on 27 April 1660 (ERP I:60), of John Jones to Thomas Olney Sr. 11 February 1661[/2] (ERP XIV:88) and of Christopher Unthank to Thomas Roberts 1 June 1663 (ERP XX:171).

On 29 October 1663, James Ashton and Joshua Winsor made a bond of arbitration, referring all matters in difference between them regarding land in Providence called Mathew Weston's Lot, to Mr. John Wickes and Edmund Calverley of Warwick (ERP I:37). James Ashton agreed to forfeit his lot "that now I dwell upon, the houses only Exepted, in Case we doe not stand to ye award of our arbitrators..." 31 October 1663 (ERP XV:102). This agreement set to rest a long-standing disagreement, since as early as 8 September 1660, Roger Williams had written to John Winthrop Jr. about the controversy between Joshua Windsor "(a former servant of Your Fathers)," Windsor wishing Winthrop to come by and resolve the issue and Ashton agreeing to Winthrop as arbitor (Roger Williams' Correspondence, 2:499-500).

Ashton paid a rate of 10s on 2 September 1650 (ERP XV:33). He paid a rate of 3s 9d in the £51 Rate, a fairly low assessment, on 3 June 1671 (ERP XV:136). In a letter of 1 April 1676, Roger Williams reported to his brother Richard Williams that the Indians by "barbarous Hands hath burnt pardons Houses Wickendens Sucklins, Robert Hawkins J. Ashtons, T. Hopkins" (Correspondence of Roger Williams, 2:721). Ashton's subsequent tax payments showed very modest wealth, making it doubtful that he rebuilt immediately after he was burned out. Despite the fire, he paid a rate of 3s 1½d in the £27 rate of 1 July 1679 (ERP XV:188). On the £4 rate he paid 6d and on the £7 rate he paid 9d on 16 July 1680 (ERP XV:210). One shilling 3 pence was paid on the right of James Ashton 16 July 1680 (ERP XV:214). On 29 October 1684, James Ashton paid a rate of 1s 3d (ERP XVII:47). He paid 1s 1d in rates set 1 September 1687 (ERP XVII:101), 6d on 31 October 1687 (ERP XVII:110) and 8d in the country rate of August 1688 (ERP XVII:125).

Thomas Olney Jr. wrote to the town of Providence 10 February 1681[/2] saying that he wished for a forty foot strip of land for a warehouse and wharf lying against James Ashton's lot and also the same grant to James Ashton (ERP XV:226), and so, on that same date, James Ashton was granted a forty-foot piece of land for a highway where his house stood in the west end of Providence (ERP VIII:109).

James Ashton is called, "formerly inhabetant of ye afore said Towne of Providence," in a deed dated 2 February 1673 (ERP XIV:103-4). This may be a reference to James Ashton of Middletown, NJ, who is not distinguished from the elder James[1] in any manner during the short period in which they both must have lived in Providence. Land "formerly belonging to James Ashton," is mentioned in the laying out of land to Eliezer Arnold 28 January 1691/2 (ERP XIV:224). The meadow of James Ashton is mentioned in Lawrence Wilkinson's deed of 31 August 1691 (ERP XX:263). Land was laid out to Samuel Whipple in the right of James Ashton on 1 February 1691/2, and on 8 January 1693/4 mentioning the meadow formerly James Ashtons (ERP XXI:4-6). The land which formerly belonged to James Ashton then of Providence, is mentioned in the deed of Epenetus Olney 17 March 1708/9 (ERP XX:290).

With Samuell Whipple, Thomas Whipple sold to Stephen Hardin 3 acres in the Great Meadow, that is the share of meadow which formerly belonged to James Ashton formerly of Providence on 30 December 1712 (ERP XXI:56). The land of James Ashton, deceased is mentioned in September 1738 (ERP IX:77). Samuel Whipple changed his sixty acres of land which he bought of James Ashton near Nonpluss 27 April 1695 (ERP XI:16).

A number of men named Ashton of a later generation have been assigned to the family of this James Ashton of Providence, even though there is no evidence that James was ever married, nor has any connection been spelled out in deeds or probate between them. If James Ashton had adult sons, why did he request his nephew John Angell to take care of his meadow in 1667? A James Ashton married Deliverance, the daughter of John Throckmorton of Providence, RI in the 1660s. This James Ashton was of Rhode Island and settled in Middletown, NJ in 1665, dying before 19 May 1705 when his widow Deliverance took administration of his estate. They had seven children: James, John, Mary, Alice, Rebecca, Deliverance and Joseph. There may be a relationship between this James and James Ashton of St Albans Abbey and Providence, RI, but what it may be has not been determined.

\+ ii. MARIE, baptized St Albans Abbey 25 August 1605; died probably between 1645 (birth of last known child) and 15 7mo 1659 when her husband Thomas refers to persons who might claim thirds in a piece of land he was selling (ERP V:77-8); married St Albans Abbey 16 September 1629 THOMAS[1] OLNEY (see Olney Chapter).

BARNES

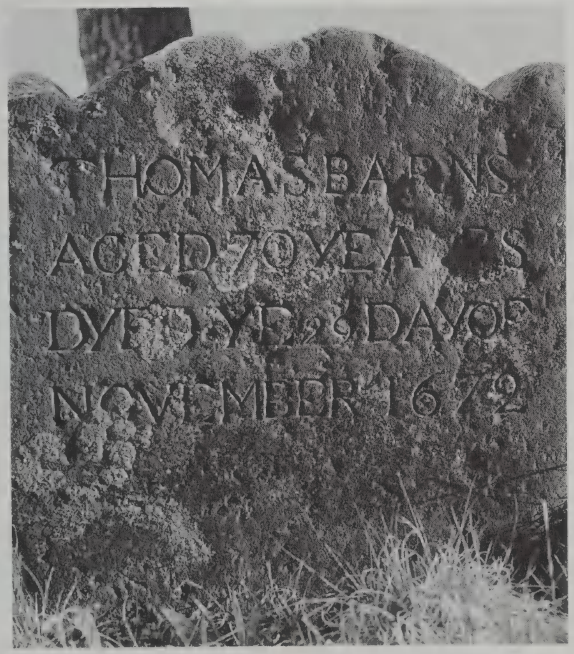
THOMAS[1] BARNES, born England circa 1602 (calculated from age at death); died Hingham, MA 29 November 1672 aged 70 years (gravestone, Ship Church cemetery, Hingham); married before 1643 ANNA _____, born say late 1610s, living Hingham 13 December 1672 when her husband's inventory was taken under her supervision.

The original gravestone of Thomas Barnes remains in the cemetery behind the historic Ship Church in Hingham. It no longer marks the site of his grave, however, joining other old stones placed in the circle surrounding the Founders' Monument.



Gravestone of Thomas Barnes

Thomas Barnes received a houselot in Hingham in 1637, as well as a planting lot of five acres on the "Playne neck." In 1638 he received a great lot of ten acres on the "Great Playne" first Furlong. In 1646, he purchased Stephen Payne's planting lot at Old Planters Hill and bought a piece of land of Joseph Andrew on the same hill. One year later, he received 2 acres of salt marsh in Conyhassett, the 23rd lot in the first division, and in the third division, he drew lot 19, the sixth lot over the river (Hingham land records, NEHGS SG I Series A, S-S62 [d]).

Thomas Barnes was a freeman in 1645 (Mass. Bay Records II:294). He petitioned to settle at Whitehead Neck (undated, Mass. Archives 112:17). He served Hingham as constable, and notified John Otis and John Mansfield of a court action concerning their claim to Hingham land (Mass. Archives 39:5).

His will, written about eighteen months before his death, establishes that his son, Thomas, was still living in 1671:

> The 29 of Aprill 1671

Anna Barnes made Oath that this paper containes a just & true inventory of the Estate of her late husband Thomas Barnes deceased to the best of her knowledge & that when she know of more she will discover the same this was then done.
(Suffolk Probate #628)

Savage, in his Genealogical Dictionary of New England, says that Thomas' son, Thomas, died young, but the foregoing will shows that the son Thomas was living in 1671. If this is the same Thomas baptized in 1643 by Rev. Hobart, then he would have reached at least the age of 29 by the date of his father's will. Although it is has been speculated that Thomas of Swansea was a son of this Thomas, it has never been proven. A strong circumstantial case can be built based on the evidence that this Thomas Barnes did indeed live to adulthood, that his age at death would indicate a birth circa 1642, which is a close match with the baptismal date for this Thomas[2] and finally, Thomas of Hingham calls himself a weaver in his will. In the inventory of Thomas of Swansea are eight spinning wheels, weavers' looms, as well as other cloth making apparatus.

Suffolk deeds show that Thomas did not give this son any land by deed, so it is likely that he settled a sum on him at an earlier date, or perhaps set him up in business as a weaver.

THOMAS[2] BARNES (Thomas[1]), baptized Hingham, MA 21 May 1643 (Hobart Journal, p.8), but perhaps a few years old at that time, i.e., born say 1641; died Swansea, MA 8 June 1706, "Being in the Sixty fifth year of his age (SVR, p.25); married first Medfield, MA 16 May 1666 (MVR, p.113) PRUDENCE[2] ALBEE, born say 1640s, died between 1689 and 1694 (last child and remarriage of husband), daughter of BENJAMIN[1] and HANNAH (MILLER) ALBEE; married second at Providence but recorded Swansea 12 November 1694 (SVR p.25) ELIZABETH (BAKER) KING, born Ipswich, MA say 1645, died Swansea 27 November 1708 (SVR, p.37), daughter of JOHN and ELIZABETH (_____) BAKER.

Elizabeth Baker had married first as his third wife 5 February 1672 Clement King, with whom she had six children: John, Joanna, Ebenezer, James, Elizabeth and Thomas (King genealogy, p.8). Clement King had married first Joanna Pratt, with whom he had a daughter, Joanna, born Marshfield, MA 28 September 1655. He married second Susannah Atwood, with whom he had Susannah and an unnamed child.

Thomas Barnes was an important figure in the Baptist Church in Swansea, MA. He was fully assented to 31 5mo 1673 after applying as follows,

> Tho: Barnes proposed and was according to the former order of the church to be propounded the next day; and to [be] admitted this day moneth, if there be no materiall objection proved against him 3d of 5mo [1673] (Register 139[1985]:36)

Thomas Barnes was one of the witnesses for Robert Mill, who charged the Swansea church with not giving him a hearing on the reasons for his withdrawal from the church 8 8mo 1674 (Register 139[1985]:36).

With Nicholas Tanner, Thomas Barnes appraised the estate of John Medbery of Swansea in 1694 (Bristol Co. Probate 1:8).

Although his will is undated, it would appear that it was written several years before Thomas' death, for he names his youngest son, Samuel, executor, but appoints overseers because Samuel although 21 at his father's death was "yet young and tender of years" at the writing.

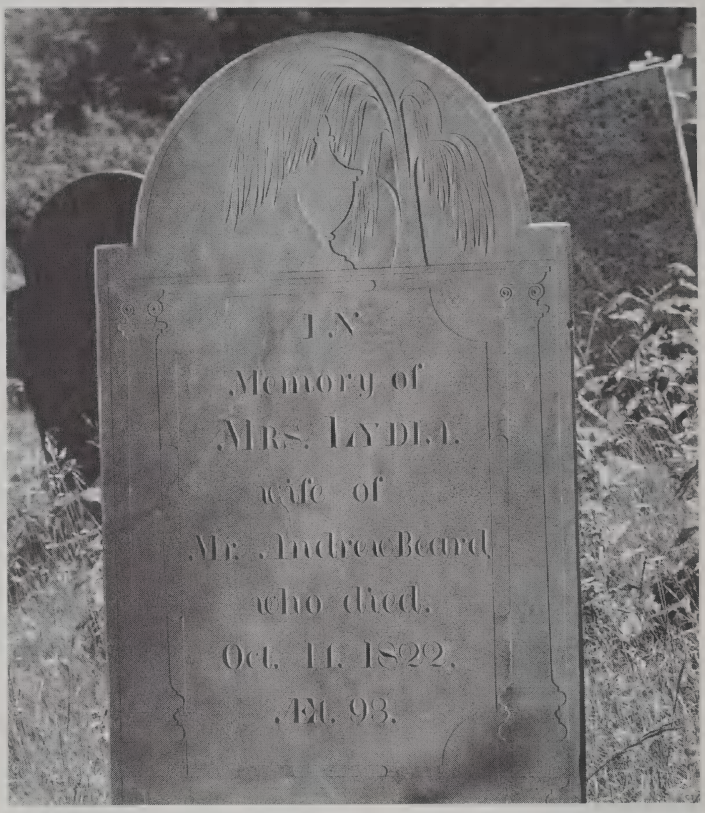
Gravestone of Andrew Beard



Gravestone of Lydia (Goardly) Beard

The History of Goffstown (p.185) says Andrew Beard came to New England in 1766 and stopped briefly in Litchfield. The History of New Boston says that at the raising of his house, a man was accidentally killed (p.380).

Andrew lived a quiet and useful life as a blacksmith in New Boston, NH. Diarist Matthew Patten records "Wrote a lease from James Caldwells to Andrew Beard of John Caldwell Mcneills place in New Boston" (Patten Diary, 24 October 1769, p.233).

Andrew Beard of New Boston, blacksmith, deeded fifty acres in New Boston, part of lot #58 in the First Division, to his son William Beard for $250 on 18 March 1793. Andrew made his mark to this deed and was not joined by his wife, although she was living at this date (Hillsborough Deed 48:381).

Gravestone of William and Jane (Burns) Beard

Like his father, William was a blacksmith. He was a Revolutionary War soldier, and the History of New Boston has this to say about his service:

> William Beard was at work building a house for his father on their new farm, when the news came that the British were landing in Boston. With the leave of his father and mother he immediately repaired to Charlestown in defence of his country, was at the battle of Bunker's Hill, and was one of the forty volunteers who brought some cattle across the neck, under a raking fire of the enemy, in order to prevent their capture (History of New Boston, p.381).

William Beard was paid $4.00 for his service in Capt. Gordon Hutchin's Company under Colonel Stark, 4 October 1775, and was one of those who had his own blanket (NH State Papers XIV:181, 186). He appears in the list of Captain Gordon Hutchins' Company, Stark's Regiment as William Beard, age 23, of New Boston, husbandman (ibid., XVII:3).

Beard acknowledged receipt of milk money at the camp on Winter Hill on 7 February 1776 (ibid., XVI:926). Ensign William Beard marched from Lyndeborough (next to New Boston) to join the Northern Continental Army in July of 1777, and was discharged 26 September 1777 from Clark's Company after 69 days of service (ibid., XV:188, 163).

In 1777 he was commissioned an ensign and was one of the scouts who commenced the attack at the Battle of Bennington (History of New Boston, p.381).

After the war, William Beard was one of the many men who protested the suspension of the collection of the war rate in New Boston (New Boston Town Records, 1:184).

In 1780, William was a surveyor of highways for New Boston (ibid., B:127). He served in this capacity again more than ten years later, in 1791 (ibid., B:180).

In an unusual deed, on 24 May 1785, Joseph Beard of New Boston, yeoman, quitclaimed to his brother, William Beard of New Boston, yeoman, for £200, all rights Joseph might have in the estate of his father Andrew Beard, when Andrew should die, effectively selling his birthright in the lifetime of his father (Hillsborough Deed 14:213).

John and Mary McIntosh of Bedford sold one hundred acres in New Boston, part of lots #19, 21, 30 in the First Division, to William Beard of New Boston, yeoman, for £1400 on 1 April 1779 (Hillsborough Deed 10:495). Beard mortgaged this land for £35 30 September 1784 (Hillsborough Deed 12:11). Barnabas McGannas of Nottingham West, husbandman, sold to William Beard of New Boston, blacksmith, for £400 115 acres in Nottingham West on 4 September 1783 (Hillsborough Deed 12:13). William Beard, blacksmith, sold this land to Joseph Kelley on 10 July 1784 (Hillsborough Deed 13:155).

McIntosh bought back this land from William Beard of New Boston, yeoman, on 5 March 1785 (Hillsborough Deed 14:310). In an apparently conflicting deed, William Beard of New Boston, yeoman, sold a 100 acre farm in lots #19, 21 and 30 in the First Division to his brother, Joseph Beard of New Boston, yeoman, for £200 on 24 May 1785 (Hillsborough Deed 142:14). On 16 May 1785, Matthew Patten records, "...I writ a power of attorney from Smith to W^{m} Beard and took the acknowledgement of it" (Diary of Matthew Patten, p.505).

John Jordan of New Boston, yeoman, sold part of lot #14 in the First Division to William Beard of New Boston, yeoman, on 6 November 1792 (Hillsborough Deed 30:353). Joseph Brown of Chester, NH, husbandman, sold parts of lots #12, and 13 for $193 to William Beard of New Boston, yeoman, on 20 December 1803 (ibid., 91:77).

William Beard of New Boston, yeoman, sold part of lot #14 in the First Division in New Boston for $15 on 19 June 1809 (ibid., 105:608).

David Thompson of New Boston, yeoman, sold part of lot #13 in the First Division to William Beard of New Boston, yeoman, for $333 on 19 March 1811 (ibid., 91:79). He sold another part of this lot for $112 to Joseph Gregg on 10 March 1812 (ibid., 105:609). William Beard of New Boston, husbandman, sold part of lot #58 in the First Division and part of lot #14 First Division to Luther Richards 25 January 1813 (ibid., 119:273).

He sold fifty acres in lot #58 in the First Division to William Beard Jr. and Elias Dickey for $800 on 24 January 1831 (ibid., 165:394). He sold three tracts of land to William Beard Jr. on 24 January 1831 (ibid., 165:406).

Gravestone of Capt. Andrew Beard

Gravestone of Elizabeth (Cochran) Beard

At the time of his second marriage, he was styled "Lieut. Andrew Beard" (NBTR 2:406).

In 1831 and 1832, Andrew Beard and William Beard Jr. were the subjects of a number of financial executions by the Superior Court of Judicature and the Court of Common Pleas. Debts from $21.05 to $341.04 were claimed against their land (Hillsborough Executions 4:215,226, 243,249,264).

Several years later, in 1837, Andrew Beard moved to Newport, NH where, in a deed later partially destroyed by fire, he purchased eighty acres on East Mountain from Timothy and Susannah Perry of Newport for $600 on 7 March 1838 (Sullivan Deed 25:8 and Newport History, p.299). The date is reconstructed from the deed five years later when Andrew and Rachel Beard sold the same land to their son, John Beard of Newport, for $600, and cited their purchase from Perry as the source of their title (Sullivan Deed 35:114). Andrew mortgaged the land near the head of Beaver Brook 6 April 1839 and the mortgage was released 24 October 1843 (Sullivan Deed 25:12).

Seth and Dexter Richard and their wives, Fanny and Louisa, sold eighty acres in Newport to Andrew and Augustus Beard of Newport on 23 December 1848 (Sullivan Deed 45:288). Andrew and Augustus mortgaged sixty acres of this land 23 December 1848 and the mortgage was released 11 October 1853 (Sullivan Deed 45:289). Andrew and Rachel, Augustus and Nyrah Beard, all of Newport, sold this same land for $700 to John Hurd of Sunapee in a deed acknowledged the same day the mortgage was released (Sullivan Deed 58:25).

According to his obituary, Capt. Andrew Beard was > a man of much intelligence, and a worthy and much respected citizen. Capt. Beard was a native of New Boston, and had represented that town in the Legislature previous to his removal to Newport (Argus & Spectator, 6 April 1860, p.3).

His title, "Captain," came from his service in the militia in New Boston.

BECKWITH

MATTHEW[1] BECKWITH alias BECKET, born England circa 1612; died New London, CT 21 October 1680 (sic, probably 1681, since he was in court in September 1681 [NL Co Ct 4:3]), aged about 70, by

> "missing his way in a very dark night, fell from a Ledge of rocks about 20 or 30 foot high and beat out his braines against a stone he fell upon. Another man yt was wth him was wthin a yard of ye place but by gods Provide[nce] came not to such an end" (Register 9[1855]:50).

He married probably New London before 1643 MARY _____, born circa 1625 (CT Archives, Crimes and Misdemeanors III:202), living 13 December 1682 when she filed an amended inventory, dead before 30 January 1694 when her second husband remarried (TAG 21[1945]:263). Beckwith Notes 6:1 states that widow Mary (_____) Beckwith married second Samuel Buckland, and died by 1690 (TAG 22[1946]:51), but this is unsupported.

It has been suggested that the immigrant Matthew Beckwith was the son of one Marmaduke Beckwith of Yorkshire (The Beckwiths, p.17), but no proof of this connection has been seen. Onomastics expert George Redmonds of Huddersfield, England, expresses the following opinions on the Beckwith surname:

> Beckwith is a prolific Yorkshire name which derives from the locality now known as Beckwithshaw close to Harrogate. The place-name is first recorded circa 972 as "bec wudu" (i.e., beech wood) and was clearly Old English in origin. The present spelling, first evidenced in 1086, is a result of Scandinavian influence.
> The surname is recorded in 1351 and by 1379 there were several Beckwith families living in and around Clint, a village in Nidderdale. This expansion continued in the 16th and 17th centuries, during which time Beckwith spread to several other parts of Yorkshire. One result of this dispersal was a confusion with the name Beckett, made possible because the "w" of Beckwith was not pronounced colloquially. In view of the American evidence it is worth noting that this created an alias in the early 1600s, e.g., Reynold Beckwith/Beckit of Leeds (1605-8) and Richard Beckitt als Beckwith of Stanley near Wakefield (1641). It has been suggested that Matthew and Marmaduke were Christian names used by branches of the family in West Riding.

As a result of the unfortunate first marriage of Matthew's daughter, Elizabeth, we have a possible clue to an extended family for either Matthew or his wife, Mary. When Elizabeth[2] (Beckwith) Gerrard petitioned the Connecticut Court of Assistants for a divorce, several associates of Robert Gerrard came forward to say that he had told them he had no intention of having anything further to do with his wife and that he had some years since started divorce proceedings at the court in Rhode Island. They further reported that he said he was about to put out his child to "his wives Aunt" to bring up (Lacy, p.56, 8 October 1674). Since we know of no other marriage for Robert Gerrard, this could only mean that Elizabeth[2] Beckwith had an aunt, either by blood or marriage, living in Connecticut or Rhode Island.

A Stephen Beckwith being sued for debts and defamation in the CT Particular Court between 1649 and 1656 is not seen in connection with any of Matthew's family, and it is not known whether he had any wife to be Elizabeth's aunt (Particular Court, pp.64,65,161).

No other clue is seen to assist with this puzzle. To be a sister or sister-in-law of either Matthew Beckwith or Mary (_____) Beckwith, this aunt living in 1674 must have been in late middle age or older. She was most likely in the New London area, since little Elizabeth Gerrard remained near her mother, even receiving property in the estate of her mother's last husband (Hartford Probate #372).

A close look at Matthew Beckwith's early associates in New London might provide further information. Eldest daughter Mary Beckwith was evidently living in the household of one Goodman Barnard in 1657 when Winthrop saw her (Winthrop Medical Journal I:71). Was she farmed out to the household of an aunt and uncle, as was often done? The only likely candidate for "goodman" Barnard was Francis Barnard who married Hannah "Meruill" in 1644. The original of this record, in Hartford's first Book of Distributions, cannot now be found, and controversy exists over whether the name was Merill, Marvell, or Mervin. Barnard is seen in company with Gregory Wolterton, the tanner, who left the bulk of his estate to John Merrill, son of Nathaniel Merrill of Essex County, MA (see Wolterton Chapter). Barnard and his wife are of the age to be siblings of Mary (_____) Beckwith, but no significant connection between Barnard and Beckwith is evident.

Matthew Beckwith appeared in company with both Thomas Hungerford and Peter Blachfield, who were successively married to Hannah[2] Willey, but whether this is meaningful or simply coincidence is a matter for further study.

On 1 August 1639 before the Particular Court, Matthew Beckwith was fined for unseasonable and immoderate drinking "at the pinnace" (Particular Court, p.4). Three years later he sued Mathew Allen, probably for debt, and won 2 March 1642/3 (ibid., p.18). At approximately this time, probably in New London, Matthew Beckwith was married.

Matthew Beckwith and Thomas Hungerford sued Will Edwards for slander, September 1644 (ibid., p.29). Mathew Marvin sued Matthew Beckwith for defamation (ibid., p.62) and Beckwith made public penitent confession of his evil in slandering Marvin 24 April 1649 (ibid., p.63). Matthew Beckwith sued William Williams in June 1651 and sued Thomas Hubberd for debt and won (ibid., p.102).

Beckwith's financial situation must have been doubtful by 1651 when his creditors were given public notice to bring in their debts to the next quarter court and have their causes heard 4 September 1651 (ibid., p.104). The widow Katherine Doxey wrote to John Winthrop Jr. from Southold, L.I. 10 August 1652 asking that he see that her "Citst at goodie Beckits" be returned (Winthrop Papers 6:214).

Beckwith sued Thomas Rowell 13 June 1655 and won (Particular Court, p.146-7). He petitioned, with others, regarding land owned by the Pequots 18 June 1655 (ibid., p.198). Beckwith was sued by Richard Hartley and 15 May 1660 he sued Thomas Brooks for debt (ibid., p.212).

When Thomas Rowell's estate was settled in 1655, the Probate Court ordered that Lieut. Bull and Matthew Beckwith be first satisfied out of the estate (Manwaring I:148). Beckwith was bequeathed £2.2.0 by Peter Collins in his will, likely the paying of a debt (ibid., I:110). He was one of the Pequett Proprietors 13 June 1655 (ibid., 1:143).

John Winthrop Jr. treated Matthew Beckwith for a pain in the back 15 February 1657 (Winthrop Medical Journal, 1:379).

In a more serious suit, Matthew Beckwith was accused of assault and battery by John Richards 4 September 1662. Beckwith was in company with George Halsey, Peter Blachfeild and Thomas Stafford, all fined for the offense (Particular Court, p.252).

Appearing in court for the divorce proceedings against Samuel Smith, Mary Beckwith deposed 22 May 1665, age about 40 years, that Sarah Clay would probably go to Roanoake with Samuel Smith and that some years ago Sarah Clay said she would not stay alone in the house with Samuel Smith for if there was ever a whoremaster in New London he was one (CT Archives, Crimes and Misdemeanors III:202).

Thanks to his daughter's unfortunate marriage to Robert Gerrard, Matthew Beckwith was a one third owner of the barque Endeavour, built between 1660 and 1664 by Mould and Coit. It made several trips to the West Indies and was sold in Barbados 10 April 1666 for 2000 pounds of sugar (History of New London, p.231; TAG 22[1945]:50).

Matthew Beckwith was freed from training, evidently because he had reached age 60, 3 June 1673 (NL Co Ct records).

Matthew Beckwith (possibly his son of the same name) killed two wolves in New London in 1673. In a deed acknowledged 6 June 1681, Matthew Beckwith Sr. gave land at Bartlett's Neck to his son Matthew (NL Deed 5:59). In September of 1681, Matthew Beckwith Sr. sued John Robbins for driving away and killing several swine (NL Co Ct, 4:3).

An inventory of the estate of Matthew Beckwith survives in the probate records of the New London district court:

Mrs. Mary Beckwith, widow, sued the estate of Mr. Richard Haughton, deceased, for money due in the amount of £5.6.0 June 1682. She withdrew the suit (NL Co Ct 4:15).

1719 (division of last husband's estate, Hartford Probate #372); married first circa 1665 ROBERT GERRARD, born say 1640s, living in Rhode Island 8 October 1674 when his wife was granted a divorce (Lacy, p.45); married second between 8 October 1674, the date of her divorce decree (ibid.), and probably September 1678 when her first child with second husband was conceived, JOHN BATES, born say 1640s, died Haddam, CT 15 January 1718/9 (Hartford Probate #372).

Elizabeth Garrard was charged with adultery, having "committed folly with a stranger in the absence of her husband and brought forth a base born child." Found guilty, her sentence was reduced due to many circumstances, including her "husband's extreme bad carriage towards her and beating of her and making no suitable provision for her maintenance and in going from her and not returning to her for some years." She was whipped and fined £10 (NL Ct 3:67). She accused Joshua Grant, probably her sister's widower, whose estate in the custody of Matthew Beckwith was seized for the use of Elizabeth Garrard's child 2 June 1674 (NL Ct 3:68). Meanwhile, in Rhode Island, her first husband sued her for adultery in the Rhode Island General Court, but did not appear to press charges. vii. INFANT, age 3/4 year on 2 April 1660 (Winthrop Medical Journal 1:427), perhaps the same as Nathaniel above.

\+ viii. JOHN, born New London, CT circa 1665.

JOHN[2] BECKWITH (Matthew[1]), born New London, CT circa 1665; died New London 5 December 1757, age 92, "John Beckwith aged 92 Died last monday. he lived on ye west Side Nihantick River near Lyme line. hath been blind many years" (Hempstead Diary, p.696); married probably New London circa 1687 PRUDENCE[2] MANWARING, born circa 1667-8 (calculated from age at death), died New London 17 November 1740, "of the measles aged about 72 or 3" (Hempstead Diary, p.369), daughter of OLIVER[1] and HANNAH (RAYMOND) MANWARING.

Beckwith Notes was fooled by John's long life and erroneously made him a child of the third generation, rather than the second (Beckwith Notes 6:4). This was corrected in TAG 21[1945]:260.

Prudence (Manwaring) Beckwith received £3 besides what she had already received out of her father's estate as stated in Oliver Manwaring's will of 15 November 1722 (NL Probate #5871).

John Beckwith led a quiet, modest life, rarely appearing in records. In his few deeds he is never joined by his wife releasing her dower. On 17 March 1728/9, John Beckwith of New London, yeoman, sold 100 acres in New London bounded on the east by Nihantick River and the west by the New London - Lyme line for £200 to George Richards (NL Deed 9:112).

Although the identification cannot be certain, it is likely that the John Beckwith who accompanied Mary Beckwith, singlewoman, to the New London County Court in 1729, and stood surety for her in her presentment for fornication, was John[2], her father (NL Co. Ct., vol. 17, #23).

As in all his deeds, John Beckwith made his mark when he sold his rights to the common land to Benjamin Fox of New London 11 March 1731/2 (NL Deed 9:230). He sold further rights to Samuel Lattimore for the same amount 29 May 1732 (ibid. 10:26).

To his loving son, Oliver Beckwith of Lyme, he sold a house and land in Lyme bordered by Samuel Smith and the New London - Lyme line, containing 50 acres 24 November 1733 (ibid., 10:100). John mortgaged his farm 11 January 1733/4 for £50 (ibid., 10:111). Five years later, he sold ten acres near Nihantick River to Edward Robinson (ibid., 12:284).

On 7 June 1743, John Beckwith of New London, for parental love and affection deeded to his two youngest sons, Joseph and Benjamin Beckwith of New London, the homestead of 200 acres and all other land except three other pieces of land given to three "of my sons in New London by three Several deeds bearing even date with these presents" (NL Deed 15:51). The deed of this date to son Jonathan, calls Jonathan "of Saybrook" and was not recorded until 1 November 1759 (ibid., 16:245).

In an elaborate set of releases, we learn that John Beckwith and George Way of Lyme, now deceased, had purchased in partnership with Matthew Beckwith 100 acres in Lyme. In his lifetime, George Way of Lyme had sold his undivided portion to Robert Latimer and the rights were straightened out in these deeds dated 5 August 1746 (ibid., 15:57-60).

On 9 December 1754, John Beckwith again deeded all rights to his land to his two youngest sons, Joseph and Benjamin (ibid., 16:111). This perhaps stands as a limited testamentary deed, since no probate was made on his estate.

[Hempstead consistently calls Benjamin - William, but the following must be Benjamin's children].
Children, surname Beckwith:
1) Martin, named in father's probate (NL Probate #326)
2) Jedediah, baptised New London 14 January 1738/9 (probably a few years old at this point, Hempstead Diary, p.345; also named in father's probate [NL Probate #326])

Court, v. 17, #23 & 9 June 1730 #3). On both court dates she failed to appear. Her child not seen, nor whom she accused; probably the Mary who published New London 22 March 1729/30 to WILLIAM LUTHER (Hempstead Diary, p.219).

JONATHAN[3] BECKWITH (John[2], Matthew[1]), born New London, CT circa 1689; baptized as an adult New London 14 May 1721 (NL Ch 1:138); died New London after 18 October 1758 (NL Deed 16:264) and likely before 14 December 1759 (ibid.); married first New London 11 February 1712/13 (Hempstead Diary, p.20) ELIZABETH[4] WALLER, born circa 1691, died New London 11 April 1736 "this Day Eliza Beckwith the wife of Jonat Beckwith & the Eldest Daughter of my Aunt Hannah Waller Died of a Long Illness" (Hempstead Diary, p.302), daughter of SAMUEL[3] and HANNAH (HEMPSTEAD)(MOORE) WALLER (see Waller Chapter); married second, intention New London 8 July 1739 (Hempstead Diary, p.353) MARY WARNER, living 20 April 1740 when her child was born in Saybrook, CT (Saybrook Land records 2:74).

Although Jonathan is called of Saybrook in a 1743 deed in which his father gives him 20 acres of land in New London bordered by land of Robert Latimer, there are no Saybrook deeds for Jonathan (NL Deed 16:245). He may have been living with relatives of his second wife while in Saybrook.

In New London, Jonathan Beckwith of Lyme deeded ten acres of land near Nihantick River to his son Nehemiah Beckwith of Norwich, calling it land, "I the sd Jon[a] Beckwith received of my father for a right of Inheritance" on 18 October 1758 (NL Deed 16:264). He acknowledged it the same day.

On 14 December 1759, the results of an arbitration were recorded between Richard Beckwith and Nehemiah Beckwith, "son of Jonathan Beckwith late of New London," when they were unable to agree how to divide the remaining part of twenty acres in New London Nehemiah had bought from his father Jonathan. This land Joseph and Benjamin Beckwith, sons of Matthew[1] had conveyed to their three brothers, Jonathan, John and Richard, to be divided into thirds. John having died since and his land already set off to his heirs, there remained an undivided two thirds for Richard, and Jonathan's assign, Nehemiah (ibid.).

While the phrase "late of New London," might also mean that Jonathan Beckwith had moved away, it is more likely that the above two land records frame the date of Jonathan's death.

Children (named in Beckwith Notes 6:9), with first wife, surname BECKWITH:

\+ i. JONATHAN[4], baptized New London 14 May 1721 (NL Ch 1:138).

ii. JOHN, not in grandfather Waller's will 1740.

iii. ELIZABETH, baptized 24 September 1721 (NL Ch 1:138); died before 1 March 1783 when her husband did not mention her in his will (NL Probate #3716); married as his second wife New London 9 December 1736 (Hempstead Diary, p.313) ABRAHAM MORGAN, died New London between 1 March 1783 and 17 September 1783 (writing and proving of will, NL Probate #3716), only son of Richard Morgan (NL Deed 8:355).

Abraham married first _____ Roland, died New London 3 December 1735, "Abrah Morgans wife Died (in Travel on ye 3d of ye month when I was at Court. She was 3 Days in Travel & not DD) the only Daughter of Henery Roland by his 2d wife Eliza who was when a Maid Eliza Douglass the 5th Daughter of my Aunt Mary Douglass Decd" (Hempstead Diary, p.297).

Children, order unknown, perhaps a few from her husband's first marriage, surname Morgan:

1) Anna, named in father's will
2) Abigail, named in father's will
3) Philip, named in father's will
4) Abraham, named in father's will
5) Elizabeth, named in father's will
6) Grace, named in father's will

iv. HANNAH, baptized New London, CT 24 September 1721 (NL Ch 1:138), but not in grandfather Waller's 1740 will.

v. NATHANIEL, not in grandfather Waller's 1740 will.

vi. NEHEMIAH, under 21 in grandfather Waller's 1740 will; living 14 December 1759 (NL Deed 16:264).

vii. SAMUEL, born before 1736, named in grandfather's will.

viii. JOSHUA, born before 1736, named in grandfather's will; evidently living 12 June 1773 when his brother Jonathan needed him as surety to stand bond in a lawsuit in a New London court (NL Justice of the Peace Court, ms., Connecticut State Archives).

Child, with second wife, surname BECKWITH:

ix. PRUDENCE, born Saybrook, CT 20 April 1740 (Saybrook Land record 2:74).

JONATHAN[4] BECKWITH (Jonathan[3], John[2], Matthew[1]), baptized New London, CT 14 May 1721 (NL Ch 1:138), but born circa 1714; died Newark, Wayne Co., NY age 97 in 1807 (Beckwith Notes, 2:41); married at Robinson Houghton's farm, New London 22 November 1741 (Hempstead Diary, p.384) GRACE[3] STRICKLAND, born circa 1720, died Newark, NY 1817, age 97 (Beckwith Notes 2:41), daughter of SAMUEL[2] and ELIZABETH (WILLIAMS) STRICKLAND (see Strickland Chapter).

A month following their published intentions to marry, Joshua Hempstead noted that "I went up to John Smiths to take the Examination of Grace Strickland who Complains She is with child by Jonathan Beckwith" (Hempstead Diary, dated 3 March 1741, p.374).

In the Justice of the Peace Court records kept by Joshua Hempstead and donated to the Connecticut State Archives, Hempstead recorded the interrogatories brought when Grace was presented for fornication, as follows:

> Att a Court Held in New London in the County of New London March the 3d 1740/41 Present J. Hampsted Justice of the peace Grace Strickland Single Woman of New London aforesaid appeared before this court and upon oath confest that She was now with Child by fornication and that Jonathan Beckwith of sd New London was the Father of her sd Child and prayed process against the sd Beckwith for the maintainance of the sd Child which was granted
> Questions asked the sd Grace Strickland upon oath
> First When was it that the sd Beckwith did beget you with Child?
> Ans In the beginning of November Last
> Ques. Where was you when he begat you with Child?
> Ans at my fathers house in N London
> Ques had the sd Beckwith Carnal Knowledge of yor Body more than once or twice?
> Ans yes Divers times all which is against the Peace &c and ye good and wholsome Laws of this Colony

She was ordered to return to court at a later date, presumably after the birth of the child, but her return was not noted. This child, Mary Strickland, was baptized at New London Church 26 July 1741 (NLCh 1:30), four months before her parents' marriage.

It was probably this Jonathan who was the "Jonathan Beckwith ye 3d of Lyme" to whom Joshua Hempstead administered the poor man's oath 27 August 1753 (Hempstead Diary, p.614).

Jonathan Beckwith brought suit against Henry Latimore for £2 debt at the Justice of the Peace Court in New London 12 June 1773. Through an attorney, Latimore did not challenge the fact that he owed Beckwith money, but claimed a point of law, that Beckwith was not worth enough money to stand the bond to enter the suit. Jonathan brought Joshua and Jonathan Beckwith, likely his younger brother and son, into court to stand bond, but lost the suit anyway (NLJP, unpaginated).

Jonathan and Grace (Strickland) Beckwith, of Lyme, sold nine acres on Royces Mountain in New London 5 January 1774 to Jonathan Beckwith Jr. Grace's siblings, Priscilla Hambleton and husband James, Annie Davis and husband John, Sarah Holt and husband John, and Lucretia Davis and husband Joseph, were also parties to this deed, which disposed of land that their father, Samuel Strickland, had left in his will to be equally divided among his five daughters (NL Deed 27:140).

On 30 January 1789, Jonathan and Grace Beckwith of Montville, CT deeded land in New London to Samuel Strickland Jr. (NL Deed 27:2). On 10 February 1789, Jonathan and Grace Beckwith of Montville deeded land in Montville to Clement Bishop (Montville Deed 2:290). Both deeds were acknowledged 10 February 1789.

The published series Beckwith Notes contains many mistaken identifications and jumbled family groupings. In the family of Jonathan and Grace (Strickland) Beckwith was listed a daughter "Jane." The source of this information was a descendant of the family who no doubt wrote out his responses in a letter in the last century. We believe that it is possible that the word "Irene" was misread by the compilers of Beckwith Notes as the more common name, "Jane." No independent verification of a daughter Jane can be found, but an Irene Beckwith was closely involved with Samuel and Jonathan of this family, both before her marriage and after it. Another possible origin for the daughter "Jane" is that son Samuel married a woman named Jane, who may have been remembered as "Aunt Jane" by the western branches of the family who were informants for Beckwith Notes.

None of this couple's seven children had recorded births, except Mary, who was born and baptized before her parents' marriage. Jonathan Beckwith left no will listing his children, and the family was mentioned only in passing by the diarist Joshua Hempstead. The following reconstruction is drawn from deeds and the probate of son Jonathan[5].

When Jonathan[5] died suddenly in 1774, the settling of his estate was a very complicated matter. For a number of years, young Jonathan had been in business with his brother, Samuel, as a trader dealing in goods and land. The brothers had taken loans from various people, and Jonathan's portion of the debt had to be paid back. Samuel, taking a bond with his father, Jonathan Sr., became administrator of the estate. Among the creditors to be paid back was Grace Beckwith, who received £7 "for land and money I let him have in seventy-three" (NL Probate #356). This must have been young Jonathan and Samuel's mother.

Irene Beckwith loaned Samuel and Jonathan Beckwith Jr. £12 plus 6s cost, which Samuel repaid in May of 1775 from his brother's estate. We believe it was this Irene who married Reynold Way. Reynold purchased one hundred acres from Samuel Beckwith 2 September 1788 and sold it back to him 7 March 1797 before moving north to New Hampshire. Stephen Beckwith, who at the time lived in Springfield, Luzerne Co., PA, took fifteen acres of land in Lyme bounded by Reynold Way, from William Moon for non-payment of a debt, then sold it to Reynold Way, who sold it back to Samuel later that month.

In his move to New Hampshire, Reynold Way settled in Newport, the same town in which Jonathan[4] had drawn lot 19 as an original proprietor in 1764. This right was taken by Jeremiah Clement in 1765 and Jonathan never lived on the land. Jonathan and Grace may have stayed briefly in Marlow, NH with their daughter, Irene (Beckwith) Way's family, before going to New York.

The Newport, NH connection may have been a coincidence, but it is unlikely that Irene, as a young single woman, would have loaned money to any but a family member, and the continued connection shown by her husband to Samuel and Stephen in the land dealings in the following twenty years argues for a family relationship. Samuel Beckwith married Reynold Way's sister, Jane. They are buried next to Reynold and Jane's father, Joseph Way, in the Chesterfield cemetery in Montville, CT. While Jane's relationship to Reynold could explain the extended land dealings between the two families, it would not explain Irene's loan to Samuel and Jonathan Beckwith.

It has been claimed that Irene Way was the daughter of Jesse Beckwith, whose son Jesse Beckwith deposed that he had "stood by the side of the said Reynold Way" at his marriage, implying that he was Reynold's best man (Revolutionary War Pension Application W15462). Although Jesse Jr. was a near neighbor, his father's will shows that he was not a brother to Irene Beckwith (9 May 1796, NL Probate #346).

It is interesting to note that Irene and Reynold named their eldest daughter Rebecca, perhaps for Irene's childless sister, Rebecca, who married Robert Latimer. Rebecca is not a Way name, and is rarely seen in Beckwith families. Robert Latimer witnessed the 1788 deed between Samuel Beckwith and Reynold Way. Jonathan Sr. and his wife, Grace, moved to Newark, NY, and lived until their deaths with daughter Rebecca and her husband Robert Latimer.

The Beckwith Notes claimed that this couple had a son Daniel, born say 1740s, who married one Chloe Warner, of Herkimer Co., NY and removed to Wayne Co., PA. No independent evidence has been found to support this, despite a concerted search, so he is omitted here.

BOYES

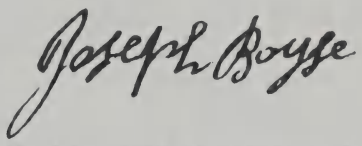
JOSEPH[1] BOYES, born before 1704; died probably Londonderry, NH between 11 November 1779 and 29 March 1780, the writing and proving of his will (Rockingham Probate #4602); married before 1738 MARGARET _____, died Londonderry, NH 12 July 1784 (family Bible, Revolutionary War Pension Application WF 16196), possibly the widow Fobey.



This is a small family, about whom very little has been written. Despite his early appearance in Londonderry, NH, Joseph Boyes is rarely seen in the records and despite his involvement with other men of the same surname, no relationship is ever spelled out between them. He may well have been the nephew of James[1] Boyes, and thus cousin to the influential Robert[2] Boyes with whom he did so much business in Londonderry, NH.

In his will, Joseph Boyes bequeaths £50 to one John Fobey, giving no relationship. This large sum is one quarter the size of the bequests he left to his daughters. Since John Fobey's death record appears immediately following Margaret's death record in the family Bible of Robert[2] Boyes preserved in Robert's Revolutionary War pension application, it is likely that John was a relative of Margaret's, perhaps a son or brother, suggesting that she could have been the widow Fobey when she married Joseph Boyes or that Fobey could have been her maiden name. We know nothing more about John Fobey or this very rare surname except that he may have had a wife or sister named Elizabeth, who died in 1791 (family Bible).

Evidence suggests that Joseph was closely related to Robert Boyes, Esq. of Londonderry. Information about this man and other Boyes families of the area appears in the appendix to this chapter.

Robert's father, James Boyes, does not mention Joseph in his will, written shortly before his 8 April 1724 death, yet Joseph is witness to the will of another James Boyes in 1747, a son of the first James and brother of Robert, Esq. (NHPP #1597).

Joseph Boyes does not appear on the 1722 Proprietors' List for Londonderry, NH, but Robert Boyes appears twice. Joseph may have been a minor at this time, since we can only make an approximate guess as to his age.

Joseph Boyes is first seen when he buys land in Londonderry from Robert Boyes and his first wife, Jenat, on 6 May 1725 (NHPD 18:278). He sold a share of a sawmill on Beaver River to William and John Gregg on 4 November 1728 (NHPD 22:142). It is unclear why Joseph Boyes would have a share in this sawmill, since the only Boyes with an interest of record is Robert.

In his early deeds, Joseph is given no occupation, perhaps suggesting that he was not yet settled. In the only instance where Joseph is called a "saylor," Robert Boyes of Londonderry sold him land in Londonderry calling Joseph "of New Castle in the province of Georgii," a short-lived name for a section of southern Maine (NHPD 18:522). His proprietor's rights in New Castle are seen in the 11 November 1733 drawing of forty acre lots, in which he drew #20 (Lemuel Shaw Papers, Massachusetts Historical Society).

Joseph Boyes of Londonderry, husbandman, sold land in Londonderry to William Tolford on 4 April 1734, acknowledging it the 8th (NHPD 20:121). He sold land in Londonderry to Margaret McMaster on 13 June 1734 (NHPD 22:4). Joseph Boyes of Londonderry bought land in Londonderry from Robert and Isabella Duncan of Boston 28 March 1744 (NHPD 31:37). Unfortunately, no further relationship between these people can be built from the records.

Joseph Boyes joined the petition to set off the westerly part of Londonderry as a separate parish 12 October 1737 (Manchester Historical Society Collections 1:393).

At the 24 October 1740 Province Court, Joseph Boyes of Londonderry withstood the suit of Samuel Huston of Londonderry, husbandman, who claimed he had removed 40 cocks of hay and done other damages to Huston's meadow. Robert Boyes Esqr. and Mr. John McMurphy vouched for Joseph (NHP Court Record #18092).

At the Londonderry Town Meeting of 6 March 1748/9, Joseph Boyes and others entered their dissent to two surveyors of highways being appointed in his part of town where there had usually been only one (Manchester Historical Society Collections 1:291).

In the early years of the settlement of New Boston, NH, Joseph Boyes worked closely with Robert Boyes in surveying, building bridges and building homes (New Boston Town Records, A:13). In the 1756 census of the town, Joseph Boyes is listed as settling on four cleared acres with one house for the benefit of John Tyler (History of New Boston, pp.460-461). Along with other settlers, he was allowed land provided he build a house on it within three months.

He was chosen one of the rate collectors for New Boston's old parish 5 March 1757 (New Boston TR, 1:331). He chose not to stay in the new town, however, and returned to Londonderry, where he proceeded to sell off his New Boston lands with deeds to Robert Boyes 11 March 1758; to William Boyes of New Boston, likely Joseph's son, 27 October 1763; and to John Quigly of New Boston 28 June 1766 (NHPD 88:385; 84:63; 101:195).

Joseph Boyes was a deponent in the case of Robert Boyes and James Gregg. On 24 March 1757 he testified that

> Some time between the years 1720 & 1730 I assisted Robert Boyes of Londonderry & Province of New Hampshire now Esq. To fence a Certain Tract of Meadow or Meadow Land which Lies in Londonderry aforesd on Beaver brook between a place Called Horse hills & Beaver Pond & at the time aforesd & Ever Since I Understood by [ ] the sd Meadow to be sd Boyes's propertie & that Capt. James Gregg Late of Londonderry aforesd Flowed sd Meadow by Sd Boyes's Leave
> (NHP Court #21926)

He was chosen one of the surveyors of the westerly side of town 23 March 1762 (Manchester Historical Society Collections 1:373).

Joseph Boyes of Londonderry, yeoman, sued Hugh Sterling of Londonderry 20 April 1761 for a debt of £100 and won 29 September 1762 (NHP Court #00493). In the capacity of executors for David Beverley late of Londonderry, Joseph Boyes with John Barnet, both of Londonderry, husbandmen, sued John Clark and George Clark, yeomen of Londonderry for £633 on 23 April 1764 (NHP Court #14981). Joseph Boyes of Londonderry sold 8 acres in Londonderry to Matthew Dickey of Londonderry 28 January 1769 (NHPD 108:163).

Boyes sold land and a share of buildings in Londonderry to his son Robert Boyes of Londonderry 6 May 1771, being land Joseph had purchased from "Robert Boyes Esq. late of Londonderry, deceased, with the west part of the house I now live in and the West Barn on the said Premises" (NHPD 90:415).

In his diary, Mathew Patten made an entry 31 January 1774 "I went to joseph Boices to a Seen meeting" (Patten Diary, p.317). The exact meaning of this is not understood and may be a misreading of the original Patten manuscript, which is not readily available. No other "Seen" meetings are noted in the Patten diary.

On 7 January 1797, son-in-law William Livingston of New Boston, gentleman, sold part of lot 17 in the Third Division in the original right of Joseph Boyes to Lesley Gregg of New Boston, yeoman, for ten dollars (Hillsborough Deed 52:406).

Joseph Boyes wrote his will, as follows:

> In the Name of God Amen, This Eleventh Day of November Anno. Domini one Thousand Seven Hundred and Seventy Nine I Joseph Boyes of Londonderry in the County of Rockingham in the State of Newhampshire yeoman. Being weak in Body but of Sound mind and memory and Calling to mind the Mortality of my Body and that it is appointed unto all men once to die I do make and ordain this to be my last will and Testament That is to Say first and Principally I recommend my Soul to God and my body to the dust to be burried in a Decent manner at the Discretion of the Executors of this my will and Testament and as Touching Such worldly Goods as God in his Provindence hath been Pleased to bless me with in the Life I do Give and bequeath them in the following manner of form, viz.

Children, surname BOYES:

i. possibly JAMES[2], a James Jr. witnesses the will of David Beverland in 1756, to which Joseph Boyes was named an executor (NH State Papers XXXV:388). Mathew Patten "Took more than half a day and pieced the stock of a gun for James Boyes Junr Londonderry and charged Twelve shillings and he paid me Eighteen pence toward it" (Patten Diary, 9 September 1754, p.7). Only one James can be accounted for among the known descendants of James[1] Boyes at this time, suggesting that if there are two men of this name living in 1756, one could be Joseph's son. This proposed James is not easily distinguished from James[3,2,1] and he is certainly dead without children before 11 November 1779 when his father wrote his will.

\+ ii. ELIZABETH, born circa 1739 (calculated from age at death); died New Boston 23 October 1821 in her 83rd year (gravestone, Old Burying Ground, New Boston); married before 1767 JOHN[4] COCHRAN (see Cochran Chapter).

iii. Capt. WILLIAM, born circa 1740; died circa 1805; married SARAH ANDERSON, living New Boston 30 March 1789 (Hillsborough Deed 22:346). This couple likely had children.

iv. ROBERT, born 24 June 1743 (family Bible); died Springfield, NH 27 July 1803 (ibid.); married Litchfield summer 1776 (Revolutionary War Pension Application WF 16196) JANET BOYES, born Londonderry 25 August 1754 (ibid.), died Wendell, NH 9 November 1845 (ibid.), daughter of James and Margaret (_____) Boyes.

Children, as seen in their family Bible preserved in Revolutionary War Pension Application WF 16196, surname Boyes:

1) Mary, born Londonderry 9 July 1777
2) Joseph, born Londonderry 11 January 1780
3) Hugh, born Londonderry 3 May 1783
4) Margaret, born Londonderry 30 March 1785
5) Adam, born Londonderry 25 July 1787
6) James, born Londonderry 29 March 1790

7) Elizabeth, born Londonderry (illegible in Bible)
8) Robert, born circa 1798 (calculated from age in Revolutionary War Pension Application WF 16196 deposition, 55 years old in 1853)

v. MARYAN, living 16 April 1822 (Hillsborough Deed 135:438); married before November 1779 (when she is named in her father's will) WILLIAM LIVINGSTON, living 7 January 1797, died by 16 April 1822 (Hillsborough Deed 135:438).
Adopted child, son of William's brother John, surname Livingston:
1) William (History of New Boston, p.439)

SELECTED BOYES FAMILIES IN EARLY NEW ENGLAND

Before the Scotch-Irish arrived in New England, there were several New World Boyes settlers. Luke and Hannah Boyse are seen in Henrico County, VA in the 1630s. Other early representatives of the name included:

MATTHEW BOYES of Roxbury, MA returned to England before April 1657, and settled just outside of Leeds, Yorkshire by 1657 (Savage). This Matthew Boyes had a son Joseph, born in Leeds, Yorkshire 14 January 1659/60, who married Mrs. Rachel Ibbetson, and died in Dublin in 1728. An ancestor in this line, Dr. John Boyes, born in 1560 in Yorkshire, had a considerable part in the translation of the King James Bible.

RICHARD BOYES was presented for living apart from his wife 30 June 1674 (NHPD 5:3). He came into court and was allowed until October next to go home to his wife or out of this jurisdiction or pay £20. He was lost at sea during a storm 30 January 1677/8 and Richard Wilcomb of the Isles of Shoals was appointed administrator (NHPD 5:244). Wilcomb brought in an inventory 25 June 1678 of £8.11.2 (NHPD 5:27). While it is clear that he was married, there are no indications of children and it is very possible that his wife had remained in Old England.

In Boston, several families arrived and took an active part in the commercial affairs of the town, but they disappeared from sight, leaving no descendants to carry the surname. Reconstructed from Boston records, they include:

JOHN BOYES, married before 1686 MARY _____.

Children, surname Boyes:

i. SARAH, born Boston 22 August 1686 (BVR p.168)

ii. ELIZABETH, born Boston 15 January 1689 (BVR p.183)

iii. HANNAH, born Boston 18 May 1691 (BVR p.195)

ANTIPAS BOYES, married Boston, MA 24 January 1659 (BVR p.72) HANNAH HILL, daughter of Valentine Hill of Dover, NH. Antipas was prominent in Boston.

Only child, surname Boyes:

i. ANTIPAS, born Boston 8 February 1661 (BVR p.78) "a single man who died without issue about 1706 in the Barbadoes" (News Letter, 27 July - 3 August 1719).

The following persons married in Boston, but their families, if any, are not easily reconstructed.

CHARLES BOYES, married Boston 27 June 1706 (BVR, p.8) COLLETT GERRISH.

SAMUEL BOYES, married Boston 27 January 1708 (BVR, p.17) LYDIA BURRINGTON.

A 17th century Joseph Boyes family settled in Salem, MA, and many of its descendants spread up and down the New England coast, settling in Maine and Rhode Island. This family is well outlined in the Essex Antiquarian 10:58-9) and unfortunately shows no connection to the Boyes families of Londonderry, NH.

Two significant Scotch-Irish Boyes families which did settle in the vicinity of Londonderry and populated its daughter towns following the migration from Ireland in 1718 were that of James Boyes and of Thomas Boyes. An outline of these two families appears below.

1. JAMES[1]BOYES, born before 1670 (calculated from the age of his children); died Londonderry, NH 8 April 1724 (NH State Papers XXXII:188); married a woman whose name is never seen and who either predeceased him or did not come over. He was a carpenter.

In his will, James Boyes calls himself "sick and weak" and makes his mark. He names no wife, but leaves bequests to his children, James, Janet, William, Robert, Mary and Martha. Robert served as executor of the will and sued his brother James Jr. over a deed that James Sr. had signed the day before he died.

Children, surname BOYES:

2. i. ROBERT[2], born circa 1691 (calculated from age at death).

3. ii. JAMES, born say 1693.

4. iii. WILLIAM, born say 1695.

iv. JENNET, named in her father's will in 1723; not seen thereafter.

v. MARY, born say 1700; died after 10 March 1735 (NHPP 21:74); married Londonderry, NH 7 April 1724 ARCHIBALD WEAR, born say 1700; last seen Ulster County, NY 19 November 1762 (NHPD 68:459). A child or children of theirs burned to death in the fire at the house of her brother, Robert Boyes (Journal, 18 February 1739/40).

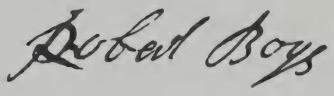
vi. MARTHA, named in her father's will in 1723; not seen thereafter.

2. ROBERT[2] BOYES, born circa 1691 (calculated from age at death); died Londonderry, NH 21 April 1768 age 77 years (gravestone, Forest Hill Cemetery, East Derry); married first before 1723 JENAT CLARK, born Ireland circa 1695 (calculated from age at death), died 1730, age 35 years (gravestone, Forest Hill Cemetery, East Derry); married second South Hampton, NH 29 March 1744 (NHVR) SARAH PARKE, born circa 1720s, died after 18 April 1798, when she is the aged mother of deceased son Robert (Rockingham Probate #6448).



The deposition of widow Annas McKean on 6 November 1761 showed that Robert Boyes came to Londonderry in August 1719 from Boston at the request of James McKean, to build a chimney (NHP Court Records #21926). This is a curious deposition in more than one respect, establishing that Boyes was not among the Scotch-Irish immigrants who had come to Londonderry earlier.

> The Deposition of Annas McKean Aged about Seventy two years who Sayeth that in the yar 1719: her then Husband James McKean Esqr Wrot to Robert Boyes Esqr who then was at Boston to Come to Londonderry and Build a Chimtey for him: which was Towards the Latter End of Summer In the fall of the year To the best and that She did not Remember that She Ever saw him in the Town before that time: and that he Lodged at her house and She did not know any other Lodging he had in Town: while he worked there and that her afforesaid Husband James mcKean Esqr built part of the first sawmill in said Town: and Let Robert Boyes Esqr. House after wards 6 November 1761 Annas (her mark) McKean

Ostensibly, Robert brought his family, including his father, James Boyes, to Londonderry with him, although Annas McKean deposes that he boarded with her family while he built the chimney and that she "did not know any other Lodging he had in Town while he worked...."

Robert's career is easily followed, a respected citizen, frequently called upon by his neighbors to serve as appraiser, witness, guardian or surety and even sent back to Ireland to select a minister when Rev. MacGregor died.

Robert of Londonderry deeded to Joseph Boyes of the same, for £46, 40 acres of land in Londonderry, bordered by James Aikens' home lot, Pine Island, and half of a half quarter of the saw mill and street 6 May 1725 (NHP Court #21926). Joseph Boyes sold this land to William Talford in 1734. Robert sued for land against William Mudgett in 1728/9 (NHP Court #18642).

Sarah Jamison, daughter of Alexander Jamison, signed on as Robert's apprentice 12 May 1729, for five years.

Robert Boyes took the Derry petition about parishes to the General Court, where it was heard 2 February 1739/40 and sent to the House 12 February 1739/40 (Journal of the Council & Assembly, manuscript 1729-1742, pp. 172, 178). While he was attending this General Court at Portsmouth, Robert Boyes' house was destroyed by fire and a child or children of his were burned to death, along with a child or children of his sister (Journal, 18 February 1739/40). It may be that Robert's sister was running his household, since Janet had died ten years earlier.

Robert left a will naming his children, Samuel and William evidently with his first wife, and Janet, Robert, James, Margaret, Sarah, Elizabeth and Alexander with his second. Mention is made in Robert's estate of a 9 shilling payment made to Joseph Boyes (NHPP #3501).

Robert and his first wife, Janet, appear in several deeds together, the last being 3 December 1728 (NHPD 18:277). Robert and his second wife first appear together in a deed 18 June 1747 (NHPD 52:316).

On 10 September 1740 the New Boston Town Meeting reported that Robert Boyes was paid £25 for his house which was burned on lot #54 (NBTR A:9). On 3 January 1753 Robert Boyes was paid £13.12.0 for laying out the township of New Boston and for building bridges there (NBTR A:13). The Town meeting on 9 February 1753 allowed £5.17.2½ to Robert Boyes, including a beaver hat, for a present given to Colonel Blanchard for his services to the town (NBTR A:13).

Robert was a slave owner, naming his negro man Pomp in his will.

In his will, Robert Boyes refers to his wife, Sarah Boyes. He left land in Chester to son Robert. To son James he left the home lot, part of the sawmill, and responsibility to pay his brother Robert £30 when he reached age 21. To his son Alexander, he left the Peack farm, until Robert's youngest child was 21. When Alexander was 24 he was to pay his brother Robert £30. The testator mentioned his married daughter Elizabeth Ramsey, wife of James Ramsey. To his unmarried daughters, Janet, Margaret and Sarah, he left £150 apiece (NHPP #3501).

The widow's dower was set off 28 March 1786. Matthew Thornton submitted his account and the greater part of the surviving heirs challenged it 18 November 1789. The widow sued one Robert Boyes over sheep at the August Term 1789 (Rockingham Superior Court #10987).

Elizabeth Poore of Londonderry, singlewoman, claimed that in "June Last past...had Carnal Knowledge of hir Body Whearby she is now with Child" (NHP Court #21921). An estate was opened for him seventeen years after his death by brother-in-law James Doak, administrator de bonis non. His aged mother was an heir 18 April 1798. No provision made for any child of Elizabeth Poore.

In her will of 2 October 1775, she named her sisters Jennet Doack and Sarah Boyes, her brothers Robert, James and Alexander. The will was proved in 1792 (Rockingham Probate #5769).

viii. JAMES, born Londonderry say 1753; died Londonderry, NH 10 August 1779 (gravestone, Forest Hill cemetery, East Derry). His will written 3 August 1779 in which he calls himself "James Boyes tertius" mentioned his honored mother, his father deceased, his

ix. SARAH, born say 1756; died Belfast, ME 1824; married after 1779 Major SAMUEL HOUSTON, born circa 1754 (calculated from age at death), died Belfast, ME 9 January 1835 (Early History of Belfast, p.242). A Revolutionary War soldier and reputedly a member of Washington's body guard.

3. JAMES[2] BOYES (James[1]), born circa 1693; died 1747; married circa 1720 MARGARET _____, living 20 March 1769 (Hillsborough Deed 32:43). She may have been Margaret Cavey, since James mentions his "brother" William Cavey in his will.

James was sued by his brother Robert over a deed signed by their father the day before James Sr. died. There were ultimately no hard feelings, however, for Robert served as executor for James' estate twenty years later. James purchased land in Londonderry from Hugh and Jean Montgomery in 1724 (NHPD 19:93).

In his will, written in 1747, James named his children and wife, Margaret, and provided for "brother" William Cavey for his lifetime, (NHPP 1597). Cavey may have been incompetent. He is not seen anywhere else. Joseph Boyes witnessed this will.

The following Susannah Boyes should fit into the Boyes family of Londonderry, but just where is unclear.

SUSANNA BOYES, singlewoman of Londonderry, spinster, in an action of trespass sues Jonathan Cheney of Goffstown, husbandman, "that about the first Day of January AD 1783 at said Londonderry began to Court the Pla[in]t[iff]. under a Pretense of a Design to marry her & followed her with his Courtship making many solemn protestations of his affection & design to marry her from that time until the fifteenth Day of November AD 1784 & then was published to the Pla[in]t[iff] having in the mean time insinuated himself into her good will under Colour & Pretense of Courtship desired & beguiled the Pl[ain]t[iff]. & begot her with Child & then & there utterly forsook her & left her with his Bastard Child to maintain ...& still doth refuse to marry her" 19 July 1788. William Davidson, Minister of the First Presbyterian Church in Londonderry said that in November 1784, Jonathan Cheney and William Rankin, father-in-law to Susanna Boyes, requested him to publish them (deposed 12 August 1788) (Rockingham Court #10478)

Susannah Boyes of Londonderry, spinster, sued Moses Ingalls of Hopkinton, yeoman, for bad debt 16 August 1792 (Rockingham Superior Court #13044).

A seemingly separate Boyes family, with possible connections to Essex County, MA, appeared infrequently in the Provincial New Hampshire records, as follows:

1. THOMAS BOYES married before 1734 MARY BARR, daughter of John Barr and named in his will in 1748 (NHPP #1527).

Thomas Boyes of Londonderry, yeoman, was sued by Alexander McGregor of Warwick, RI, merchant, for debt incurred 14 October 1738 at Londonderry (NHP Court #14157).

Thomas Boyes was sued by Eliphalet Hale in 1749, presenting a bill "to visiting your Daughter Jane at William Rogerses in Newbury from Sept 2: 1743 till Decemr ye 7 almost every day Sometimes twice a day & at midNight Dilating her thigh in Sundry places & Dres almost every day ..." (NHP Court #10387).

i. JANE, born significantly before 1743 when the doctor treated her leg.

ii. MARGARET, a loomworker who lived in the household of her uncle, Robert Fairservice [who married Elizabeth Barr] in 1770 (NHPP #196).

iii. JOHN, calls Margaret his sister when she sues Thomas Stuart of Londonderry, yeoman, in the July 1784 Term of Rockingham Superior Court (#7504).

BRIANT

CORNELIUS[1] BRIANT, born before 1717 and probably considerably before this date; last seen Smithfield, RI 15 September 1738 (Smithfield Town Book 1:126). Perhaps his wife was the Mary Briant who was paid by the town of Providence for caring for and washing the clothes of Benjamin Briggs before he died of the smallpox 29 August 1752 (manuscript, Rhode Island Historical Society, 2:88). Another potential wife may be the Elizabeth Briant whose doctor bill was paid by the town of Smithfield 15 September 1742 (Smithfield Town Book 1:167). It is more likely that this Elizabeth was the future wife of John Young.

Cornelius Briant appeared before the Smithfield Town Council in 1738 and requested liberty to stay in the town for some time. He was granted permission to stay for five months, provided he was orderly and departed at the end of that time, or gave sufficient bond to the town (Smithfield Town Book, 1:124). Five months later, Cornelius Briant appeared again before the town council and again requested to tarry in the town, and was allowed six months provided he behaved himself well and then depart or obtain a further license (Smithfield Town Book, 1:126). He does not appear again, but, by inference, he probably took up residence in the town, perhaps by coming up with sufficient bond, for he is presumably related to the Elizabeth Briant whose doctor bill was paid by the town in 1742. The town would not have paid for someone not of Smithfield and no other Briant family is seen this early. No mention is made of Cornelius having a family in these records.

By Revolutionary times, there were several Bryants serving from the Providence area, although only Israel and James, probable sons of Israel (below), came from Smithfield. Charles of Providence and Matthew of Providence appear in the Revolutionary files at the Rhode Island State Archives. Moses Briant of Providence went on the Canada Expedition in 1775. A Nicholas Bryant is seen in Newport in the early 1700s, but no connection with Cornelius was found.

The name Cornelius is not used this early in the known New England Briant families. However, a large number of men of this name can be found in the Dutch church records of Hackinsack from 1698-1714 and are alluded to in a Boston Transcript query (11 January 1935, #9431), which said that immigrant Thomas Briant may have been a member of the Quaker Colony which came from England circa 1680 and settled in Burlington County, New Jersey. A Cornelius Bryant is said to have left Hackensack in 1717 with his brother Simeon and settled at Springfield and Westfield, New Jersey. Given that Cornelius does not appear in the records of towns neighboring Smithfield, such as Scituate, and Glocester, and that he did not appear to have been a legal resident of Providence, a more foreign origin for him can be contemplated, but not proven.

A Nicholas Briant is seen in 1729 in Rhode Island records and his connection to the known Bryant families is not established. This name is never seen in Smithfield, however, and there is some possibility that Nicholas was an immigrant to Newport who travelled up and down the coast.

An Abraham Briant of South Kingston is mentioned many times in the records of that town and in the lower courts. A blacksmith, he is sued and in turn sues a large number of persons in 1740 and 1741 and then fades from sight. No connection is seen to Smithfield or to Cornelius, however.

If Cornelius is the ancestor of all Briants in Smithfield, then his children would be:

\+ i. ELIZABETH[2], born circa 1720s; married Smithfield, RI 16 February 1745/6 JOHN YOUNG (see Young Chapter).

ii. ISRAEL, born probably 1720s but certainly before 1740; living 2 February 1771 (Smithfield Deed 7:35); married perhaps second Smithfield 1760 (Arnold 3:42) SUSANNAH IRWIN, living 2 February 1771 (Smithfield Deed 7:35), perhaps the widow of William Irwin, if so, then Susannah (Saulsbury) Irwin. Cordwainer.

Possible sons with an unseen first wife:

1) Israel, born Smithfield, RI circa 1749-54; died Warner, NH 14 July 1825 (Merrimack Probate #186); married before 1790 Sarah _____, living 7 September 1798, but who predeceased him.

Israel Bryant enlisted at Smithfield in September 1775 under Capt. John Spear. He applied for a pension 7 September 1820, age 66 years, a resident of Warner, NH, saying that he lived with his daughter, Fanny, age 30. Both Nehemiah Woodward and Abiathar Young deposed in support of his pension application that they had known him since childhood and knew that he had served in the Revolution (NH Revolutionary Pension application #16062).

An Israel Briant of Newport, New Hampshire, purchased 50 acres in the 1st and 2nd Division #36 from Stephen Willcox of Killingworth, CT for £4 on 26 April 1773. This deed was witnessed by Isaac Kelley 2nd and Nathan Willcoks, and recorded 29 December 1775 (Cheshire Deed 4:481). It is not clear whether this was the young Israel Bryant, soon to enlist in the Revolutionary War from Smithfield, or his presumed father of the same name, who had just two years before sold his land in Smithfield and disappeared completely.

Israel Bryant of Wendell, cordwainer, sold 85 acres on the south end of Wendell to James Bryant of Wendell for £10 16 February 1787, with witnesses John and Jesse Lane. This deed was recorded 15 July 1789 (ibid., 14:397). Israel and Sarah Bryant, husbandman, sold 150 acres in Wendell to David Angell (ibid., 47:212). Israel of Wendell, yeoman, sold land to Gideon Angell of Wendell, yeoman for $123 on 31 October 1800 (ibid., 44:564).

Israel and Sarah his wife sold land in Wendell, NH to Abiather Young 7 September 1798 (ibid., 33:518).

At his death, Israel was entitled to several pension payments, amounting to $33.18, which appeared in his inventory. His children then living, Fanny and Phila, declined administration and Aquila Davis was appointed in their stead (Merrimack Probate #186).

Children, surname Bryant:

a) Phila, living 1825 (Merrimack Probate #186)
b) Fanny, living 1825 (ibid.)
c) daughter, implied from 1790 NH census
d) son, implied from 1790 NH census
e) son, implied from 1790 NH census

2) James, born 1756. James appears in connection with Israel Bryant in NH. These men are probably brothers and James is possibly the father of the James Bryant Jr. who married Miss Polly Stanford 14 November 1799 in Packersfield, NH (NHVR). Their daughter, Polly, was born in Nelson, 25 September 1783. They may have moved to Fairfield, Herkimer Co., New York. This James Bryant enlisted in the Revolutionary War at Providence 17 June 1777, and was described as a laborer of Smithfield, age 21, i.e., born circa 1756. William Briant may be of this group also.

3) Isaac, born before 1754; married North Providence 10 December 1775 (Arnold 2:22) Robe Hawkins.

BURNS

JOHN[1] BURNS, born circa 1712; died Bedford, NH 26 March 1788, in his 77th year (Bedford Town Records 3:735 and gravestone, Old Cemetery, Bedford); married first ANN _____, born circa 1724 (calculated from age at death); died Bedford 9 July 1745, age 21 years (gravestone, Bedford Cemetery); married second after 1745 (History of Bedford, p.293) ANN[2] McQUESTON of Litchfield, NH, probably born Ireland say 1728, died after her husband wrote his will, probably daughter of WILLIAM[1] and MARGARET (_____) McQUESTON of Medford, MA and Bedford, NH.

gravestone of Ann (McQueston) Burns, John Burns and Ann (_____) Burns

Dear Friends, for us don't Mourn or weep.
We are not dead, but here do sleep;
Upon our easy bed of Clay,
Untill the Resurrection day.

In The History of Bedford, a tradition of the origins of John Burns is preserved

> John Burns came to America from Londonderry, Ireland, in 1740. He landed first in Boston, where he resided a few years and married. Immediately after his marriage he moved to Bedford....Burns was the individual who accompanied James McQuaid to Concord (Suncook) after corn, at the first settlement of the town when McQuaid was killed by the Indians. Burns was not wounded, but his shirt with seven bullet holes testified to his danger (History of Bedford, pp.875-6).

This tradition is probably accurate. The estate of a James McQuaid of Bedford, was probated beginning 6 August 1747 in the Provincial Probate by administratrix and widow Martha McQuaid (NH State Papers 33:487).

The name John Burns appears in twelve different New Hampshire towns in the colonial period, but this John Burns is affiliated only with Bedford. An unrelated family of Burnses immigrated from Ireland somewhat earlier than John of Bedford. This other family eventually settled in Milford after stays in Nottingham West (now Hudson) and Amherst, leaving off-shoots in Milford, Monson and several northern and western New Hampshire communities. No relationship is seen with John of Bedford.

In his earliest appearances, John Burns had a close relationship with Daniel Moor. This association with the Moor family lasted throughout Burns' life. On 2 February 1760, James Mathews Jr. and his wife, Mary, of Bedford sold 146 acres in lots 29 Second Division 8th Range and 44 in the third Division and First Division home lot of 25 acres for £101.5.0 to John Burns and Daniel Moor of Bedford, yeomen (NHPD 86:199). On 18 February 1760, John Burns and Ann Burns signed a deed for land in Bedford, and Ann made a circular mark (NHPD 86:148). That same day, John Burns of Bedford, yeoman, received the quit claim deed of Daniel Moor of Bedford for the other half of land they had bought of James Mathews Jr. (NHPD 100:400).

John Burns and his family appeared several times in the diary of Matthew Patten. "I Run the Rang line from the 2d divisions to Col Nichols by john Burns for Capt Moor and Burns and I Lodged at Capt Moors" (28 November 1774, Patten Diary, p.333). "Was the meeting of Bedford and Merrymac to chuse a Representative at john Burns when Lieut John Orr was chosen..." (7 December 1778, ibid., p.392). "I got ½£ of Tea and a pound of Coffee from Robt Burns mother" (5 Jan 1779, ibid., p.394). "I paid Mrs. Burns 12 Dollars I owed her son Robt since the 16 of last Febr" (14 July 1779, ibid., p.403). "I writ a Quitance for Robt to sign to his fathers Estate and another to his father for Rie" (27 March 1780, ibid., p.411).

The above quittance was likely in acknowledgment of the deed executed the same day, in which John Burns of Bedford, yeoman, deeded 119 acres in Merrimack to his son Robert Burns of Bedford, trader. He made his mark and his wife, Ann, was to release her dower, but her mark was not made. This deed was not recorded until after John's death (Hillsborough Deed 20:220).

Evidently, Mr. John Burns' house was a frequent site for the Town Meeting, as was noted in Patten's diary and in the town records (Bedford Town Records 3:435, October 1782).

At the end of his life, John Burns provided for his sons William and John by granting them deeds dated 21 March 1788 to land in Bedford and Merrimack. William received 60 acres in lot #44 of the Third Division, and John received 107 acres in lot #107 in the same Division (Hillsborough Deed 20:219, 20:222).

His will was proved 8 April 1788 (Hillsborough Probate #0378).

A well-written article written by John and Helen Cargill of Shawnee Mission, KS, published in the Register in 1963 corrected the long-standing error which mistook Janet (Cargill) Gregg as a daughter of David[1] Cargill (Register 117[1963]:241). The Register article suggested that she might be his sister. It further speculated that the immigrant David Cargill was the son of John Cargill who died leaving a will at Aghadowey, Ireland, in 1683, naming his son, John, executor. The will was destroyed in the 1920s and the article wondered what had become of this John Cargill.

Although the authors of the article cited the Lemuel Shaw collection at the Massachusetts Historical Society, the significance of one of the Cargill letters found there was not recognized. In this letter, John Cargill, brother of Londonderry immigrants David Cargill and Janet (Cargill) Gregg, writes from his home in Ireland to his brother in Londonderry, NH, complaining about the lack of communication with nephew, Rev. John Cargill in Virginia (who has unfortunately died, unbeknownst to his uncle). The letter is quoted in full here:

(Lemuel Shaw Papers, Massachusetts Historical Society)

This letter is our first independent support of the Ila (Islay) origin of Janet Cargill claimed in The Autobiography of Samuel Gregg (see Gregg Appendix). From this and other sources, we construct a family consisting of David Cargill of Londonderry, his brother John Cargill of Ballyness, another brother (unnamed) in Ila, and sister Janet (Cargill) Gregg.

It is possible that these are the children of John Cargill of Aghadowey who left a will there in 1683. Dwight A. Radford of Salt Lake City has carefully collected data on Scottish and Irish Cargills in an attempt to add earlier generations to what is presently known. He notes that there was a John Cargill, shepherd, and wife Peareone Archer, who had a son John Cargill christened in Rattray, Perth, Scotland on 14 August 1660. This couple and their son are not seen again in Rattray, but a John Cargill is seen in the hearth tax of Ballinrees, Aghadowey in 1663. Perhaps further work will determine whether these records pertain to the family of Janet Cargill (personal communication, 17 April 1991, Dwight A. Radford).

Children of unknown parents, surname CARGILL:

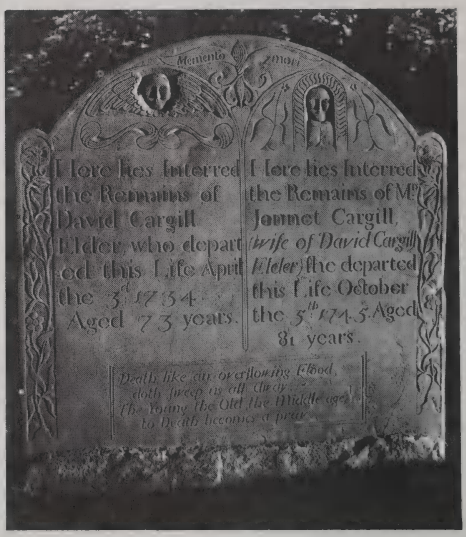
i. DAVID[1], born circa 1661 (calculated from age at death); died Londonderry, NH 3 April 1734, age 73 years (gravestone, Forest Hill Cemetery, East Derry); married JANET SMITH, born Macosquin, Ireland 1664 (calculated from age at death), died Londonderry, NH 5 October 1745, age 81 years (gravestone, Forest Hill Cemetery, East Derry), daughter of John Smith (Radford report, September 1990).



Children (ages and order from Radford report, ibid.), surname Cargill:

1) John, born Ballinrees, Aghadowey, circa 1681

2) Elizabeth, born Ballinrees, circa 1683

3) Marion, born Ballinrees circa 1684

iii. JOHN, living Ireland 17 July 1732 (letter).

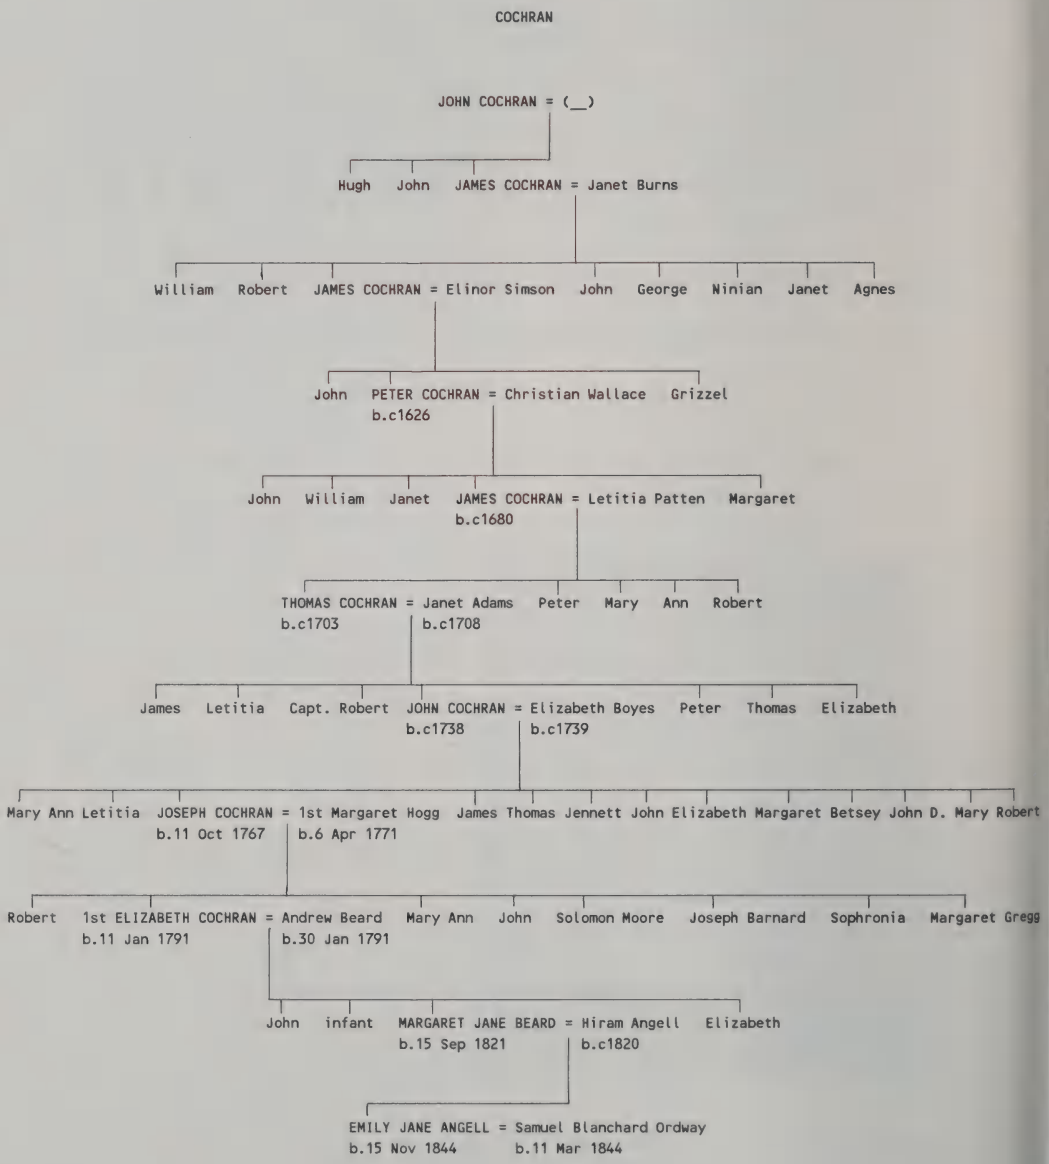
iv. SON, living in Islay, Scotland 17 July 1732 (letter).



COCHRAN

JOHN[C] COCHRAN, born near Paisley, co. Renfrew, Scotland circa 1510s; died near Londonderry, Ireland after 1570s; married before 1550s to a woman whose name is not preserved.

> the first of our family that settled in Ireland, came from Fernois two miles eastward from Paisley in Scotland... His first settling was at Griblon distant seven miles from Londonderry. He was there employed in the Salmon fishery by the Lord of Strabane. Hugh and James having rescued their father, who was apprehended for debt, obliged them to leave Griblon. They went then to the foot of the Faughan waters and were protected by Lord AsKain, who employed them in their former business. This was in the year 1570 in the minority of James the Sixth, before the English Conquest in the North of Ireland.
> He and his offspring lived 110 years in three towns, Moboy, Kileraugh and Carrikeel. Old Peter with his family, John ye man so called, and Jonathon [sic] went to New England. (Deaf Robert)

The first three generations of this family in Ireland are culled exclusively from a transcription of the 1730 recollections of Robert Cochran, known as "Deaf Robert," held by the Presbyterian Historical Society in Philadelphia.

> He was in Trance three quarters of an hour, in which he had some discovery of Heaven and Hell and some visible sight of two persons of the Glorious Trinity the Father and the Son, but he could not so well discern the Holy Ghost. As his wife was weeping by him he said to her, 'Hold your peace, weep not, for you and I will live fifteen years together,' which accordingly was accomplished.
> He lived 70 years and his wife above 90. Before her death 42 Grandchildren, 43 of her Grandchildren's children and 3 of the fourth generation. (Deaf Robert)

> He was an elder to Mr. John Will in Glendemont [sic, Will was minister there from 1654-79], he went to New England with all his family and settled at Nutfield [Londonderry, NH] east of Boston, his wife and he lived near sixty years together, his age was above ninety years (Deaf Robert).

It is part of the family tradition that Peter and Christian were survivors of the Siege of Londonderry. In 1689, the fighting between forces supporting James II and forces supporting William and Mary, focused on the important Protestant city of Londonderry. King James came to the fortified walls and demanded entrance in April, Londonderry refused, and the Jacobites laid siege. Crowded with large numbers of Protestants who had fled from the invading forces, the refugees had brought cattle and provisions with them. Even so, the heavy overcrowding soon reduced the supplies and dogs and cats were offerred in the butcher shops. "It is said that fat men were nervous of going out of doors for fear of the covetous and hungry looks bestowed on them by the starving populace" (The Londonderry Plantation, p.102). Estimates place the numbers within the walls at about thirty thousand, through the first part of the siege. The Jacobites fired mortars at the walls and blocked the Foyle river to prevent rescue by water. Although several vessels from the English Navy arrived at the barrier in early June, it was not until late July, when the besieged people suffering fever and privation, began to show a willingness to negotiate with the Jacobites, that the Navy forces were ordered to break through the barrier. They arrived at the walls of Londonderry on 28 July 1689 and the Jacobites were forced to abandon the siege.

Children, surname COCHRAN:

i. JOHN[2], born probably Clondermot, co. Londonderry, Ireland circa 1650s; died Londonderry, NH 1729; married before 1701 JEAN COCHRAN, living 3 October 1729 (NHPD 16:524), daughter of Marmaduke. ("They had one son and four daughters, Ninian, Christian, Margaret and Lettea" [Deaf Robert]).

John was an elder for Rev. John Harvey at Clondermot. Harvey was minister there 1696-1731.

Children, order uncertain (NHPD 16:524), surname Cochran:

1) Christian, born Ireland circa 1701 (gravestone, Forest Hill Cemetery, East Derry)
2) Margaret, born Ireland
3) William, born Ireland circa 1705 named in his will of 1738 (NHPP #957). ("his children Peter, John, Elizabeth and Jean (m. Moor)" [Deaf Robert]).

Children (NHPP #957, except #9,10 & 11), surname Cochran:

1) Robert, born Ireland circa 1689 (gravestone, Forest Hill Cem.)
2) Jean, born Ireland circa 1693 (ibid.)

Children (Chronicles of the Cochrans):

1) Peter, born Ireland
2) Andrew, born Ireland (who married his cousin, Mary Rowan)
3) John, born Ireland, died 1747?
4) Margaret, born Ireland

\+ iv. JAMES, born Ireland circa 1680.

v. MARGARET, born Ireland; supposedly married ABRAHAM ROWAN of Ballikelly, Ireland (Chronicles of the Cochrans).
Child, surname Rowan:

1) Mary, born Ireland (married her cousin, Andrew Cochran)

JAMES[2] COCHRAN (Peter[1], James[A,B], John[C]), born Ireland circa 1680; by tradition died Topsham, ME, "aged forty," circa 1720s; marriage intentions, "James Cochran of Glenderment and Lettia Paton of Ballykelly gave up ye names to be proclaimed in order of marriages ye 4 of March 1702 and married ye 12 of Aprile" (Ballykelly Presbyterian Church, County Londonderry, Ireland) LETITIA PATTEN, died probably Londonderry, NH.

Aside from his marriage, this James leaves no mark in surviving public records. Deaf Robert says he was an elder to Rev. John Harvey, who was the Presbyterian minister of Clondermot, Ireland 1696-1731.

An interesting account appears in the Aghadowey Session Book for 1702/3, when Mary Clark of that parish is brought before the congregation to confess her too free association with James Cochran, a soldier, in 1689. It is likely that this James is too old to be the later husband of Letitia Patten.

The Manor of Grocers shows the approximate immigration date for this James Cochran, along with other men from the area near Londonderry, Ireland, who gave up their land and went to New England.

Children, based on Deaf Robert, surname COCHRAN:

\+ i. Deacon THOMAS[3], born Londonderry, Ireland circa 1703.

ii. PETER, born Londonderry, Ireland, "went to New Jersey" (History of New Boston, p.356).

iii. MARY, born Londonderry, Ireland; married JAMES WILSON of Topsham, ME (ibid.).

iv. ANN, born Londonderry, Ireland circa 1713; died 1789; of Londonderry, NH when she marries Capt. THOMAS WILSON (1713-1786), of Ireland and Boston (Private Records of Early History of Topsham, ME). This Ann does not appear in any of the traditional accounts of the Cochran family, and is placed here because there is no record of her would-be sister, Mary, who is said to have married James Wilson, yet there is a record in Topsham of Ann who married a Thomas Wilson. We suggest that Ann and Mary may be identical.
Children, surname Wilson:
1) Lettice, born Topsham, ME
2) Margaret
3) Mary
4) William, born circa 1741
5) James, born circa 1742

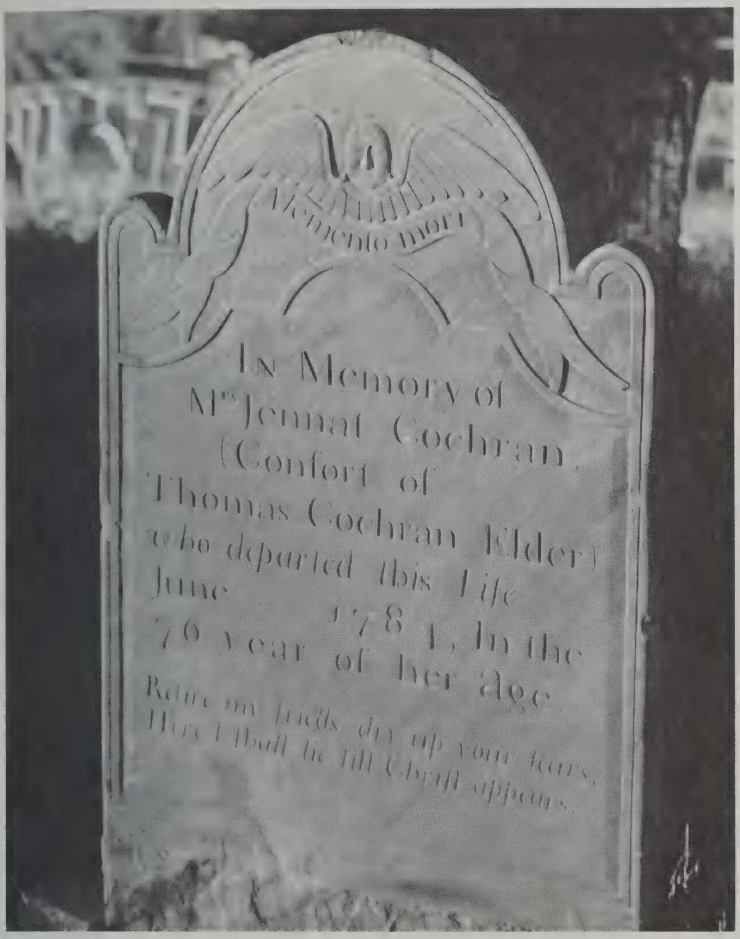
v. ROBERT, born Londonderry, Ireland; lost at sea with the entire crew of his vessel (Deaf Robert).

Deacon THOMAS[3] COCHRAN (James[2], Peter[1], James[A,B], John[C]), born Londonderry, Ireland circa 1703 (calculated); died New Boston, NH 20 November 1791 (gravestone, Old Burying Ground, New Boston); married probably Londonderry, NH prior to 1731 JANET[2] ADAMS, born Ireland circa 1708, died New Boston, NH 7 June 1784 in her 76th year (gravestone, Old Burying Ground, New Boston), daughter of JAMES[1] and ELIZABETH (ELDER) ADAMS (see Adams Chapter).

Gravestone of Thomas Cochran and son, Thomas



Gravestone of Janet (Adams) Cochran

Not long after reaching his majority, Thomas Cochran swore allegiance to King George II on 9 7ber 1727 (NH State Papers XXX:85). He is seen in Londonderry, NH as early as 1727/8, when he purchased 40 acres there from Samuel Graves. The witnesses to this deed were Peter and John Cochran, probably his grandfather and uncle (NHPD 22:252). At a proprietors' meeting at Londonderry 17 April 1729, John "ye man" Cochran, widow Cochran, Peter and Uinice Cochran and Thomas Cochran were among the persons who were laid out amendments of land (Early Records of Londonderry, p.97).

Once established in Londonderry, Thomas was active in his buying and selling of land, with many of his deeds involving family members, particularly brothers of his wife. On 3 January 1731/2, Thomas and Janet Cochran sold 16½ acres in Londonderry to Janet's brother, William Adams, of Londonderry. Both Thomas and Janet signed their names to this deed (NHPD 25:463). On 19 July 1743, John Adams of Sheepscot, Maine, yeoman, sold 50 acres in Londonderry, bordered by his brother, James Adams' land, to Thomas Cochran, their brother-in-law (NHPD 29:400). Thomas Cochran sold 50 acres in Londonderry to David Cochran of Roxbury, MA, trader, on 8 May 1745 (NHPD 30:15). Thomas sold a very small piece of meadow to James Cochran of Londonderry, carpenter, 1 April 1740. This deed was not acknowledged until twelve years later (NHPD 44:240).

In 1733, Thomas Cochran was called a carpenter when he sold 110 acres in the second division to Alexander McMurphy (NHPD 20:237). He sold a small piece of land to James Rodger of Londonderry on 30 November 1748 (NHPD 38:182). In late 1749, Thomas Cochran purchased land from John Endicott of Boston, and from Jonathan Williams, and sold land to John Wallace of Londonderry, William Adams of Londonderry and Hugh Ramsey of Londonderry (NHPDs, 44:155,156; 53:64,66,69).

An active man, Thomas Cochran served Londonderry in several capacities, being elected a surveyor of highways for Londonderry 5 March 1733/4 and surveyor 1 April 1737 (Early Records of Londonderry, pp. 171,192). He was elected a fence viewer and appraiser of damages 6 March 1737/8 (ibid., p.200). About this time, Thomas was a tax collector for Londonderry (ibid., p.201).

Thomas and Janet sold their Londonderry home for £1600 to Robert Patterson of Londonderry, husbandman, on 4 April 1752 (NHPD 40:88). This is the last time they are called of Londonderry in deeds and we may assume that at this date or a little earlier, they had built a house in New Boston, NH. It must have been a substantial house, for on 10 March 1763, the first New Boston town meeting was held there, and Thomas Cochran served as moderator and was elected a selectman and pound keeper (History of New Boston, pp. 47-48).

Thomas Cochran brought accounts to the town for payment for work done on the roads and for laying out A. Walker's land (New Boston Town Records, A:16). He was frequently a selectman through the 1760s and was pound keeper at the same times (ibid., B:4,6, passim). He was one of the committeemen chosen to raise taxes for building a new meeting house (ibid., pp.556-7).

With James Calwell, he was requested to demand the mill irons from Andrew Walker, millman (New Boston Proprietors' records, 1765, fragment, NH State Archives).

When the work on the new meetinghouse proceeded too slowly to suit the town committee, Thomas Cochran and James Calwell were elected a committee to hire workmen to finish the meetinghouse in case Ebenezer

Beard did not finish by the first of July 1767, which costs would be deducted from Mr. Beard's contract (New Boston Proprietors' records, fragment, NH State Archives). The town was ultimately very pleased with the meetinghouse and gave Ebenezer Beard extra land on top of his contract for the special trouble he had in completing it.

Deacon Cochran, as he was called, appears from time to time in the diary of Matthew Patten. "...Mrs Cochrane made me an Herb drink and I sweat considerable that day I felt better and had Deacon Cochranes Mare to ride home on" (13 July 1763, Patten Diary, p.127-8). "I sent Deacon Cochranes mare home by Robt Addams who was going up..." (15 July 1763, Patten Diary, p.278). "I bot 2 packs of Butter from Mrs Cochran" (7 December 1763, Patten Diary, p.132). "I sent Deacon Thomas Cochran by Archibald MacMurphy 9-14-0 Mass old Tenor for 38£ and 6 ounces of Butter I had from him on the 7th of Last December..." (11 January 1764, Patten Diary, p.133). "I bot 4 bushell of Rie from Deacon Cochrane and I pd him 17 £ old Tenor and half a Dollar in Silver for it..." (13 February 1765, Patten Diary, p.147). "I conversed a while with Deacon Cochrane and his wife Relateing to Mr Houston telling the Story or Report about Jannet Boies &c" (3 November 1767, Patten Diary, p.204). "Lodged at Deacons Cochranes with a great Rain" (26 February 1771, Patten Diary, p.261). "Lodged at Deacons Cochranes again snowed about 3 inches" (27 February 1771, Patten Diary, p.261).

Thomas sold fifty acres in New Boston to Thomas Smith of New Boston on 28 February 1753 (NHPD 68:60). He sold another 50 acres in New Boston to Hugh Blair on 15 June 1757 (NHPD 54:295) and land in Chester to Robert Clark in 1760 (NHPD, 64:67).

As his children reached their majorities, Thomas provided substantial pieces of land for them to settle. For love and good will, he gave his son James of New Boston, husbandman, 200 acres in New Boston 19 March 1756 (NHPD 68:60). To his son, Peter Cochran of New Boston, husbandman, Thomas deeded land on 3 February 1763, and on the same day, he deeded land to his son John Cochran of New Boston, husbandman (NHPDs 76:85,160). Thomas Cochran of New Boston sold one hundred acres in Londonderry to his son [in-law] Robert Hopkins of Londonderry for £30 on 7 September 1769 (Hillsborough Deed 3:382). He sold land to his well beloved son John Cochran, carpenter, 31 December 1781 (Hillsborough Deed 17:485). Deacon Cochran sold 150 acres in New Boston to Thomas Cochran of Francestown for £210 on 23 February 1789 (Hillsborough Deed 24:84).

On 14 June 1768, Thomas Cochran of New Boston, yeoman, sold lot #65 in the second division in New Boston to William Waugh (NHPD 97:526). Thomas Cochran signed a petition to Governor John Winthrop 25 February 1768 to set aside Lot 53 for the first settled minister and Lot 61 for school.

The Cochrans are remembered fondly in the flowery prose of the last century:

> His piety was sincere and consistent, and his character was always above reproach; he was a safe counsellor and faithful friend. He was very useful as a carpenter, aiding gratuitously new settlers in framing and rendering comfortable their dwellings. For many years there was no physician in town, but Deacon Cochran having some knowledge of diseases and their proper treatment was accustomed to care for the sick, and to exercise his surgical skill in setting many a bone. His house was the resting-place of weary travellers and his table was ever free to the hungry. After a few years Dea. Cochran becoming infirm, abandoned his homestead, and lived alternately with his sons, John and Peter, and died, with his son John, November 20 1791, aged 89, a good man, whose memory deserves to be cherished by the whole town as well as by a grateful posterity. The late Mr. Abner Hogg said of him, "He was the best man I ever knew. There was no way in which you could view him, and not pronounce him good."
> Deacon Cochran's wife, his "blessed Jenney," as he was wont to call her, was a queenly woman, equal to her husband in all virtues. She was a crown of glory to him and a blessing to the whole town. She carried relief to the sick and joy to the needy, and was a ministering angel in every sorrowing household. (History of New Boston, pp.356-7)

Gravestone of John and Elizabeth (Boyes) Cochran

Because there were so many Cochrans in New Boston, and the records do not show "Sr." or "Jr." distinctions, it is not possible to know whether it was this John Cochran who was town clerk for many years and who unsuccessfully resisted the election of Jonathan Gove as representative.

The History of New Boston, remembers him,

> He settled on Cochran Hill, where his daughter Peggy, at the venerable age of 87, now lives, occupying the same house which her father built nearly a hundred years ago, being the first framed house erected in that part of town... Mr. Cochran was an excellent man; having ample means, he maintained a most hospitable table. New settlers made his house their home as long as it was necessary, and travellers were never turned away unfed, his "latch-string being never pulled in" by day nor by night. He was skilled in hunting game, in which he took great pleasure. Mr. Daniel Dodge carries a cane, the head of which is the antler of a deer shot by Mr. Cochran in his own field near his house. He was a man of giant frame, and great personal courage and prowess. Tradition says that having followed a bear to her den, from which she could not be driven, he, with a torch in one hand, and his never-erring musket in the other, entered the den and shot her in her dark recess, and putting a rope around her neck, with the assistance of his neighbors drew her forth as a trophy. Mr. Cochran was very useful as a house carpenter, in which trade he was much employed. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church, and lived a consistent christian life, and died March 29, 1825, aged 88; his wife died October 23, 1821, aged 83. At his funeral Rev. E.P. Bradford preached from the text Gen. I.1: "And Joseph fell upon his father's face, and wept upon him, and kissed him." At her funeral Rev. Mr. Bradford preached from the text Gen. xxiii.2: "And Sarah died in Kirjath-arba; the same is Hebron in the land of Canaan: and Abraham came to mourn for Sarah, and to weep for her" (History of New Boston, p.358).

When a group of twenty-five descendants of John Cochran held a social reunion with Margaret[5] Cochran at the old Cochran Hill residence just after the New Boston centennial celebration in 1863, a fourteen piece table service of pewter platters and plates was used, brought by Elizabeth (Boyes) Cochran to New Boston from Londonderry as part of her dowery (Holman manuscript, Gregg folder, p.7).

Gravestone of Joseph Cochran

Gravestone of Margaret (Hogg) Cochran

At the time of Joseph's death, some controversy existed over the status of his second wife's assets, and neighbors were asked to depose regarding their knowledge of the situation.

> The undersigned being requested to make some statements in regard to the affairs of Dea. Joseph Cochran late of New Boston - Would respectfully represent that we have for many years been well acquainted with Dea Cochran and his Family. It was about 7 years from the time he married his last Wife to the time of his death. It is well known that when they were marryed she did not put her property into his hands, but reserved for herself and has ever had the full control and management of her own property: besides her full proportion in the management of his.

We believe that she brought but very little of any kind of furniture into the house The family consisted of only the two, for about two years: when she brought her mother home to live with her, where she still remains her age is about 83: The Dea owned a small farm which he has for many years had carryed on to the shares, and all his produce, except it may be a few apples and a little garden sauce brought into his house and barne. His health for most of the time till within a few months of his death was good for a man of his age: so that he was able for most of the time to take care of his small stock which he usually kept, and to doe most of the other light work necssary to be done. We believe he was a man who always made good and ample provision for the support, conveniance, and cumfort of his household. Solomon Dodge

An account of the Cochran family written by a descendant circa 1730 has been preserved in the collections of the Presbyterian Historical Society in Philadelphia, PA. Although a recent search for this document by the librarians and archivist there was unsuccessful, a transcription done in 1866 was filmed by the Latter Day Saints and a slightly different transcription appeared in the journal Ulster Origins #7. What looks to be an earlier, handwritten, copy, was also filmed by the Latter Day Saints, and a verbatim version is presented here. We refer to this work as "Deaf Robert" in our text.

A Genealogical Account of the Cochran Family in Ireland & America written by Robert Cochran circa 1730

John Cochran the first of our family that settled in Ireland, came from Fernois 2 miles eastward from Paisley in Scotland, he had three sons Hugh John, and James; his first settling was at Griblon distant 7 miles from Londonderry, he was there employed in the Salmon fishery by the Lord of Straban.

Hugh and James having rescued their father, who was apprehended for debt, obliged them to leave Griblen, they went then to the foot of the Foughen waters and were protected by Lord AsKain, who employed them in their former business. this was in the year, this was in the year 1570 in the minority of James the sixth, before the English Conquest in the North of Ireland.

He and his offspring lived 110 years in three towns, Moboy, Kilkeraugh and Carrikeel. old Peter with his family, John ye man so called, & Jonathin went to New England.

I can give no particular account in order of the posterity of Hugh Johns oldest son, I have seen several of them and been acquainted with them, viz. Hugh Kittough and John Ro so called and his son Robert, called gentle Robert, and his son Robert they had the oversight of the fishery. Young Robert enlisted in the Kings service and was clerk to the troops.

The before mentioned Andrew that left his wife had a fine family of children, he got a child by adultery also John Bakah got a child with his servant maid, & his wife dying soon after, he married her. these are the only 2 scabby sheep that have been in y^{e} flock. there was but 5 bastards in y^{e} name tho three were more excusable, & gave penitent satisfaction therefore I omit the naming of them, there was not one laid to the charge of the female sex, that was the line of Jas. that was ye Father of ye 6 brothers.

I know yt there many things yt are not in due order by reason of the weakness of my memory, and some may be from misinformation, but I have intended the truth. I had one written before but not in any method I was not much of a scholar. I write these lines in order, I may not be easily censured by those who it may concern. I conclude I may put my hand to what I have written.

GREGG

Captain JAMES[1] GREGG, born Ayrshire, Scotland circa 1674 (calculated from age at death); died Londonderry, NH 10 March 1758 in his 85th year (gravestone, Forest Hill Cemetery, East Derry); married before 1695 JANET CARGILL of Islay, Scotland (Autobiography of Major Samuel Gregg), born between 1665 and 1672, died Londonderry between 13 October 1763 when she deeded her dower right in her homestead to her son Thomas (NHPD 69:452) and 28 December 1764, when an inventory of her husband's estate mentions payment of what appear to be her funeral expenses (NHPP #2833)(see Cargill Chapter).

James Gregg

Gravestone of James Gregg

From the Autobiography of Major Samuel Gregg (see Gregg Appendix), we learn that

> My grandfather James Gregg was a native of Ayrshire, Scotland, emigrated in 1690, lived in north of Ireland in County of Derry in the Parish of Muaskee. His forefathers came from Aberdeen, Scotland. He was a bleacher of linen cloth.

After a small group of Scotch-Irish led by Rev. James MacGregor arrived in Boston 4 August 1718 from Ireland, they petitioned the Massachusetts Bay General Court for land, a petition which was readily accepted in general terms. James Gregg and other Scotch-Irish came from Casco Bay in the present state of Maine, to Haverhill in April of 1719, where they learned of > a fine tract of land about fifteen miles distant, called Nutfield, from the abundance of its chestnut, walnut, and butternut trees. Here they determined, after an investigation, to take up the grant which they had obtained from Massachusetts of a township twelve miles square. After building a few temporary huts they returned to Haverhill for their families.... (History of Londonderry, p.9)

The settlement was established on either side of a small brook they called West Running Brook (LTR 5:18). By June they were comfortable enough to organize the building of a sawmill on Beaver River, and Robert Boyes, James Gregg, Samuel Graves and Joseph Simonds agreed to complete the mill some time in the month of September following (ibid.).

James Gregg was one of the more than one hundred men to receive a deed transferred by Col. John Wheelwright of Wells from a grant made to Wheelwright's grandfather, from the "whole tribe of Indians between ye River of Merimack & Piscataqua," on 17 May 1629, dated 20 October 1719 (NHPD 11:138). This deed was a matter of some controversy and the settlement of Nutfield, later called Londonderry, was not immediately recognized by its neighbors. During the negotiations for the deed, the would-be town ordered James Gregg and Robert Wear to take a petition to the New Hampshire court to establish government and town authority. The court delayed its consideration of this petition repeatedly (LTR 5:18).

> The Humble petition of the People late of Ireland now settled at Nutfield to his Excellency the Governor and General Court assembled at Portsmouth Sept 23d 1719.
> Humbly Sheweth, That your Petitioners having made application to the General Court met at Boston in October last and having obtained a grant for a Township in any part of their unappropriated lands took incouragement thereupon to settle at Nutfield about the Eleventh of Aprile last which is situated by Estimation about fourteen miles from Haverel meeting House to the North West and fifteen miles from Dracut meeting House on the River merimack north and by East. That your petitioners since their settlement have found that the said Nutfield is claimed by three or four different parties by virtue of Indian Deeds, yet none of them Offered any disturbance to your petitioners except one party from Newbury and Salem. Their Deed from one John Indian bears date March the 13th Anno Dom: 1701 and imports that they had made a purchase of the said land for five pounds, by virtue of this deed they claim ten miles square Westward from Haverel line and one Caleb Moody of Newbury in their name discharged our People from clearing or any wais improving the said land unless we agreed that Twenty or five and twenty families at most should dwell there and that all the rest of the land should be reserved for them.

That your petitioners by reading the Grant of the Crown of Great Britain to the Province of the Massachusetts bay, which determineth their northern line three miles from the River merrimack from any and every part of the River and by advise from such as were more capable to judge of this Affair, are Satisfied that the said Nutfield is within his Majesties Province of New Hampshire which we are further Confirmed in, because the General Court met at Boston in May last, upon our renewed application did not think fit any way to intermeddle with the said land.

That your petitioners therefore imbrace this opportunity of addressing this honourable Court, praying that their Township may consist of ten miles square or in a figure Equivalent to it, they being already in number about seventy Families & Inhabitants and more of their friends arrived from Ireland to settle with them, and many of the people of New England settling with them, and that they being so numerous may be Erected into a Township with its usual Priviledges and have a power of making Town Officers and Laws, that being a frontier place they may the better subsist by Government amongst them, and may be more strong and full of Inhabitants:

That your Petitioners being descended from and professing the Faith and Principles of the Establist Church of North Britain and Loyal Subjects of the British Crown in the family of his Majesty King George and incouraged by the happy administration of his Majesties Chief Governour in these provinces and the favourable inclincations of the good people of New England to their Brethren adventuring to come over and plant in this vast Wilderness, humbly Expect a favorable answer from this honourable Court and your Petitioners as in duty bound shall ever pray &c, Subscribed at Nutfield in the name of our people Sept ye 21st 1719.

By James Gregg
Robert Wear (LTR 5:377-378)

Acceptance did not come until King George signed an outright grant to the proprietors of Londonderry, dated 21 June 1722 (History of Nutfield, p.78). In anticipation of acceptance, the town of Londonderry conducted business as usual, and in the fall of 1719 selected a committee of seven men to direct town affairs, one of whom was James Gregg (LTR 5:21). He filled this position as selectman until 9 July 1722 when it was voted that Mr Gregg "shall be no longer in the Commite" (LTR 5:44). The town paid the sums of £6.9.3 and £4.5.6 to Mr. Gregg for indeterminant services in May of 1722 (LTR 5:27-28).

He was back in town affairs in January 1723/4 when he was one of three chosen to meet with a similar committee from Chester to adjust the town line with them as well as between Londonderry and Haverhill (LTR 5:48). The Haverhill line to the south was drawn again in 1729, and James Gregg was part of the committee (LTR 5:91). He was named one of the three men to defend the town lines from encroachment in September 1729 (LTR 5:100) and went to run the line with Kingstown in December 1729 (LTR 5:105). He was chosen a surveyor in 1730 (LTR 5:108) and 1731 (LTR 5:126).

James Gregg again served as a selectman for Londonderry in March 1732/3 (LTR 5:145). That this return to the town's highest office roughly corresponded with Robert Boyes' departure for Ireland to seek a new minister may indicate the tenor of town politics. Gregg repeated in 1734 (LTR 5:158). He was part of the committee in 1724 that tried its hand at drafting law, addressing the improper cutting of timber on the town common lands (LTR 5:49-50). He returned to the town meeting as moderator in March of 1727/8 (LTR 5:73) and served again in April 1728 (LTR 5:78), March 1728/9 (LTR 5:80), September 1729 (LTR 5:100), December 1729 (LTR 5:104), and March 1732/3.

James Gregg was elected a Representative in April of 1736 (LTR 5:182).

Captain Gregg and John Mitchell were chosen to establish a road from town to Tower Hill in the spring of 1725 (LTR 5:55). In subsequent years Gregg surveyed and plotted many similar roads for the town (LTR 5:59).

James Gregg had a conspicuous part to play in the development of the church in Londonderry. In January of 1724 he was named one of four men to pursue the finishing of the lower story of the meetinghouse and to establish the general lottery for seating (LTR 5:48). When the meetinghouse required repair, Capt. Gregg was one of three men who were chosen to treat with the workman over cost and timing (LTR 5:68). When it was time to assess the poles and estates for Londonderry to raise a rate to repair the meetinghouse, James Gregg and James Aiken were chosen to make the assessment (LTR 5:84). He was paid 4s per day for this work (LTR 5:88).

After the much lamented death of Rev. MacGregor, Capt. James Gregg and six others were selected to give bond to the new minister, Rev. Mr. Mathew Clark, for his salary (LTR 5:117). Soon a second minister was proposed, and again Capt. Gregg was named to the committee to help settle such a man (LTR 5:120). He was one of the very large committee, along with his sons William and John, who considered calling to Ireland for this second minister (LTR 5:135). When Robert Boyes made the trip to Ireland and returned, James Gregg was one of those who counted Boyes' expenses for reimbursment (LTR 5:153).

In 1739 James Gregg, John Gregg, John Anderson, James Adams, James Lindsay and William Adams joined together to oppose the calling of William Davidson to come to Londonderry as a minister (LTR 5:228).

An abstract of the petition of inhabitants of old and new parishes in Londonderry, shows much of the conflict in the settlement at this time:

> That whereas in february in the year 1739-40 there was a new parish set off in this town by the Generall Court, Granting Libery to fourty famelyes that lived within the Bounds of the said new parish still to Remain members of the old parish with their estates and at the same time granted Liberty that fourty famelys that lived within the Bounds of the old parish Should become members of the new parish With their estates if they saw cause...that still their was some few famelys and single persons in Both parishes that was not contented because they were obliged to pay there parish Tax where they properly belonged and went to the contrary parish to the publick worship, and that whereas freedom and Liberty is most to be Desired especially in Religious affairs ... the people of this town ... came to a mutuall agreement that all persons who had a mind to become members of the new parish should on a certain day then appointed meet the two committees and sign their names to said agreement which is two tedious here to Insert and those that had a mind to become members of the old parish had the same liberty...that you would be pleased to pass an act to establish this our agreement, and that those persons, with their estates who hath already signed their names with us may become mbmers of the old and new parish as they have signed, and that you would be pleased to Incorporate the new parish into a town & have priveledges as other towns...likewise that you would be pleased to explain the former act Relating to the fourty famelys that is to say whither on the sale of any of those fourty estates the purchaser shall be obliged to pay his parish tax where the estate is signed unto, or whither he may be at his Liberty to go to the other parish if he sees good...

The first of the twelve committeemen who signed this petition was James Gregg (LTR 5:393-395).

He appears paying his "sallary" on pew number 38 in the meetinghouse, totalling 19s in 1755 (LTR 5:258).

Londonderry and Derry architectural historian, Harriet Newell, wrote a series of books about the area and had this to say about the Gregg settlements:

The first James Gregg built here a stone garrison house in 1723, possibly replacing a log cabin. The stone mason was Archibald Stark, father of General John Stark. Over the entrance was a long split stone marked 17 G 23 with a vine and hour glass design.

The Gregg garrison house was torn down in 1810 and the lintel was placed in the foundation of the new house.

The place remained in the Gregg family until 1866 (Newell 1:166-7).

James Gregg's gristmill remained in the family until 1824 when Joseph Gregg sold it to Adams and Redfield (Newell 1:165).

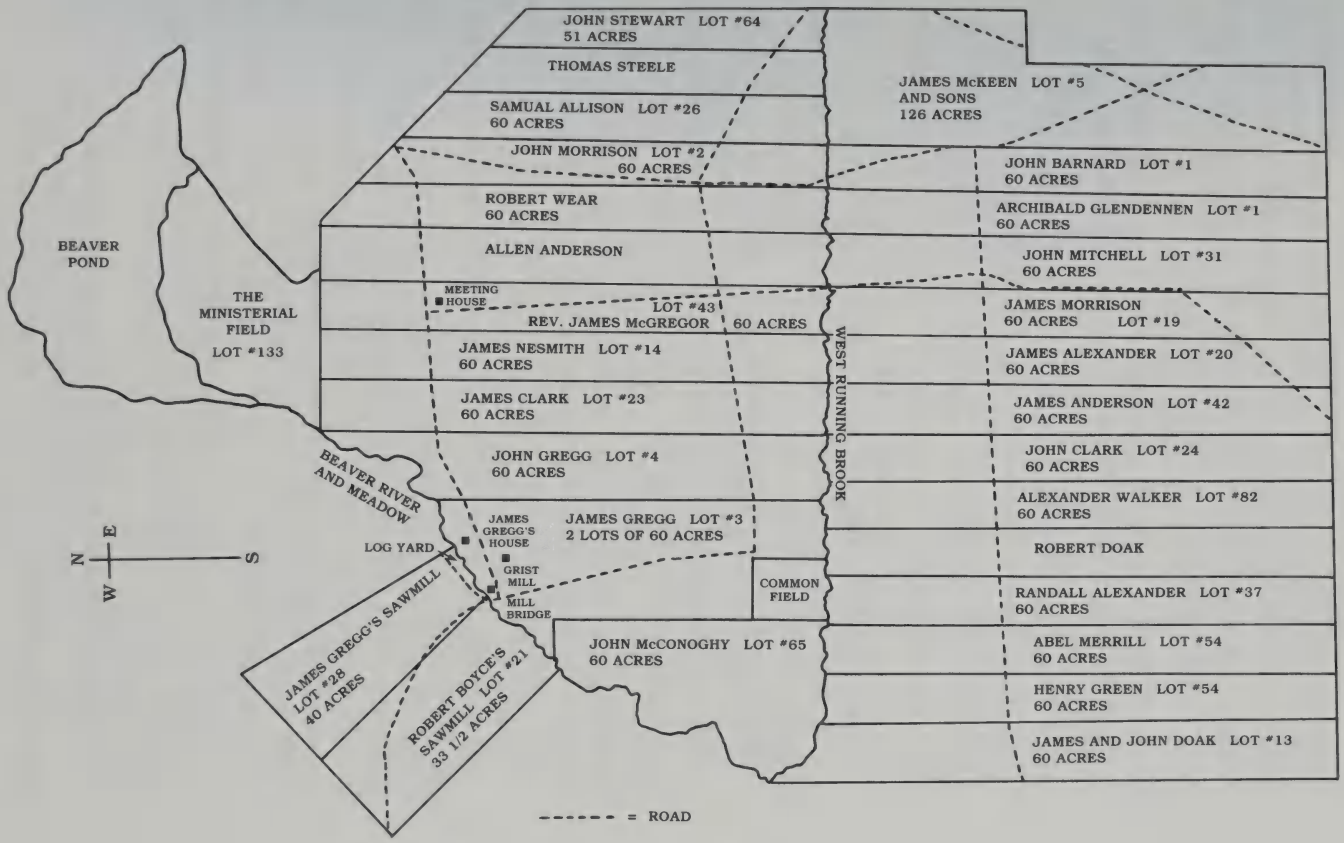
James Gregg was granted a gristmill lot on 19 January 1719/20 (LTR 5:23). The Gregg gristmill was the first in the town, built in 1722, and the earliest road of record ran past it and past his garrison house. The garrison was one of only three in the area during the early years (History of Nutfield, p.187). When the town purchased a store of ammunition, including a barrel of powder and bullets and flints, half of it was stored with Capt. James Gregg in 1744 (LTR 5:262) and in 1746 (LTR 5:274).

In the summer of 1721, when it became apparent that there was some dissatisfaction among the inhabitants of Londonderry with the varying quality of the lots assigned them, a committee of three people, including James Gregg, was selected to value the lots and to settle any complaints against them (LTR 5:30). When a petition was brought by fourteen people claiming that the division of land in Londonderry was unequal, Gregg was one of the four men assigned to answer the petition (LTR 5:92).

In January of 1722, as the town considered the division of the land called the Haverhill land, they first allowed that James Gregg was to have three divisions in it and be allowed to improve it (LTR 5:32). In 1721, when the town paid out the funds raised by the regular rate, £4.8.9 was paid to James Gregg for four lots and the sawmill lot (LTR 5:33).

In 1722 when a list was made of the proprietors and their shares, James Gregg and sons were entitled to two shares and James Gregg, Samuel Graves and Robert Boyes were entitled to one share together, having to do with the sawmill lot (LTR 5:41-42). In addition to this, Mr. James Gregg was given 150 acres, as well as a mill stream in the town that he shared with John Goffe for their "good servis in promoting the settlement of the Town" (LTR 5:43). In 1729, Capt. Gregg's return was one of three that was read off and approved in town meeting (LTR 5:98) and he and son Samuel Gregg had one approved in town meeting in 1730, as well (LTR 5:107). As a lotlayer, he had another return made and approved in January 1731 (LTR 5:124). He was one of the nine proprietors chosen to determine the method of laying out the lots in Londonderry's fourth division (LTR 5:147) and shortly thereafter was named to the Proprietors'

SOME EARLY LONDONDERRY LOTS LAID OUT 1720-1729



Committee to act on all matters pertaining to regulation of proprietary lands (LTR 5:151).

James Gregg was quite active in the making of deeds, but saw to it that the majority of his lands remained in family hands. A few exceptions include his sale of forty-six acres in Londonderry bordering the town common to Robert Cochran of Londonderry on 18 February 1724/5. Wife Janet Gregg made her mark to this deed (NHPD 14:639). Joining with two of his sons, James Gregg and wife Janet, William Gregg and wife Janet, and John Gregg and wife Agnes, all of Londonderry, sold fifty acres in Londonderry for £85 to Andrew Cochran on 1 November 1727 (NHPD 16:92). James Gregg of Londonderry sold one full lot adjoining John Archibald's land for £30 to Thomas Wilson of Londonderry on 1 January 1731/2. Janet made her mark to this deed (NHPD 18:410).

James and Samuel Gregg of Londonderry, "for love and good will and Affection wch we have to our good friend James Moor," deeded fifty-two acres in Londonderry and one quarter part of James' amendment land with one quarter part of our meadows at Stone Dam and Pine Swamp on 16 June 1729 (NHPD 23:471). Janet made her mark to this deed. This may have been a wedding present to daughter Elizabeth on the occasion of her marriage to James Moor.

James Gregg was called a gentleman in his deeds and saw that his sons were amply provided with land. For love and affection, James Gregg, gentleman, deeded to his son William Gregg of Londonderry, yeoman, forty acres in Londonderry on 7 March 1745 (NHPD 39:251). For £500, James Gregg, gentleman of Londonderry, sold to his son William sixty acres in Londonderry, on which William Gregg was then living, 15 March 1747/8. This deed was not acknowledged until 27 September 1753, more than a year after William's death (NHPD 42:326). With his sons Samuel and Thomas, James sold another forty acres in Londondery to his son William Gregg, surveyor, of Londonderry in another late recorded deed (NHPD 42:328).

He sold to the heirs of his deceased son William Gregg, for £100 one fourth part of the land laid out to James Gregg and Samuel Gregg in the amendment land, including a quarter of the sawmill lot, totalling three hundred and eighty acres, on 30 May 1755 (NHPD 73:311).

Although James remembered his second son, John, the two deeds show a separation of their interests. He sold sixteen acres in Londonderry, part of his home lot, to son John Gregg, of Londonderry, gentleman, for £400 on 1 May 1753 (NHPD 42:329). Also to son John Gregg, James sold two hundred acres in Londonderry called the Charter Farm 30 May 1755 (NHPD 59:206).

With third son Samuel, James had a closer bond than he had with his elder sons. James sold for £5 to his son Samuel thirty acres of land in Londonderry, being one half of his home lot and half his land laid out on the northwest side of Beaver Brook and one half of all later Divisions to come, on 1 November 1725 and acknowledged 2 April 1726 (NHPD 46:484). With son Samuel, James sold forty acres in Londonderry in the Second Division lot #93 for £260 to George Moor of Londonderry, carpenter, on 16 April 1745. Janet made her mark, and Mary, Samuel's wife, was mentioned, but did not sign (NHPD 30:17). James sold several tracts of upland and meadow in Londonderry to his son Samuel, by this time also called gentleman, for £100, reserving liberty to pass with wood and hay, "as formerly and upon the same paths that have been used for such or any other business in the past," 30 April 1755 (NHPD 86:192).

For £5 sterling, James Gregg sold to Lt. Samuel Gregg one and a half division of meadow land between Pine Island and Beaver Brook on 28 August 1755 (NHPD 59:405).

With sons Thomas Gregg and Samuel Gregg, James Gregg bought meadow in Londonderry near Beaver Brook from a Londonderry Committee for £20 on 5 March 1732/3 (NHPD 61:321). James sold to his son Thomas for £500 land near the mill on 4 March 1755 (NHPD 124:449). Thomas Gregg of Bradford, Orange County, VT sold this land to John Anderson of Corinth, VT, yeoman, in 1789 (Rockingham Deed 124:449).

To complete his youngest son's patrimony, James sold for £500 to his son Thomas Gregg of Londonderry, yeoman, land by the mill and half the Pine Island and a lot of planting land in the new orchard containing two acres, also half the fourth Division, and also his part of the Pine Swamp Meadow, in a deed acknowledged 12 May 1755 (NHPD 45:412).

Depositions regarding James Gregg's use of the mill dam near his gristmill were entered after his death when his sons were sued by Robert Boyes of Londonderry for flooding his meadow. It seems that in his lifetime, Captain James Gregg had an agreement with Robert Boyes that he could maintain the dam, which flooded one of Boyes' meadows, in return for free grinding of his grain. This is seen in the deposition of Randall Alexander, who told how going to the gristmill, the grain of Robert Boyes was put up before his, and that Gregg told him he was obliged to Boyes for flooding his meadow (NHP Court #21926, deposition dated 3 March 1759).

In 1739, Captain Gregg was one of the men invited to the raising of the sawmill for Robert Campbell, George and Thomas Clark at Litchfield. The incident which resulted from the Captain's hot words is told under Samuel[2] Gregg, below.

James Gregg made infrequent appearances in Matthew Patten's diary, usually as the supplier of rum, in entries for the latter half of 1757 (Patten Diary, pp. 38,41,42).

At her husband's death, Janet Gregg declined administration of his estate in the following petition to the Judge of Probate:

In the account listed by his administrators, payment was made for £170.6.8 for "his Wife's Funeral Gloves." This large sum indicates that gloves were given to attendees at her funeral. James' estate paid £100 for his gravestone, but no mention was made of a gravestone for his wife.

Matthew Patten attended the vendue of James Gregg's estate 1 January 1759 (Patten Diary, p.59).

Samuel Gregg took the 1727 Oath of Allegiance in Londonderry (NH State Papers, 30:85).

During the lifetime of James Gregg, Samuel Gregg was overshadowed by his very active and forceful father. Samuel rarely took part in town government, but seems to have tended to the family mills and business. He was voted a surveyor for the westerly side of Beaver Brook in 1750 (LTR 5:296) and in 1756 (LTR 5:328), but was not otherwise evident in town office.

In July of 1739, Samuel Gregg, his brother Thomas and his father James, all participated in the raising of a sawmill for Robert Campbell, George and Thomas Clark at Litchfield. The following depositions tell the story of a hot-blooded encounter which nearly resulted in a man's death.

The Deposition of Jonathan Tyler Jr of Haverhill being of full age Do Testifie and Say that I was hired to build a sawmill for Robert Campbell of Londonderry and George Cleark and Thomas Cleark both of Litchfeild and on the 31 day of July 1739 raised Said saw mill and Captain Grag Samuel Grag and Thomas Grag and Several other men came to the Raising from LondonDerry and Robert butterfeild John Chamberlain and Jonathan Howard from Souhegon East Came also to Said Raising and we all Joyned togeather In Raising the mill very peasablely and quietly Wile after Raising and then Several men began to push one another Into a ditch that was dug to lay one the sils In which was about Eighteen Inches Deep and about three foot longe all in play as I thought Tel Samuel Chamberlain pushed In Thomas Grag aforesaid and he Resented it very much and Closed In with Said Chamberlain and they Both fell Down Togeather and Samuel Gragg and Robertt Butterfeild went to part them and In parting them they fell out themSelves and Chollered one another but they were Soon parted and then they Came to the house of Thomas Cleark and then they began to Differ again and went out to fight and I and Several more men followed them and prevented there fighting at that Time and persuaded them to make pease one With the other which they then did and Samuel Gragg Told Butterfeld that the pease should be for one Day or for a Week or a month or a year or for Ever and Butterfeild Answered it Shall be for Ever and they Both Shook hands and parted In pease (as I thought) and after this I heard nor Saw any diference amounge them while about dailight In and then I heard Somebody Whislee and Saw a parsel of men to geather In a ring about Twenty Rods from the house and I went to see what they were doing and there I Saw Samuel Gragg and Robert Butterfeld down on the ground togeather and I Saw Hugh Gragg put his hand down to Samuel Gragg and Imediately Butterfeild Cryed murdy and one Benjamin Blocket and others took of Gragg from Butterfeild and he was very bad cut and further saith not (Sworn at Almsbury 20 May 1745, NHP Court #23420)

As with most cases, the story looks different through the eyes of each and every deponent. Robert Read saw it this way:

Robert Read of lawfull age testifieth & Saith that he being at at a Raising of a mil in or near Litchfield on the 31st of July 1739 there was Some differnce in the daytime between two or three of the Graggs and Saml Chamberlain and Robert Butterfield and in the evening next following said day Sometime after Capt Gregg Saml Gregg Thos Gregg Hugh Morrison James Lassley John Taggert and Patrick Taggert was gone home as I thought I together with Robert Butterfield Jona Howard William Richardson and Saml Chamberlain went homewards and about thirty Rods distant from the house was the sd Greggs & others in the Road and I heard one whistle with a Sharp noise at which they immediately gatherd together and I Saw Thos Gregg Strike Robert Richardson without any provocation and Saml Gregg and Robert Butterfield met and I heard them Speak to each other and heard Saml Gregg tell him he had

(Sworn 28 January 1744/5, NHP Court #23420)

It seems that the differences between the "English men" and "Irish men" were wide enough to cause bloodshed. Samuel Gregg brought this case to the Justices of the Peace 16 August 1739 and petitioned against Jonathan Powers, Peter Russell, William Richardson, Robert Read, Jonathan Chamberlain, Samuel Chamberlain, Benjamin "Bloghead," John Chamberlain and Robert Butterfield for attacking, wounding and evilly treating him. The court found in his favor (NHP Court #24003).

In general, Samuel seems to have been reputed to be a good man in a fight, for he was elected the lieutenant in the town militia by the 1750s and was ever after known as Lt. Gregg.

In later years, Samuel appears to have been a more sober and thoughtful man. His name is first on the list of petitioners who signed the following document sent to Governor Wentworth in 1758, suggesting that he may have been the one to initiate it:

> The Humble Petition, of the Subscribers Inhabitants of Londonderry ... Humbly Sheweth, That the Number, of Taverns, are so Multiplied, in Londonderry Aforesaid, they are become a Snare to the Youth, & of Evil Tendency, to every Age of Injudicious persons, & if they are All Continued (or which is worse Increased) we fear they will More & More Debase, & Debauch, the Manners & Morals of All such persons as Abovesaid.
> Therefore Your Petitioners Humbly pray, that for the future there may be but four Taverns, & Retailers, Alowed in Londonderry, aforeSaid, & the Inn-holders, to be Chosen by A majority, of Votes at the Annual Meeting, & so Annually Untill the Circumstances, of the Town Requires a greater, Number, & them that are pro Tempore, to be under such Regulations, in Respect to Travellers, Towns-Men, Sabbath-Days, & every night, as in your Great Wisdoms you think Most Convenient, & most Conducive, to Incourage Virtue & Discourage Vice, & your Petitioners, as in Duty Bound, Will ever Pray.

Samuel Gregg's early properties came from his father and often were near Beaver Brook where the Greggs had a grist mill. He received half of his father's homelot for £5 on 1 November 1725, as well as half of all future divisions to be made in James Gregg's right (NHPD 46:484). His many deeds with his father are seen above. Samuel bought land from John MacMurphy of Londonderry, yeoman, paying £5 for meadow on the west side of Beaver Pond on 19 February 1742 (NHPD 46:486).

Samuel, called a gentleman, purchased 70 rods in Beaver Brook meadow from John Cochran of Londonderry, yeoman, on 14 April 1750 for £2.5.0 (NHPD 57:391). The next month, brothers William, John and Thomas joined Samuel Gregg in quit claiming all rights to Robert Cochran's proprietary share to his heirs 24 May 1750 (NHPD 60:120). On 11 June 1750, Samuel and his brothers William, John and Thomas, quit claimed their rights in land their father had sold to Thomas Willson (NHPD 39:485). In a trade with his brother, Thomas, Samuel switched land in Londonderry, reserving 5 rods for a road on 18 April 1761 (NHPD 70:118).

John Carson of Litchfield, husbandman, sold for £5 to Samuel Gregg of Londonderry, husbandman, a little upland in Bedford 25 December 1752 (NHPD 59:263). The same day he sold two lots of 50 acres each in Bedford to Samuel Gregg (NHPD 59:264). Samuel Gregg of Londonderry, gentleman, sold for £24 to Robert Cunningham of Londonderry, husbandman, his pine swamp meadow on 19 February 1755 (NHPD 49:253). John Wier and Jane his wife, of Londonderry, gentleman, sold two lots of meadow by Beaver Brook to Samuel Gregg for £200 on 4 October 1760 (NHPD 66:254). James Clark of Londonderry, yeoman, and Margaret his wife, sold for £5 a piece of meadow near Beaver Brook on 30 May 1761 (NHPD 66:256). Samuel Gregg, gentleman, sold 35 acres in Derryfield to William Moore of Londonderry, yeoman, on 8 January 1762 (NHPD 67:129).

Samuel Gregg of Londonderry, gentleman, sold 73 acres in Londonderry, being one half of his homestead farm where Gregg was living, being land he had purchased of his honored father, including half the house and 1½ acres of meadow and 190 acres more of Amendment land in a deed acknowledged 10 August 1770 to John Prentice (NHPD 97:502).

Samuel was occassionally called upon to witness wills and appraise inventories. In 1745 he witnessed the will of James Blair of Londonderry and well as took the inventory (NH State Papers 33:303) and in 1752, he helped James Moor draw up the inventory of Gregg's brother, William, late of Londonderry (NHPP #1770). His clear signature can be seen on this document.

Something approaching a testamentary deed was made between Samuel Gregg and his son Samuel Jr. on 1 June 1771 when Samuel deeded his son about twenty-four acres and "one half the Farm I [Samuel Sr.] live upon Upland & Meadows I now possess & improve, Also one half of the Buildings on said Farm, Except the Grist Mill & the Privileges thereunto belonging during my natural life" (Rockingham Deed 102:53). This odd deed had a spot for Mary to release her dower, but she did not sign. The deed was acknowledged without her signature ten days after it was written.

Mary does not appear in Samuel's deeds, but is mentioned once as releasing her dower, yet did not sign this deed to George Moor, 16 April 1745 (NHPD 30:17). She served with Matthew Thornton as administratrix of her husband's estate, having been appointed by the court 25 November 1778 (Rockingham Probate #4501). Her thirds were set out 28 September 1779 (ibid.).

AUTOBIOGRAPHY
1806

Copy of Manuscript found among the Papers of Washington P. Gregg, of Boston, Mass., by Miss Lucinda J. Gregg - endorsed: "Samuel Gregg, of Peterborough, N.H. Brief account by him and his family, written in 1805-1806, when he was 66-67 years of age. He was my Grandfather and owing to his age and defective memory, he has made several mistakes in the within which is very difficult for me to correct. W.P. Gregg
[Ed. note: We found the following material to be substantially correct.]

A GENEALOGY OF MY ANCESTORS

My Grandfather, James Gregg, was a native of Ayrshire, Scotland, emigrated about the year 1690; lived in the north of Ireland in County of Derry, in the Parish Muaskee. His forefathers came from Scotland, from a place called Aberdeen. He was a bleacher of linen cloth. He married a Scotch woman. Her name was Janet Cargill. She was from Illa, Scotland. They had four sons and one daughter born to them in Ireland. Their eldest son's name, William; 2nd, John; 3rd, Samuel; 4th, Thomas. Their daughter's name, Elizabeth. Their youngest son was about ten years old and my Grandfather was about forty when the family left Ireland.

They came to America in the year 1718 and landed at Boston with several other passengers, that came in other ships. The ship that they came in as passengers went down East and spent the winter at Casco, which is now called Portland. They came back the next spring to Newbury and a number of them that came over from Ireland that year, joined together and got a township granted them, lying partly west from Newbury about thirty miles, which they called Nutfield. They moved into it in the year 1719. My Grandfather, James Gregg, was one of the proprietors of the Town and helped to lay it out into lots. And he built the first Grist Mill in the town, and was Captain of the first company of the Militia. The town granted him 300 acres of land, which was some compensation for his trouble.

A few years later, my mother's father came over from Ireland. His name was Hugh Rankin. He was a native of Ireland. He was seventeen years old when he was in Londonderry, besieged by the Papists ninety-six days in the year 1689. After that he was married to a woman whose name was Dunlap. They lived in a town called Dongiven in the north of Ireland. I cannot tell what county. He had eight daughters that grew up and not any son. He brought them all to America and brought them to Londonderry, for that was the name of the town after they had got their charter. My Grandmother [p.2] Rankin died in Ireland. The names of their daughters are as follows: 1st, Mary; 2nd, Martha; 3rd, Jane; 4th, Ester; 5th, Janet; 6th, Agnes; 7th, Anne; 8th, Dinah.

Her name was Agnes. They had eight sons and two daughters. The eldest sons, James and his twin mate, Hugh, who died, aged twenty-one. 3rd, John; 4th, William; 5th, George; 6th, Samuel; 7th, Joseph; 8th, Benjamin. My Grandfather Gregg's fourth son was Thomas. He married Agnes Fergeson. They had six children grow up. They went off to the Cohos county a number of years ago and my uncle Thomas died there. My Grandfather Gregg's daughter married to Thomas [James] Moore. They had five sons and four daughters. The name of their oldest was James; 2nd, John; 3rd, William; 4th, Hugh; 5th, Robert. Their oldest daughter named Jinnet; 2nd, Elizabeth; 3rd, Sarah; 4th, Mary. My Grandfather Rankin's oldest daughter's name was Mary, she was married to Allan Anderson. They had no children. His second daughter whose name was Martha married James Doak. They had three sons and three daughters. Their oldest son's name was Robert; 2nd, John; 3rd, James; their oldest daughter's name was Margaret; 2nd, Martha; 3rd, Ester. His third daughter whose name was Jane, was married to John Crombie. They had three sons and five daughters. Their oldest son was Hugh; 2nd, Jinnet; 3rd, Agnes; 4th, Mary; 5th, Anne. His fourth daughter married Daniel Clyde. They had five sons and three daughters. The name of his oldest son, Joseph; 2nd, Hugh; 3rd, John; 4th, Samuel; 5th, Daniel. Their oldest daughter's name was Anne; 2nd, Mary; 3rd, Agnes. His seventh daugh [p.3] ter (nothing said of 5th and 6th, Mr. William and John Gregg.) The oldest son's name was George; 2nd, Thomas; 3rd, Hugh; 4th, John; 5th, William. Oldest daughter's name was Jinnet; 2nd, Margaret; 3rd, Anne.

I shall turn to my Father's family. My father was sixteen years old when he came to America. My mother was Agnes Rankin. They had eight sons and two daughters. Settled in a town called Snosbach, since called Litchfield, about 100 miles west of Albany, and about [numbr not given W.L.H.] miles south of the Mowhawk River. Since that he moved about thirty miles farther to the westward, and settled in a town called Augusta, where he settled all his sons but one. His oldest, John, was Captain of a Company of Militia, and his son Joseph settled in a town called Ackworth, N.H. State. Was Captain of a Company in that town. My brother Hugh who was a twin brother with my brother James, lost his sight when he was about thirteen years of age, and died at the age of 21. So much for my oldest brothers.

My brother John was my father's third son. He married to Elizabeth Gregg. She was the daughter of my uncle Samuel Gregg. They moved to Peterborough in the year 1759. They had three sons and three daughters. Their oldest son's name was Benjamin; 2nd, Ebenezer; 3rd, William. Their oldest daughter's name was Agnes; 2nd, Mary; 3rd, Jinnet. After there was a call for men to York State to stop the progress of the enemy. He went as a Major and took a tour at White Plains and then returned home. After that there was a call for men to stop Genrl. Burgoyne's army, who was invading our Western Territories. He went as Colonel of the Militia, and a few days before the Battle of Bennington, he was sent out to meet a part of Burgoyne's army who were coming right on to Bennington. He met them several miles beyond Bennington, and finding their force far superior to his, he was obliged to retreat. His name was recorded in the history of the American War. His oldest son, Ebenezer was a captain of a company of the Militia in Londonderry, and his second son is a Preacher of the Gospel.
N.B. My brother William lives in Londonderry.

I was my father's sixth son. My mother died when I was about five years old. My father had a large family and a good many of us quite small. He was obliged to hire a housekeeper a good many years before my sisters grew up. He governed the family with a very stead[y] hand. He did not indulge too much neither was he too severe. He gave us a chance of schooling, equal to our neighbors, which was poor enough, in those days. My brothers that were older than I, my father gave them land and they began to work for themselves, I was obliged to work very hard at home with my father, till I was almost eighteen years of age. Then it was in time of the French War. There was a great demand for men for to go into the War for the French who were invading our Territories. There was a great many recruiting officers, some enlisting soldiers for the Provincial Service and some for the Batoe Service, and some for the Rengen (Ranging) Service. As my mind at that time led me to go into the Army, I listed with Capt. James Rogers, who was recruiting men for the Rengen Service for one year. I marched off with him for Albany the 10th of March, the year 1758. We marched on and got about 10 miles beyond Worcester, and then we got orders to return to Boston to go to Cape Breton, which was far against my will, for my mind was to go to the Westward. We got to Boston very much fatigued and then we were sent on to Cape William. There was the place of rendezvous for the Regners. There were four Companies of Rangers which met there, viz.: Capt. McCordes; Capt. Rogers; Capt. Stark and Capt. Broncas. We stayed there about a fortnight and then went aboard of vessels and sailed to Halifax.

This was in the month of April and we stayed there to about the first of June. By this time the Grand Fleet was made up, which consisted of about 360 Sail of which 21 were of the line. Sometime about the 1st of June the whole fleet sailed from Halifax for Cape Breton. They arrived in Caberrus Bay in plain sight of the French intrenchment. The 8th day early in the morning, we were put in boats and pushed to the shore and stormed their trenches and drove the French into the City, which was about three miles. Then retreated back toward the Bay and camped that night. Then the siege began which lasted 46 days. The city surrendered with all its contents to the British arms. Sometime in the month of August a party of men was sent to the Island of St. Johns. About 400 commanded by Capt. Roler. There was half of Capt. Roger's Company and one-half of Capt. Stark's. I went with Capt. Rogers to St. John's Island and was there about three months and helped to build a Fort [p. 6] and then returned to Cape Breton, in the month of November and there was our headquarters for that winter. In the month of March Lieutenant Wm. Duffee was sent out with a party of men to see if there were any French on the back side of the Island of Cape Breton. He took with him about 40 men. I went with him. We took with us 21 days provision. We went most part of the way upon snow shoes. We took a number of French prisoners and returned in fifteen days. When the Spring opened the British fleet met in Cape Breton harbor, and sailed for Quebec about the 4th of June under the command of Admiral Sandos and Genrl. Wolfe. My time was out that I had enlisted for-- I insisted on my discharge and got it and got a passage for Boston. The 7th day of June we sailed from Cape Breton and in nine days we arrived in Boston. This was in 1759.

I came home to Londonderry to my father's and worked with him that summer. The next winter I went to my brother James to learn to make foot wheels, for he was a Wheel Maker. The next Spring I set up wheel making at my father's and worked about one year and found wheel making was no great object. I thought I must have a farm. My two youngest brothers still lived with my father-- viz.: Joseph and Benjamin. I saw that my father's mind was to have them live at Home. I knew that I must turn out somewhere. My father told me that he had lands at Peterborough lying close to my brother John's and that he would give me a lot if I would go there and live. I told him I would go and see it. Accordingly I did, and after I had seen the lands in Peterborough, I told him that if he would give me such a lot that I would go to work on it. In the year 1762 I worked upon my land all summer. In the Fall of the year I put up a frame of a house, and returned to my father's in Londonderry in the Winter. In the March following I was married to Agnes Smiley [March 1763]. She was the daughter of John Smiley of Haverhill and I moved her in June, to Peterborough in the year 1763. I got my house boarded and my chimneys up and got into it in the month of July and began housekeeping. We had a dull prospect. I had but little land cleared and no roads, and four or five miles from either Grist Mill or Saw Mill. No minister and few neighbors. We were but young and it was very discouraging to us, it being a new town and we were not used to the woods.

Notwithstanding the many difficulties that appeared before us, we kept up good courage in hopes for better times. In the course of about one year after we were married, my wife brought me a son and seeing that we had addition to our family, then we began to work

[p. 7] on our land for to get support for ourselves and offspring, as being at a great distance from our relatives, we did not depend on any assistance from any of them. We were obliged to work very hard. We got a barn up the year after we came to Peterborough. I got land cleared and got some cows and oxen and a horse and in a few years, through the blessing of God we have a living equal to the rest of our neighbors. Before the War broke out, I was appointed a Sergeant of a Company of the Militia in Peterborough, I served in that equal to any Sergeant in any Company, although I was the youngest Sergeant in the Company. A few years after a good many of the old officers resigned their commissions and there was choice of new officers in our Company. I was chosen Second Lieutenant of the Company. I served in that station a few years, then the war broke out between Britain and America. I went with the Company at the alarm to Lexington, more as a leader than a Commander, for I looked on my commission as quite dead. I stayed with the Company about eight or ten days and then returned home. By this time we had four sons and one daughter living. I worked on my farm and did not go into the army, although I had a great inclination to go into the army, but happended not to. A few years after I was chosen 1st Lieut. of a Company. After the war broke out; this state began to regulate the Militia and divide the State into regiments, and I was honored with a Major's Commission in the 23rd Regiment, commanded by Francis Blood, Colonel. I officiated in that station at one muster, which was at Temple and reviewed by Genrl. Bates and Genrl. Lovell, who was our Brigade General, and a few years after I resigned my commission and the regiment was filled up with new field officers. This ended my Military Matters, after serving as an officer of one kind or another for nigh twenty years.

During the time of the American War with Great Britain, I did not go into the war, but I assisted in carrying on the war, equal to any in town according to my interest-- I stayed at home with my family. The war between American and Great Britain commenced on April 19th, 1775, and lasted to the year 1782. Then a Peace was made between Britain and America. And about the year 1785 our youngest daughter was born. Then we had four sons and four daughters, and near about this time our oldest son was married to Rachel Stuart. I gave him a lot of land about one mile from where I live. They had three children; two sons and a daughter. Their oldest' son's name was John; he died when he was about two years old. Their second son's name was Hugh. He was born Dec. 12th, 1787, and their [p. 8] daughter Rachel was born Jan. 8th, 1789. His wife died in about three weeks after Rachel was born.

Then he married again to Hannah Hardy and they had five children when they left this town. They went off to York State in the year 1800, and settled in a town called Augusta. Hugh and Rachel we took and brought up. Hugh was our second son. He married to Sarah Holmes. They settled in Greenfield. They had eight children, seven are now living. Our oldest daughter's name is Sarah. She married to Capt. David Steele. He is now a Colonel. She has had seven children. They are all dead but one. Our 3rd daughter's name was Anne. She was married to James Gregg of Londonderry and had three children -- two that lived-- a boy and a girl. She died in the year 1804. She left the care of her son with his Grandfather Benjamin Gregg and she left the care of her daughter with her sister Polly Gregg. The name of the boy is Franklin; the name of the girl is Lucinda. Our 3rd son was Samuel. Went off to York State when he was about 21 years of age, and stayed there four or five years. He married there to Lucinda Campbell. She lived with him about two years and died.

Then he [son Samuel] left York state and settled in Boston. He married to Elizabeth Hopkinson. They had three children; two twin boys and a girl. The names of his boys are Washington, and the other, Jefferson. He follows the Chair making business, etc. Daughter's name Elizabeth. Our 4th son's name was George. I settled him at home with me and gave him part of my farm. He built a house and married to Sarah Moore, daughter of Lieut. Wm. Moore of this town. They lived with me two or three years, then sold his part of the farm and bought another farm about one mile from my house and lived there three years, and sold that farm and went and bought in York State and moved off from here in the month of Nov. 1805. They had three children, two boys and one girl. Their oldest son died in this town. He was about five years old. His name was Stephen. The other two they took with them. The boy's name is George. The girl's name was Nancy. Our 3rd daughter's name was Polly. She took great care of her mother in her sickness and has kept my house since her mother died. She remains single as yet. Our 4th daughter's name is Betsey. She was married in Feb. 1806, to Wm. Hutchings of Boston. She went off to Boston to live 6th of May, 1806. Her husband is a chairmaker. They live in Hanover [St.] at Boston. Hugh and Rachel we took and brought up. They were our son John's children that his first wife had to him. Hugh lived with me till he was about 18 years of age. Then I put him to John [8] Crombie of New Boston, to learn the carpenter trade in April, 1805. And his sister Rachel lived with us until she was bout 17 years of age, then she went off to Groton to learn the Tailor's trade with Gilbert Smith. She went off Feb., 1806.

I have given a small sketch of my family. I shall mention something respecting myself and my wife. We both enjoyed for a long time a considerable good state of health. My wife was very healthy till she had nursed all her children. Then she nursed two grandchildren which wore her almost out. She began to be very weakly and for about ten years before she died, she failed very fast and became very weakly and was so far gone many times, that her life was many times despaired of. At last she fell into a consumption about two years before she died. It seemed to wear her away very fast, notwithstanding all the doctors we employed or the medicines and directions were of no purpose. She kept growing weaker every day to her last. She died Feb. 2nd, 1803, in the 60th year of her age. We were married in March, 1763. We lived together almost forty years. As for myself. I have enjoyed a tolerable state of health for a long time, till about the year 1799, I was taken with a bad cough and shortness of breath, which settled in the Asthma disorder and has continued with me ever since. But before that in the year 1797 I had a sore begin on one of my hips. I had it opened and it became a running sore, and ran about four years and then dried up. And in about the year 1801, I fell and broke one of my legs and put my ankle out of joint. Old age and infirmities of my health is very much impaired. I am scarcely able to keep about, but I have great reason to thank God that he has continued me so long in the land of the living.

I was born in Londonderry, N.H., in April, 1739, and I am now in my 67th year, and I have wrote these few memorandums which I have collected in the year 1806.

Samuel Gregg.

HEMPSTEAD

ROBERT[1] HEMPSTEAD, born circa 1613 (deposition, Winthrop Papers 6:280); died probably New London, CT between 30 September 1653 and 17 November 1654 (writing of will and date of inventory, NL Deeds 3:14, 28); married circa 1646 JOANE _____, born England say 1620s, died probably New London before 8 May 1660 when her second husband sold land bequeathed to her by her first husband (NL Deed 3:151), calling her "late his wife." Joane has erroneously been called Willey elsewhere (Winthrop Babcock genealogy, p.255).

The widow Joane (_____) Hempstead married second as his second wife New London 22 March 1654/5 (Miner's Diary, p.13) ANDREW[1] LESTER, born say 1620s, died New London 7 January 1669/70 (NL Co Ct 2:4). Lester had married first Barbara _____, who died New London 2 February 1653/4, with whom he had four children, Daniel, Andrew, Mary and Anne. Andrew Lester married third circa 1661 Ann[2] (Brooks) Fox, daughter of Henry Brooks of Woburn, MA and widow of Thomas[1] Fox. With Ann, Lester had Timothy, Joseph and Benjamin. Ann married third after 1680, when she is still called Ann Lester in her father's will, Isaac Willey of New London. A good treatment of the Lester family by Charles Dyer Parkhurst outlining the events above, appears in a 1934 typescript, The Lester Family of New London and Groton, Connecticut, at the Connecticut State Library.

Banks, in his Topographical Dictionary, believed that Robert Hempstead was from Steeple Bumstead, co. Essex, England, but a search of records for that area showed only a William Hempstead in 1538, and no mention of a later Robert (Feet of Fines for Essex, P.R.O. Ref. CP25 [a] 12/65 HIL).

There are several reminiscences of Robert Hempstead in the diary of his grandson, Joshua Hempstead, despite the fact that Robert died many years before Joshua was born. The surviving diaries of Joshua Hempstead have been published in one volume by the New London County Historical Society. This detailed account of Joshua's activities is the most significant record of events in New London during the period 1711 through 1758. It is frequently cited here.

Joshua lived on the homestead and remarked that he "Cut down one half of the great yellow apple tree, east from the house, which was planted by my grandfather 90 years agone" (Hempstead Diary, p.346) and later, "...cut down one part of the Crotched old apple tree near their [Trumans] pairtree. a very old Tree. I concluded the same age of the Peartree both of my Grandfathers planting who lived but seven year after the Town was first settled wch was in 1646. 99 year ago in January" (Hempstead Diary, 5 February 1745/6, p.455).

A literate man, Robert Hempstead was chosen one of the prudential men for "Pequit plantation," 22 February 1648/9 and again the next year (History of New London, pp. 58, 65). He was one of 16 gathered to work for the establishment of a mill to grind corn on 10 November 1650 (ibid., p.66). With Thomas Minor and William Nicholls, Robert Hempstead deposed 17 April 1650 regarding the killing of a number of hogs by Indian women (Winthrop Papers 6:34).

In a deposition, we are given an approximate age for Robert Hempstead:

> The deposition of Robert Hemsted aged about 40 yeares. This deponent saith that he and Isaack Willy carried the chaine in the laying out of Thomas Minors lott at Poquanuch plaines, and the said Thomas and William Hallet made the stakes and sett them downe where they apointed them, and this deponent doth not remember that they measured any further then within the stakes. This deponent further saith that he remembers that the Towne at the towne meeting did order that such meadow as did not fall out to be within the upland that they measured should be reserved: further he saith that he cannot say that all the land was granted or laid out betweene John Austine and Jacob Waterhouse. Further he saith that they did not begin their measure at the pine tree, but did begin at that part of the plaine next birch plaine. For ther is [nearby?] a peice left unlaied out that runneth from John Austins lott narrower and narrower towards mr. Parks his seller. Also he saith that when they came to measure some lotts where the plaine grew Narrower, and were past the cove above the lands now in controversy, The said Thomas Minor about 2 daie after his land was measured said we must now remember to record these lotts from water to water. Further this deponent saith that about a year after when they went about measuring Carie Lathams lott, Cary Latham said he would have a certaine peice of meadow that lay by the land he was to have measured, and Thomas Minor said then we will have our land runne from water to water also. Cary answered what care I whether you run, let me have my lott to my content seing I am put off the plaine. (Winthrop Papers 6:280)

HOGG

JAMES[A] HOGG, by tradition, the father of Robert Hogg (History of New Boston, p.423).

The tradition recorded in the History of New Boston, states that Robert Hogg came to America in 1754 and settled in New Boston in 1756. Nothing further is known of his parents or where they may have come from in Ireland.

Child, surname HOGG:

\+ i. ROBERT[1], born circa 1730-32 (History of New Boston, p.423)

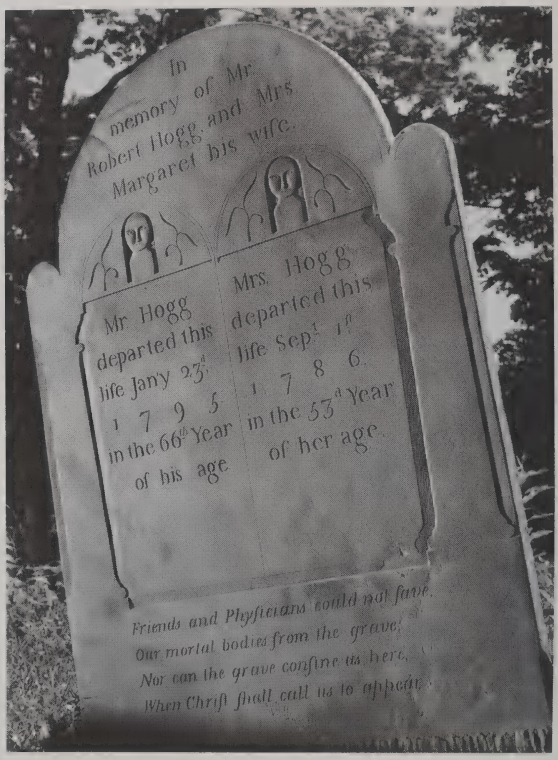
ROBERT[1] HOGG (James[A]), born by tradition Northern Ireland 25 February 1732 (History of New Boston, p.423), but by calculation circa 1730; died New Boston, NH 23 January 1795, in his 66th year (gravestone, Old Burying Ground, New Boston); married first before 1759 MARGARET[3] GREGG, born Londonderry, NH circa 1734 (calculated from age at death), died New Boston 1 September 1786 of consumption, in her 53rd year (gravestone, Old Burying Ground, New Boston & History of New Boston, p.423), daughter of Lt. SAMUEL[2] and MARY (MOORE) GREGG (see Gregg Chapter); married second circa 1790 MARY _____, probably born circa 1751, living 26 January 1833 (Hillsborough Deed 172:248), but likely died as "widow Hogg" New Boston 19 April 1839 of apoplexy, age 88 years (NHVR).



Gravestone of Robert and Margaret (Gregg) Hogg

By tradition, Robert Hogg came to America when he was 22 years old, circa 1754. Although this arrival date fits comfortably with the first Robert Hogg deed in the Province of New Hampshire, in which Samuel Hogg of Hampstead, NH, sailor, sold land in Starkstown's second range, lot 17 containing 50 acres to Robert Hogg in return for Robert's clearing and settling the 11th lot in the first range on 30 May 1754 (NHPD 44:152), this is not our Robert Hogg, who later settled in New Boston.

Our Robert Hogg makes his first appearance in Londonderry, as a weaver, purchasing 60 acres in Londonderry and a meadow in Windham from Andrew Thompson of Londonderry, weaver on 14 February 1756 (NHPD 86:197).

On 1 February 1765, Robert Hogg of Londonderry paid £2,485 to Robert and Zibiah Livingstone of New Boston for lots 60, 61 and 62, containing 150 acres in New Boston (NHPD 86:169). Later that same year, Robert Hogg of New Boston, weaver, sold the meadow in Windham to Samuel Anderson of Londonderry (NHPD 79:388). Three years later, as Robert Hogg of New Boston, yeoman, he sold the land in Londonderry he bought of Andrew Thompson (NHPD 108:12).

Once he settled in New Boston, Robert Hogg held many town offices. He was a surveyor of highways in 1770, 1774, 1775, and 1776 (New Boston Town Records, B:42,51,56,62). He was town constable in 1780 (ibid., B:127). With John Smith and Nehemiah Dodge, Robert Hogg was elected to serve on the town's Committee of Safety to deal with Revolutionary War matters on 24 March 1777 (ibid., B:92).

After the war, Robert Hogg was among those who sided with John Cochran and the other selectmen in opposing the election of Dr. Jonathan Gove as representative (ibid., 2:169). Robert Hogg was a tythingman in 1785 and 1787 (ibid., 1:178,214).

With other leading members of the town, Robert Hogg protested the suspension of the collection of the war rate in 1785 and again in 1786 (ibid., 1:184).

INMAN

Proof is lacking of the English origin of Edward Inman, a wealthy fox glover, who settled in Providence, RI after a brief appearance in Warwick, RI. However, a baptism in the parish of St. Margaret, Westminster, London generally fits what is known of the colonist and is presented here with possible siblings in hopes that further research will either prove or disprove the connection.

JOHN INMAN, born say 1580s; died after 1620; married a woman whose name is not seen.

Children, from St Margaret, Westminster parish register, surname INMAN:

i. RUTH, baptized St Margaret, Westminster 17 August 1612

ii. WILLIAM, baptized St Margaret, Westminster 5 May 1616; married before 1641 JOAN _____.
Children, surname Inman:
1) William, baptized St Margaret Westminster 29 January 1641/2
2) Elizabeth, baptized St Margaret Westminster 12 October 1642
3) Margaret, baptized St Margaret Westminster 15 February 1646/7
4) John, baptized St Margaret Westminster 19 December 1647
5) Ann, baptized St Margaret Westminster 19 May 1649
6) Elizabeth, baptized St Margaret Westminster 20 September 1652

iii. FRANCIS, baptized St Margaret, Westminster 26 April 1618

\+ iv. EDWARD, baptized St Margaret, Westminster 5 March 1619/20, possibly the immigrant to Rhode Island.

When Abraham Inman of Westmoreland County, VA wrote his will 18 April 1662, he left a bequest to Anne, the wife of one Michael Phillips. Since Edward Inman, the immigrant to Providence, RI, married as his second wife, the widow of one Michael Phillips, it has been suggested that Edward and Abraham could be related. A close look at the chronology of the Rhode Island man's appearances shows that these are separate individuals.

Michael Phillips of Rhode Island had a wife named Barbara, not Anne. Their children were born within the period 1651 to 1675 and probably within 1651 to 1668. The children were clearly with wife Barbara, from the gifts of land, etc., given by Barbara's second husband to the Phillips children.

Michael Phillips appears in 1657 in Westmoreland County, VA and makes sporadic appearances well into the 1690s. Michael Phillips of Rhode Island is not seen directly after 1668 when he became a freeman and is certainly dead by 1676 when his wife was remarried.

EDWARD[1] INMAN, possibly the one baptized St. Margaret Westminster, London 5 March 1619/20 (parish register), if so, then son of John Inman; died Providence, RI before 17 August 1706 when an inventory of his estate was taken (ERP X:88); married first before 1646 _____ _____, an unseen wife who was mother of their three children and who died in New England before 13 August 1676 when her husband is certainly remarried; married second between 1668 when her Phillips husband was a freeman at Newport, RI, and 13 August 1676, when Francis Brinley claimed Edward Inman would not pay the debt of Michael Phillips (ERP XV:151) BARBARA (_____) PHILLIPS, born say late 1620s, died after late 1706 when officials from the town of Providence went to speak with her about the administration of Edward's estate (ERP X:88-91), widow of Michael Phillips.

With Michael Phillips, Barbara had six children, John, William, James, Richard, Joseph, and Alice, all of whom appear to have been born between 1651 and 1667. Michael Phillips may have died shortly after his appearance on the freeman's list for Newport.

Edward Inman was recorded as an inhabitant of Warwick, RI before 5 June 1648 (Warwick Town Records, p.79), "receaved in order as they came first." His name appears between that of John Downing and James Sweete. The birth of his eldest son, however, is recorded just one month later, 18 July 1648, in Braintree, MA, in a record which unfortunately does not name Edward's wife, the mother of their son John. The Inmans are not seen again in Braintree.

The Warwick town council ordered that John Downing and Edward Inman should have their lots next to the Indian Field, with only a path left between the Indian field and their lots, the Indian field being over against Mr Houldens (Warwick Town Records, p.90).

Inman was one of the men who obtained a free grant of twenty-five acres of land and right of commonage in Providence 19 2mo 1645, but may not have settled there for some years (ERP II:30). He was also among those that had paid their purchase money and had quittances circa 1640s (ERP II:31). There is no hint in the Warwick records regarding Inman's reasons for moving away, certainly he had no close philosophical ties to the people of Providence, as subsequent events would illustrate.

He had moved to Providence by 27 October 1651 when he was recorded as a townsman and was granted a small piece of ground by the place where his house was, provided it was no damage to the highway (ERP II:60). Later it was found that some of this land was needed for the highway and on 7 10mo 1652 Thomas Harris and Gregory Dexter were ordered to lay out more ground for him as compensation (ERP II:66).

Because his first wife is unknown, the significance of his appearances with men such as James Ashton and Thomas Hopkins cannot be calculated. Certainly he was highly regarded in his first years at Providence, always being treated as a valued neighbor. With James Ashton, he witnessed the request of John Warner, who, about to leave for Old England, was forced to leave his child, Rachel Warner, behind, and asked that Thomas Olney and others watch over her (11 July 1652, Warwick TR, p.328-9).

Francis Brinley, in a letter dated 13 August 1676, appealled to Mr. John Whipple that Michael Phillips during his life was indebted to him and that Edward Inman having married Phillips' relict should be liable for the debt. Brinley said that he had spoken to Inman about this often and that Inman promised to pay the £2.16.0, but had not done so (ERP XV:151).

Although he may have been slow to pay this particular debt for his second wife, he made a special point of providing well for her Phillips children.

On 17 August 1686, Edward Inman Sr. deeded Joshua Clark, formerly of Newport but now of Providence, for good respect, "and for that said Clarke married with the daughter of my now wife, and for the propegateing of a Neighbourhood," 66 acres in Providence near Wasquadomsett, part of the tract of land allowed to Inman and his partners by Providence (ERP V:157).

Edward and Barbara Inman settled lands on the Pawtucket River ten miles north of Providence on Barbara's three sons, John, James and Richard Phillips on 22 May 1689. Barbara made her mark (ERP XX:271-2). Edward Inman Sr. and wife, Barbara, deeded to son-in-law Richard Phillipps of Providence twenty acres in Wesquadomesett on 26 May 1695. Barbara made her mark (ERP V:177).

By 3 January 1653 he had built a dwelling in a convenient place for his trade of dressing fox gloves. Since it was not on his homelot, there was some discussion of whether he should forfeit the homelot, but the town's decision was to allow him to retain it (ERP II:68). This is the first suggestion of Edward Inman's separation from the tiny settlement. It is possible that his religious or philosophical orientation was not completely compatible with that of the other settlers. Less than ten years after this homelot controversy, Inman and others became even further physically removed from the established government in Providence, as will be seen.

Edward Inman was received a purchaser 27 2mo 1658 and as such attended later meetings of the purchasers (ERP II:112, III:12). On that same date, Inman was ordered to pay Samuel Bennett 12s of the 30s he was to pay the town (ERP II:113).

He was called to public service many times including stints as a juryman in 1655/6, 1657, 1659, 1659/60, 1663, 1667, and 1680/1, Commissioner in 1658 and 1662, grand juror 1661, and deputy 1666-68, 1672, 1674, 1676-78 (ERP II:92,108,110,116,123, III:23,37,85,109,122,221, IV:1, VIII:14,20,25,92, XV:153,154,168). However, he did not always serve, and was fined at least once for not appearing to serve on the jury. This fine of 20s was laid against him at the General Court 29 March 1681 (Newport Ct Bk A: 57/59). He was added to the Town Council for the levying of the rate 22 September 1659 (ERP II:119) and chosen again in June 1660 (ERP II:131). On 17 December 1664, Edward Inman was chosen one of the seven men to levy the General Assembly's rate (ERP III:58). With Thomas Hopkins, he acted as surveyor of highways in 1666 (ERP III:83).

Edward Inman was eleventh on a list of Providence men who swore allegiance to King Charles II on 31 May 1666 (ERP III:101).

Edward Inman witnessed the deed of Thomas Roberts 27 July 1658 (ERP IV:260) and performed the same service for Robert Colwell the same day (ERP V:2). Edward Inman witnessed the deed of Roger Mowry of Providence to William Carpenter of Pautuxett 3 February 1661[/2] (ERP I:85-6, XXI:53). On 1 April 1664, Edward Inman witnessed the deed of George Way to Thomas Walling (ERP XIV:50). Edward Inman witnessed the deed of William Field to Zachary Rhodes on 27 March 1665 (ERP V:57). Edward Inman Sr. witnessed the deed of his daughter, Joanna Mowry and her husband, Nathaniel Mowry 27 December 1695 (ERP V:107). With Walter Rhodes, Edward Inman deposed that they had heard Thomas Walling of Providence say he had sold his share of meadow and half his right of commonage to Daniel Abbott of Providence (ERP XIV:30-1).

At Providence on 11 3mo 1661, Roger Williams wrote a letter to the Town Council including remarks of Edward Inman, who testified regarding the tragic case of John Clawson. Clawson was attacked by an Indian with a broad ax who sprang from behind barberry bushes, splitting Clawson's chest open. As Clawson lay dying he attempted to speak several times. Inman stated that he had heard John Clawson complain of other men, such as Roger Mowry, Samuel Bennet, Mr. Arnold, but never of Roger Williams. Williams claimed that Clawson had meant by saying his "Maister his Goods," that Clawson intended to leave his property to Williams. Clawson speaking, "by fits," and not being able to answer a word to many questions, in the morning when he "much desired to speak & said, Lift me up & was lift up by Ben: Hernden & Robt Colwell, he could not speake one word," was never able to repeat his intentions before he died (ERP XV:83-4).

At a Town Meeting 6 December 1661, the Town Deputies were ordered to "cause Johana Harrad to com before them And to See what Securetye may be put in, to cleare the Towne of what charges may arise concerning her, And if none will put in Sufficient Securety then to Send her back againe unto Boston and this to be don without delay" (ERP, XV:87-8). Two years later on 7 December 1663 it was ordered that the bond of the same date, signed and sealed by Edward Inman and Thomas Hopkins,

> "and delivered unto the Towne for theire Securitye from any charge that they might Expend for the releife of Johanna Harrud; (Tho: Hopkins having desired the saide Bond to be returned unto him,) it shall be returned unto the said Tho: Hopkins; by the Towne Clarke;" (ERP III:36).

This Thomas Hopkins was son of William and Joan (Arnold) Hopkins of Yeovil, Somersetshire, baptized 1616 and died Oyster Bay, NY 1684, his wife Elizabeth is unidentified. This Johanna Harrud was the sister of John Harrod of Patucksett. She became the second wife of Roger Ammidowne at Rehoboth 27 December 1668, and died 1 July 1711. She was of childbearing age at the time of her marriage, but beyond this we know nothing of her.

It seems curious that Hopkins and Inman would take responsibility for someone who had no relationship to them. It is possible that there was some connection between Edward Inman's unknown first wife and Johanna Harrud. It is equally possible that she was a servant in the households of Inman and Hopkins.

It is difficult to assess Edward Inman's relative wealth. He is treated with respect in early Providence and is called a fox glover, indicating that he was a skilled tradesman. In June 1652, Edward Inman paid a rate of 4s (ERP XV:63). Edward Inman paid a rate of 10 shillings in June 1671, an average amount for citizens of Providence (ERP XV:135). With William Harris, Thomas Arnold Sr. and Thomas Field, Edward Inman drew up their grievances about the rates and brought it to the Providence Town Meeting 25 December 1671. William Harris read a paper regarding this problem and it was delivered to the town the next quarter day (ERP III:204). On 1 July 1679, Edward Inman paid a rate of £0.1.10½ (ERP XV:190) and on 16 July 1680 paid rates of 4d, 6d and 10s (ERP XV:209, 213) and 25 January 1680/1 £0.1.6 (ERP XV:225). One anker (ten gallons) of liquor was charged to him in a list dated 16 June, possibly 1656 (ERP II:22). On 10 June 1657 he was charged with 2 ankers of rum and on 3 August with one more anker of rum (ERP II:24). On 27 July 1663, Edward Inman gave notice that he had landed 2 ankers of liquors (ERP II:27).

Inman's land dealings began in the normal way, with modest purchases and the standard town lotteries. On 13 December 1652 he bought an acre by Mooshawsuck River from Thomas Harris (ERP II:13). Thomas Harris sold five acres to James Braddish in 1654 which was bordered by Edward Inman's house (ERP II:14). Inman was granted 5 acres between Mr. Scott's meadow and Mr. Dexter's bridge 27 January 1656 (ERP II:99) and took his share of meadow on the north side of George Way's home share, 7 12mo 1658 (ERP II:20). Edward Inman of Providence sold to William Carpenter of Pautuxett 60 acres near Rockey Hill 19 12mo 1658 (ERP I:98).

Inman deeded to Zachariah Rhoades of Pautuxett a full townsman's right in the common of Providence, being the one Inman acquired from James Bradish 5 February 1661 (ERP I:86-7).

On 27 February 1664 and 27 October 1665 the town gave him permission to exchange land (ERP III:50, 66). There was concern that the grant of a share of meadow to John Smith, the miller, might impinge on a parcel of land desired by Edward Inman, and Inman's priority was confirmed at a town meeting 3 October 1664 (ERP III:57).

With Thomas Walling, Edward Inman brought a bill before the Town Meeting asking that 50 acres of upland be laid out to each purchaser. The bill was referred to the next meeting. This ultimately appears to have resulted in the division of fifty acres around Fox Hill (ERP III:65, 68), of which division Edward Inman received lot #73 on 19 February 1665 (ERP III:73). Having laid down land to the town as commonage, a grant of land and meadow about a mile and a half from Loquasqussuck was recorded to him 19 February 1665[/6] (ERP III:70).

On 14 May 1666 he and John Mowry bought of William Manannion of Punskepage, MA, a Wampanoag, for good consideration, 2000 acres lying from Loquesit northward, bounding partly on Pawtucket River (RI Land Evidences 1:20). This enormous parcel was the first controversial purchase of land by Inman and his associates, apparently exceeding the autonomy ordinarily allowed colonists. Inman was considered the leader of the group who had split away, for in subsequent deeds, when Providence granted land bordering this purchase, it was called the land of "Inman and his associates." This land was not purchased with the permission of the Town of Providence, and caused much upset among the town fathers.

At a town meeting 20 September 1662 it was ordered that Edward Inman and two others should meet and "cast up all accountes concerning o^{r} inland Buissenesse, and to order Every mans part what it is and to finish the matter by this day fortnight:" (ERP III:27). This must have settled the problem, for it was not discussed again in the public record for more than a decade.

Edward Inman, of Providence, now using the title "planter," sold his dwelling to Stephen Paine, Sr. of Rehoboth, merchant, 2 September 1667 (ERP I:26 & III:118). Calling himself late of Providence, he received an additional 500 acres on Pawtucket River from William Manannion for £20, in a deed confirmed by King Philip, Joseph Manannion, Totorom's widow named Kewapam and William Manannion's uncle, Jeffery (RI Land Evidences 1:21). This may have been the same deed in which Edward Inman, "now or late of Providence, glover," purchased 500 acres from William Manannion according to a law made 22 May 1662 on 1 May 1675 (RI Land Evidences 1:80), merely re-recorded.

Edward Inman and John Mowry, yeoman, sold one sixth part of the land they had purchased from William Manannion to James Blackmore and John Buckman of Rehoboth on 10 October 1672 (RI Land Evidences 1:21).

In 1673, Benjamin Herenden had land granted to him, "Not far from y^e hous y^t Edwerd Inmans now liveth at" (ERP III:243), and Inman himself had a lot laid out to him "Joyneing to william Hakeings lot wheare he Nowe Dwelelleth at W[e]esapasacheck" (ERP III:244).

At a town meeting 24 May 1675, Edward Inman drew lot #59 in the Second Division (ERP IV:47-8). When Richard Arnold's land was laid out in the Fifty Acre Division in June 1675, his share of the meadow was adjoining the Cedar Swamp "beyond y^e former dwelling of Edward Inman" (ERP XIV:37).

An agreement between Edward Inman, Stephen Arnold, William Hopkins, John Mowry, James Blackmar, John Whipple Jr., Benjamin Bucklin and John Bucknum, dated 1 June 1675, was entered into the town records regarding the silver mine on Edward Inman's land, in which the signatories agreed to share expenses equally and share the profits (ERP XV:147). Evidence of actual production from this silver mine is lacking.

In a letter dated 27 April 1678, Edward Inman requested that the line of division between Providence and the land of Edward Inman and his Associates be revised so that future differences could be avoided (ERP XV:178).

Edward Inman and Benjamin Hernden were chosen to see to the repairing of highways 2 June 1679 (ERP VII:49). On this same date, Edward Inman was one of eleven persons who agreed to have pieces of their land set off for Joseph Woodward. Inman gave three acres (ERP VIII:50).

While proving the will of John Smith, miller, Samuel Winsor testified that he remembered that Smith was in his right mind at the time and that it was the 22 or 23 day of February 1681/2 at the time when the Trustees of the town of Providence and Edward Inman met at John Whipple's regarding the land in controversy (ERP VI:61).

This was the resurfacing of the controversy surrounding Inman's purchase of land from William Manannion, no doubt again brought to the forefront by Inman's request that the town line be drawn. Arthur Fenner, Richard Arnold, William Hopkins, John Whipple Jr. and Thomas Olney Jr. were chosen to discuss Inman's right to settle there (ERP VIII:110-3).

The result was that Inman and his associates were given a grant from Providence of 3,500 acres in the north part of the town, having already settled their families there. The town parted "with some of their right that so a neighborly amity might be settled, rather than to use extremity by which animosities might arise" (ERP XIV:112-4). This truly ended the trouble and it is not alluded to again.

Still a Providence proprietor, Inman drew lot #37 in the division of the lands on the west side of the seven mile line 17 March 1683/4 (ERP XIV:66). When James Belloo's land was laid out in the second division in 1683, it was about a mile nearer the town of Providence than the now dwelling house of Edward Inman (ERP XIV:92), showing that Inman was some considerable distance from the center of the settlement.

At the town meeting 27 April 1685, Edward Inman was given permission to change his 87 acres of land in Loquassquissick woods, but because the surveyor was busy planting, the town council ordered that no person should try to take up the land in the interim (ERP VIII:148). A return of this land was entered into the record 1 June 1685 (ERP VIII:151). Later that year, "John Mawrey brought in a woolfs head upon his owne account & Edward Inman Sen^{r}" (ERP IX:201).

Edward Inman of Providence, glover, for good and faithful service done by James Walling, gave Walling 30 acres in Providence in the northern part of the township called West Quadomesett, bordered by Alexander Bolkom Jr., John Mowry and Edward Inman 7 June 1688. This deed was not recorded until 1753 (Smithfield Deed 3:326).

Edward Inman, glover, and his wife, Barbara, purchased from Stephen and Elizabeth Paine of Rehoboth, land in Westquadomesett, on 26 April 1688 (ERP XIV:174-6).

Edward Inman and Nathaniel Mowry wrote to the town of Providence requesting that a highway be laid from their dwelling places to their meadows at "amataco[n]ctt" on 27 January 1691/2 (ERP XVII:142).

On 27 July 1696, Stephen Arnold forgave Edward Inman all manner of debts due and demands made or contracted "from the begining of the World unto this preSent day" (ERP XX:194). The exact relationship, whether business or personal, between these two men is uncertain.

In the 1690s, Inman resumed the popular practice of exchanging land. There was laid out to Edward Inman twenty eight acres of land that he exchanged with the town adjoining the highway to Mattaty Meadow 7

December 1698 (ERP IV:134). On 7 December 1698 he exchanged 28 acres with the town.

On 14 November 1702 he sold to John Sayles for £60 the mansion house, home lands, orchard, meadow and mowing, in all 180 acres at Westquodonesset, partially bounded by his sons, John and Edward Inman, Jr. (ERP V:170-5). On 5 October 1703, Inman amended this deed to include 14 acres (ERP XX:396-8).

On 17 August 1706 an inventory of his estate was presented to the Providence Town Council by son John Inman. Widow Barbara Inman and son Edward Inman were summoned to appear and Edward Inman appeared 26 August 1706, making oath to his father's inventory exhibited by brother John. The widow Barbara declined to come, and two town officers were dispatched to speak with her. They reported that she declined to swear to the inventory and totally refused to take administration on the estate. Edward and John refused also, causing the Council to chose one of their own, Jonathan Sprague (ERP X:88-91). Further probate of the estate is not seen.

In his 1712 will, Edward's son John left his meadow at the little river, which he had had from his father, Edward Inman, to his wife until his son, Valentine, came of age (ERP VII:131).

JOHN[1] JOHNSON, born probably Hertfordshire, England before 1593; died Roxbury, MA 30 7mo 1659, "Surveyor Generall of all ye armes, dyed & was buried ye day following." (Roxbury Church Records, p.176); married first Ware, Hertfordshire 21 September 1613 (Ware parish register) MARY HEATH, baptized Ware, Hertfordshire 24 March 1593/4 (ibid.), buried Ware, Herts. 15 May 1629 (ibid.), sister of Isaac and William Heath, of Roxbury, MA [Register 146[1992]:262-275); married second probably Roxbury, MA circa 1633 MARGERY _____, born before 1615, buried Roxbury 9 4mo 1655 (Roxbury Church Records, p.176); married third between Margery's death and burial 9 4mo 1655 and 24 July 1656 when John signed an agreement with the overseers of Barnabus Fawer's will GRACE (NEGUS) FAWER, perhaps baptized Shelton, Bedfordshire 5 January 1603/4 (TG 6:195), died after 21 December 1671 (Suffolk Probate 7:175).

An excellent writeup of the Negus family appears in Ancestry of Col. John Harrington Stevens and his wife Frances Helen Miller by Mary Lovering Holman (1948), in which we see that Grace Negus had married first as his second wife before 10 March 1643/4 Barnabus Fawer, who died between 23 December 1654 when his will was written and 2 February 1654/5, when it was proved (Suffolk Probate 1:102). With Barnabas Fawer, Grace had one child, Abigail, baptized Dorchester, MA 30 July 1644, who probably predeceased her father (TG 6:198).

Of the seventeen John Johnsons in Savage, this John is the only one in Roxbury, so that in the few surviving early records of that town, it is not difficult to distinguish his career. However, his identity is not so certainly established in records outside Roxbury.

It is presumed that this John Johnson came to New England with Winthrop in 1630, bringing his children, having buried his first wife in Ware some months earlier. Eliot lists his name alone, without comment, as a member of the First Church. His second wife, Margery, appears later, alone in an undated entry, but among many who came in 1633. This entry approximately dates their marriage.

John Johnson's career as a responsible member of the community began immediately. He was on a jury of inquest into the death of Austen Bratcher at Mr. Cradock's plantation 28 September 1630 (Court of Assistants, p.6). John Johnson was chosen constable 19 October 1630 and became a freeman 18 May 1631 (Shurtleff I:366). He served on a jury which heard the case of Thomas Dexter suing Capt. Endicott 3 May 1631 (Court of Assistants, p.15). He was one of the ten principal founders of the First Church in Roxbury in 1632 (BRC 34:290).

John Johnson filled a curious role in the early life of Roxbury. He was the confidant of powerful men, filled an important position in the affairs of the early colony, was involved as an overseer or attorney in dozens of his neighbors' affairs, yet kept a low profile in his personal life. He was a person of considerable estate at his death, but did not achieve the consistent rank of "Mr."

With others, John Johnson was to view the ground and set bounds between Charlestown and Newton on 7 November 1632 and reported on them 7 April 1635 (Court of Assistants, pp. 29, 53). He was on a committee to put a cart bridge over Muddy River between Boston and Roxbury on 6 August 1633 (ibid., p.34). He paid 20s toward the building of a "sea fort" for the defense of the colony 4 March 1633[/34] (ibid., p.42). He served as a deputy at the first General Court in 1634, and for fifteen years afterwards.

In the earliest list of Roxbury inhabitants, undated but surely in the latter part of the 1630s, John Johnson's valuation of £15.12 and £6.08 with 6 goats and 4 kids, was one of the highest in the town (BRC 34:49-50).

By order of the court on 31 8mo 1639, John Johnson was freed from training, paying 10s a year to the company (Court of Assistants, p.88). This order was further amended the next year, freeing him from training in, "regard of other public servise without any pay to the Company" (ibid., p.104).

When Walter Blackburn returned to England, his wife remained behind for a time, finishing up their affairs. About 1641 she made a letter of attorney to Joseph Weld and John Johnson of Roxbury, authorizing them to collect debts due her husband and forward them on to him (Lechford's Notebook, p.60). They handled a mortgage for Blackburn in this capacity (ibid., p.255).

Probably for legal purposes, John Johnson had the scrivener Thomas Lechford not only write out a bill of lading for him, but also a letter to Mr. William Pincheon of Aggawam in 1639 (ibid., pp. 294, 207). In all Suffolk deeds, John Johnson signed his name, and although his scribe wrote that he had made his mark to his will, it is clear from the shape of the marks that he had attempted to sign his full name, therefore we assume that he was literate. He signed a report of the committee directing that regiments should meet in alternating years (Mass. Archives 67:7a).

He was given a servant, Sam Hefford, for three years on 1 10mo 1640, Hefford having been much misused by his last master, Jonathan Wade (Court of Assistants, p.101). John Stowe Sr. of Roxbury made a deed to John Johnson, Joseph Weld and William Park, if they became bound to Samuel Hagbourne 9 12mo 1641 (Suffolk Deed I:25). John Johnson was one of the "sundry p[er]sons" who deposed 7 7mo 1642 regarding the lands John Sams deeded to Thomas Dudley, saying,

> Also I John Johnson do uppon my oath testify that above two yeares since I sould to the said John Sams & his heires three Acres of meddow more or lesse and certaine Rodds of ground adjoyneing thereunto, For wch I received in money fourteene pounds in ful payment for the same, and I do disclaime to have any interest therein: The meddow and lands lyeinge wthin the bounds of Rocksbury in a place there called the Fresh marsh (Suffolk Deed I:37).

It was ordered that the Surveyor [John Johnson] take out of the cattle which came from Providence the money Disbursed for that company, & undertaking, which is twenty five pounds three shillings & nine pence as per particulars 5 10mo 1643 (Court of Assistants, p.135). It is more than possible that the person responsible for the cattle in Providence was Johnson's son-in-law, Roger Mowry, who had been a neat herd in Salem.

With William Parke, he was appointed to look into Mr. Samuel Cooke's estate 30 1mo 1643/4 (ibid., p.140).

He witnessed the will of Samuel Hagborne 19 January 1642[/3]. Hagbourne, "a Christian & godly brother dyed of a feaver, upon a deepe could & stopt up with flegme," 24 11mo 1642 (RCR, p.171) and John Johnson came forward to prove the will 8 1mo 1642/3 (Suffolk Wills, p.12-3).

He was eligible for membership in the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company the year in which its charter was granted, serving as clerk from 1638 to 1640. He was appointed surveyor-general of arms and ammunition in 1644. In March of 1645, by some dreadful accident, the house of John Johnson caught fire, with disastrous consequences. Winthrop says:

> John Johnson [1638], the Surveyor General of Ammunition, a very industrious and faithful man in his place, having built a fair house in the midst of the town, with divers barns and outhouses, it fell on fire in the day time, no man knowing by what occasion, and there being in it seventeen barrels of the country's powder, and many arms, all was suddenly burnt and blown up, to the value of four or five hundred pounds, wherein a special providence of God appeared, for he, being from home, the people came together to help and many were in the house, no man thinking of the powder till one of the company put them in mind of it, whereupon they all withdrew, and soon after the powder took fire and blew up all about it, and shook the houses in Boston and Cambridge, so as men thought it had been an earthquake, and carried great pieces of timber a good way off, and some rags and such light things beyond Boston meeting house. There being then a stiff gale south, it drove the fire from the other houses in the town (for this was the most northerly) otherwise it had endangered the greatest part of the town. This loss of our powder was the more observable, in two respects: 1st. Because the court had not taken that care they ought, to pay for it, having been owing for divers years. 2d. In that, at the court before, they had refused to help our country men in Virginia, who had written to us for some for their defence against the Indians, and also to help our brethren of Plimouth in their want. At this fire the first book of records of the town of Roxbury was destroyed.

(History of the Honorable Artillery Company, pp. 66-67)

Eliot described it:

1645. Toward the end of the first month call'd march; there happened (by Gods p'vidence) a very dreadfull fire in Roxbury streete; none knoweth how it was kindled, but being a feirce wind, it suddenly p'vailed. And in this mans house was a good p't of the Countrys magazine of powder of 17 or 18 barrels; wch made the people, yt none durst come to save the house or goods till yt was blowen up, & by that time the fire had taken the barnes & outhousing (wch were many & great) so yt none were saved.

In this fire were strang p'servations of Gods p'vidence to the neighbors & towne, for the wind at first stood to cary the fire to othr houses; but suddenly turned & caryed it fro' all other houses; only carying it to the barns and out housing thereby. & it was a feirce wind, & thereby drove the vehement heat fro' the neighbour houses, wch in a calmer time would be the x'y heate heve bene set on fire.

But above all the p'servation of all people fro' hurt & other houses fro' fire at the blowing up of the powder many being in greate danger yet none hurt, & sundry houses set on fire by the blow & yet all quenched, through Gods rich mercy in Christ. (RCR, p.188)

The fire made no obvious impact on John Johnson's life or public service. However, it was soon noticed that the loss of the town records seriously affected the land ownership in the town, and as a remedy, it was ordered that a new transcript of land holdings be made (RCR, p.i-ii). From this we have a supposedly complete account of John Johnson's land holdings circa 1652 (RCR, p.i-ii).

John Johnson his house barne, and hous lott on the back side of his orchyard and buildings lying together with liberty to inclose the swamp and brooke before the same, not anoying any highway, conteining in all eight accres more or lesse, upon Thomas Lambs heires towards the west, and upon william Denison towards the south. and three accres of march betweene the home lott and the marsh of the heirs of Samuell Hagborne, upon Thomas Lamb towards the north, and west, and william Denison east, and twenty accres more or lesse of mowing ground upon the marsh of Mr. Thomas Weld, and the land of Thomas Lamb on the east and so compassed with muddy river and stoney river, and ten accres of woodland more or lesse lying betweene the great lotts and the lands of the heires of Samuell Hagborne, and so turning up betweene the lott lately bought of George Bowers and a way leading to Rocky swamp, and foure accres more or lesse lying betweene the way leading to Rocky swamp Northweast and upon the schoole land upon the south and east; and in the last devission, in the first and third alottments of that devission being the fourth lott their one hundred ten accres and one quarter, and one and fifty accres and halfe bought of Edward Porter and John Pettit lying in the thousand accres at Deddam. and six accres more or lesse bought of Jeames Morgan, upon stoney river west, and upon a highway leading to the great pond east. and sixteene accres and a halfe more or lesse bought of Richard Goad lying at rocky swamp, abutting upon the land of Edward Pason west, and upon the land of Edward Bridges east, and an accre and a quarter more or lesse, lately the land of Thomas Lamb, upon the home lott and Meadow of John Johnson Northwest, upon the highway leading to the watermill southeast, and upon the home lott of the heires of Thomas Lamb North, and three accres of woodland more or lesse lately the land of John Stebbins, lying at Rocky swamp. And fower accres of fresh meadow more or lesse lately bought of John Parepoynt lying in the great meades betweene the lands of Isaack Morrill and William Cheiney. And thirteene accres and twenty rod of land wood and pasture bought of Thomas Gardner in the nookes next Dorchester, betweene the lands of Henry Farnham and the lands of the heires of Thomas Stannard.
(RCR, p.16-7)

He witnessed the deed of John Scarborough of Roxbury to Thomas Dudley 14 11mo 1645 (Suffolk Deed I:68).

With Joshua Hughes, John Johnson witnessed the will of Joseph Weld of Roxbury 22 5mo 1646. Joseph Weld, "dyed of a Cancer in his tongue & jawes" 7 8mo 1646 (RCR, p.173) and both Joshua Hughes and John Johnson were present to prove this will 10 8mo 1646 (Suffolk Probate, p.89). John Johnson and Joseph Weld had been connected in a variety of ways over the years in both church and civil matters.

He may have been the John Johnson, who with Edward Carleton was arbitor in the matter of land claimed between Richard Saltonstall and the town of Watertown 11 November 1647 (Suffolk Deed I:87).

On 20 August 1649 he took the inventory of John Stonnard of Roxbury, who died 13 6mo 1649, "a midle aged man or litle more" (RCR, p.174; Suffolk Probate, p.102) and the inventory of Israel Stoughton 2 2mo 1650 (Suffolk Probate, p.108).

As an overseer to the will of Joseph Weld of Roxbury, he agreed to the 24 6mo 1647 prenuptial contract of Anthony Stoddard with the widow Barbara Weld and to the deed Stoddard made providing for the children of Joseph Weld 5 4mo 1651 (Suffolk Deed I:30; 137).

He sold one hundred acres to Richard Parker 24 May 1650 (Mass. Archives 45:17). He was named overseer of the will of Thomas Lamb of Roxbury 23 October 1651 (Mass. Archives 15B:151).

He is called surveyor general and one of Hugh Prichard's attorneys 27 10mo 1651 (Suffolk Deed I;107). He was paid £5 per year as Surveyor General (Mass. Archives 67:48b). He signed a report of the committee concerning the rebuilding of the Castle and batteries on Castle Island 20 July 1652 (Mass. Archives 67:102).

John Johnson received land in Roxbury from Thomas and Dorothy Hawley 22 June 1652 (Mass. Archives 45:30-1). John Johnson witnessed the arbitration of Richard Russell and Thomas Lake in the matter between James Oliver and Thomas Bell of London 16 5mo 1652 (Suffolk Deed I:215).

With Samuel Stow, he witnessed the promissory note of Edward Burt of Charlestown, Hugh Burt of Lynn, and George Bunker of Charlestown to William Park of Roxbury, to be paid at the house of Mr. Browning at Bell Alley in London, or at the house of Mr. William Peake on Cannon Street, 18 October 1651 and recorded 16 October 1652 (Suffolk Deed I:238). This interesting document is the only connection seen between John Johnson and the family of the man believed to be his daughter's first husband. The Hugh Burt of this agreement was father to Sarah Johnson's supposed first husband, Hugh Burt Jr.

Of his five surviving children, three chose to leave Roxbury to live in other towns, at least for a time. In 1643, son Humphrey Johnson mortgaged his house and yard and a lot in the last division to his father and William Parks. The mortgage was released in 1655 (Suffolk Deed I:44). Shortly before the mortgage was paid, Humphrey moved to Scituate.

With a power of attorney dated 25 June 1652 from Katherine Sumpner of Lambeth, co. Surrey, England, spinster, John Johnson quitclaimed land in Boston of Sumpner's once mortgaged to Joshua Foote to Joshua Hughes, administrator of the estate of Joshua Foote on 24 March 1655/6 (Suffolk Deed I:327; II:237,238). John Johnson took the inventory of James Astod of Boston 6 8mo 1653 (Suffolk Probate, p. 123).

John Johnson was a confidant of the Assistant Governor, Thomas Dudley, and no doubt served as an advisor on military matters. "Being ye Lds day, at night Thomas Dudley Esqr. dyed & was buryed on ye 6th day following 31 5mo 1653" (RCR, p.175). In his will, Thomas Dudley gave to John Johnson, Surveyor Generall of the Armes and one of his beloved friends, £5 if he should live two years after Dudley's death, asking that Johnson and the others should, "doe for mee & mine as I would have done for them & theirs in the like case" (Suffolk Wills, p.46). He further appointed the same beloved friends his executors, saying that his sons lived too far away to serve.

> "Mr. John Johnson, on the 15th of August, 1653, appeered before the Magistrates, & did on his oath present this as the last will of Tho: Dudley, late of Roxbury, Esqr. wh was found in the chest of the said Thomas Dudley, psently after his decease, under locke & key." (ibid.)

With William Parks, John Johnson, as executor of the will of Deputy Governor Thomas Dudley, passed deeds in that capacity (Suffolk Deeds I:20; II:322-4; 264; III:116-7). John Johnson witnessed the deed of Nathaniel Oliver in 1654 (Suffolk Deed II:138). He took the inventory of David Mattox of Roxbury 18 May 1654 (Suffolk Wills, p.128).

As attorney for Thomas Bell, once of Roxbury, presently of the City of London, merchant and with Anthony Stoddard and Hezekiah Usher, John Johnson passed a deed to Thomas Clarke 24 January 1656 (Suffolk Deed II:341).

Humphrey Johnson mortgaged to his father John Johnson and to William Parke of Roxbury, his house and yard lately purchased from Jacob Sheafe, and one lot in the last division 22 7mo 1643 (Suffolk Deed I:44). The mortgage was released 27 April 1655 (ibid.).

John Johnson, William Park and Isaac Morrell took the inventory of John Burrell's estate 23 12mo 1656 (Suffolk Wills, p.81).

Richard Russell of Charlestown, merchant, John Johnson, William Parks and Griffin Crafts of Roxbury, attorneys to Hugh Prichard of Broughton, co. Denbigh [sic] made a deed to John Pierpoint on 8 January 1656[/7] (Suffolk Deed III:45a-b).

John Johnson came to an agreement with the overseers of the will of Barnabus Fawer, deceased husband of John's third wife, on 24 July 1656 (Mass. Archives 15B:183).

On 16 October 1658, Mr. John Johnson deposed that he saw John Dane sign and publish his last will 7 7mo 1658 (Suffolk Wills, p.143).

The will of John Johnson of Roxbury was made the day of his death, vii. SUSAN, baptized Ware End 16 July 1623; buried Ware 16 August 1629.

viii. SARAH, baptized Ware 12 November 1624, but called "about three years old when her father joined the church," which was no earlier than 1630 (TEG 6:178-84); died Swansey, MA between 10 April 1688 when she is named in her husband's will and 6 November 1694 when her inventory is taken (Bristol Probate 1:29); married first by 1647 HUGH[2] BURT, born 1620 (age 15 years on 17 June 1635 when he embarked for America on the Abigail), died Lynn, MA shortly before 8 8mo 1650 when his inventory was taken (Essex Probate I:123), son of Hugh[1] Burt (John[A]) of Lynn and of Dorking, co. Surrey (Aspinwall, p.191); married second before July 1653 (as they have a child born before April 1654) WILLIAM BARTRAM, born circa 1616-21 (depositions EQC 2:285, 7:197), died 1690 (Bristol Probate 1:29). Settled in Lynn and Swansey. There are many difficulties with this identification. Sarah is never the right age in any of the depositions by or about her. The age at her father's joining the church in Roxbury more nearly matches her youngest sister, Hannah, yet William Bartram and Hugh Burt had a wife named Sarah. For a good discussion, see TEG 6:178-84.

Children, surname Burt:

2) Sarah, born Lynn say 1649, named in her grandfather Hugh Burt's will of 1661

Children, named in their father's will, surname Bartram:

3) Mary, perhaps the child born before 6 April 1654 named in the letter between the Lynn and Roxbury church fathers
4) Elizabeth

5) Rebecca twin, born Lynn 3 April 1658 (LVR 1:43)
6) Hester, twin, born Lynn 3 April 1658 (LVR 1:43)
7) Ellen, born Lynn 17 October 1660 (LVR 1:43)
8) Hannah, born before 1664
9) Susannah

ix. JOSEPH, baptized Ware 6 March 1626/7 (parish register); buried Ware 30 March 1627 (parish register).

x. HANNAH, baptized Ware 23 March 1627/8 (parish register); conceivably the wife of William Bartram in 1654, but more likely a child that died young (Register 146[1992]:262-275).

LEE

THOMAS[1] LEE, born England say 1610s; died 1645 of smallpox on board ship during passage to America (Register 63[1911]:100); married as her first husband PHEBE[2] BROWNE, baptized Rusper, co. Sussex 1 October 1620 (Register 62[1910]:199-200), died in childbed Northampton, MA 24 December 1664, daughter of WILLIAM and JANE (BURGIS) BROWNE of Rusper, co. Sussex, England (ibid., 61[1909]:116-8).

Phebe (Browne) Lee married second Greenfield Larribee, born say 1610s, died prior to 5 December 1661 when his estate inventory was presented (Particular Court, p.241), with whom she had children, all recorded Saybrook, CT (SVR 1:15), surname Larribee: Greenfield, born 20 April 1648; John, born 23 February 1649[/50]; Elisabeth, born 23 January 1652[/3]; Joseph, born about the middle of March 1655[/6]; and Sarah, born 3 March 1658[/9]. Phebe married third before 5 December 1661, when he appeared in court and declined to deal with the estate of his wife's deceased husband (Particular Court, p.241) James Cornish of Saybrook. They had children surname Cornish: James, born say 1663; and a stillborn child with whom Phebe died in childbed in 1664.

Joshua Hempstead, the noted diarist of New London, CT, was a grandson of Phebe Browne through her daughter, Elizabeth Larribee. Probably at his request, his aunt, Jane (Lee) (Hyde) Burchard, wrote out a record of the Browne family. While several different copies of this account exist, they agree in basic detail. A transcription of what may be the original appeared in the Register, 63[1909]:100:

> A Genealogy of my Mother Taken from Aunt Barthard 1723 [illegible] following I took from my fathers Joshua Hempsteads Esq papers my Granmother was the Daughter of Old William Brown he Lived in the County of Esex [sic] and town of Rusper In England Come over to New England in ye year 1645 her Granmother Come allso and Granmother Died with the Smallpox on board and their Eldest Son John; they had 3 Children that Come over (viz) Hennery > with his Daughter Mary marvin their predissesors were ministers was time Queen Mary Rine.

From this we learn that Thomas Lee embarked with his wife's family bound for America, but died of smallpox on the passage. Although the Browne family has been found in the parish registers of Rusper, co. Sussex, there is no record of Thomas Lee, nor of his marriage to Phebe Browne; he is only seen in the baptisms of his children (Register, 61[1907]:116-8). His occupation and reasons for coming to the New World are also unseen.

Later, Joshua Hempstead says:

> She [Mary (Lee) Riggs] was the 3d Daughter to my uncle Lee who Lived & died in Lyme & was the first of ys name there & Came over a Child with my Grandmother in the first Settlement of this Country. he had 2 Sisters. one was mother of the family of Hides in Norwich & Lebanon &c. (Hempstead Diary, p.684)

A fine outline of the Browne family in America appears in The History and Genealogy of the Cornish Families in America by Joseph E. Cornish (Boston: George H. Ellis Co., 1907, p.6).

Children, taken from Register 61[1907]:116-8, surname LEE:

i. JANE[2], baptized Rusper, co. Sussex 12 September 1640; died Lebanon, CT 21 January 1722/3 (LVR 1:18); married first Norwich, CT June 1659 (NVR, p.16) SAMUEL[2] HYDE, born Hartford 1637 (Hyde genealogy, p.3), died Norwich, CT July 1677 (NVR, p.16), son of William[1] Hyde; married second as his second wife say 1678 JOHN BURCHARD, died Lebanon 17 November 1702 (LVR 1:18).

John Burchard had married first Norwich 22 July 1653 (NVR, p.22) Christian Andrews, with whom he had children, recorded Norwich (NVR, p.23), surname Burchard: Thomas, born October 1654; Katherine, born November 1656; John, born January

1657[/8]; John, born December 1659; Sarah, born May 1661; Samuel, born 16 July 1663; James, born 16 July 1665; Abigail, born November 1667; Thomas, born January 1669[/70]; John, born 3 February 1671[/2]; Joseph, born February 1673[/4]; Benjamin, born December 1675; and Mary, born June 1677. Six of these thirteen children died in infancy. The date of Christian (Andrews) Burchard's death is unknown and it is uncertain whether she was the mother of John Burchard's last children, Daniel and Lydia, or whether they were Jane's children (TAG 16[1940]:227-228). Hempstead, in his diary, visits "Cuz Daniel Birchard" and "Cuz Lydia Raymond," strengthening the case that they are Jane's (Hempstead Diary, pp. 595,443,585)

Children, surname Hyde:

Original home of Thomas[2] Lee of Lyme, built 1660s

The will of Nathaniel Kirtland, father of Sarah Kirtland, mentions his grandchild Lee, meaning Sarah Lee, who would have been about eleven years old when the will was written 17 August 1685 (Suffolk Probate #1535). Nathaniel gave her five shillings, the equivalent of our "one dollar," a sum frequently used to satisfy the legal requirement to acknowledge each heir, she having been given a great portion already by his Uncle West.

There is nothing odd about this, since Nathaniel's daughter, Sarah, was deceased by this time, and her children would have been entitled in her right to a share of Nathaniel's estate. What is curious is that, although the children are recorded in the Lyme records as children of Thomas Lee, with no mention of their mother, it has been assumed that Sarah was also the mother of Thomas Lee's first two sons, as well as this Sarah, but Nathaniel Kirtland makes no mention of the boys. They were born in 1670 and 1672. Little Sarah was born in January of (probably) 1674/5, approximately two years and one month after her youngest brother. The omission of young John and Thomas Lee from Nathaniel Kirtland's will implies that either they were not his grandchildren, or that they had been provided for in some other manner than through the will.

It has also been pointed out that Nathaniel Kirtland's widow did not name any of the Lees in her will of 1694, suggesting an unknown first wife for Nathaniel Kirtland who was mother of Sarah (Kirtland) Lee (TAG 36[1960]:88-9).

Thomas Lee sold 100 acres of upland, swamp and bog by the country road to John Robins of Lyme on 16 March 1681/2. His second wife, Mary, made her mark when she released her dower (Lyme Deed 1:120). Thomas Lee deeded land to John Lay Sr. in Lyme 27 November 1683 (ibid., 1:140). On 18 December 1699, Thomas Lee provided land for two of his sons, John and Thomas (ibid., 2:210,212,218). Thomas Jr. received land at Black Point, that his father had bought of Joseph Ingam, as well as other land.

The will of Thomas Lee was proved 19 February 1704[/5].

JOHN[3] LEE (Thomas[2,1]), born Lyme, CT 21 September 1670 (LVR, p.241); died New London or Lyme, circa 16 January 1715/16 "John Lee buried. Died ye Measells." (Hempstead Diary, p.53); married Lyme 8 February 1692 (LVR, p.240) ELIZABETH SMITH, born circa 1673, living 24 August 1745 when her son mentions her in his will (NL Probate #3109), possibly the widow "Elizabeth Baley" who died 17 December 1761, aged 90 (gravestone, Stone Church Cemetery, East Lyme), daughter of RICHARD[2] (John[1]) and JOANNA (QUARLES) SMITH (see Smith Chapter).

The widow Elizabeth married second Groton 2 July 1728 (GTR 1:41) John Bailey of Groton. This marriage is incorrectly recorded as occurring in 1722, but the corrected record of 1728, as it appears in the slip index at the Connecticut State Library, is more likely. John Bailey had married first Groton 25 December 1713 Elizabeth Stallin and had children recorded in the Groton VRs with her, surname Bailey: Elizabeth, born 31 July 1715;, Priscilla, born 4 August 1717; John, born 7 December 1719; and Samuel, born 25 October 1722 (GVR 1:108, etc.).

At the Old Lyme Historical Society, in a file on the Lee family, is the following letter, reputedly written by John Lee on his deathbed:

> The solemn charge of John Lee, of Lyme, Connecticut, given on his death bed to his children, January 13, 1716 [sic]. Who departed this life on the 17th of the same month, in the assurance of faith.
> I charge you, my dear children, that you fear God and keep the commandments, and that you uphold His public worship with as great diligence and constancy as you can, and that you be constant in the duty of secret prayer twice every day, and all the days of your life, and all of you that come to be heads of families that you be constant in family worship evening and morning with your families, besides your prayers at meat, and that in your prayers you pray for converting grace for yourselves and others, and that God would show you the excellency of Christ, and cause you to love and believe in Him, and show you the evil of sin and make you hate it and forever flee from it, and that you may never give over until you have obtained converting grace from God. Furthermore I charge you to choose death rather than deny Christ in any degree. Also I charge you that you never turn Papist or Heretic but serve God in the way that you have been brought up, and avoid all evil companions lest you be led into temptation and a snare. Also be very careful to avoid all excess in drinking, also to avoid profaneness and all other sins. Also I charge you always to be dutiful to your mother and kind to one another. This I leave in charge to all my posterity to the end of the world, charging every person of them to keep a copy of this, my dying charge to my children

MOWRY

ROGER[1] MOWRY, born circa 1600s; died Providence, RI 5 January 1666[/7] (Register, 52[1898]:207); married probably Roxbury, MA by 1636 MARY[2] JOHNSON, baptized Great Amwell, Hertfordshire, England 31 July 1614 (parish register), buried Rehoboth, MA 29 January 1679 (RVR, p.843), eldest daughter of JOHN[1] and MARY (HEATH) JOHNSON (see Johnson Chapter).

Mary married second Rehoboth, MA 16 March 1673/4 (RVR, p.220) John[1] Kingsley, buried Rehoboth 6 January 1678[/9] (Early Rehoboth, 1:32]. He had married first Alice _____, buried Rehoboth 14 January 1673 (RVR p.843) and with her had Edward, Enos and Freedom, and perhaps others.

The surname Mowry is seen in many different spellings in colonial records. The versions "More" and "Moorie" are particularly difficult to discriminate from the common surname, Moore. A few possibly random appearances of the name in early Salem, MA may be relatives of Roger. Hannah Mowry was a member of the church at Salem in early times, and Elizabeth, a member of the church in 1642, subsequently removed. Family tradition suggests that Roger Williams and Roger Mowry were kinsmen of some sort. It is unclear whether the Katherine Mowre, servant to John Hathorne of Lynn, aged 17 years on 25 1mo 1653/4, who appeared in court, was one of this family or a completely different family or surname (EQC 1:330).

Roger was one of the group of freemen 18 May 1631 (Shurtleff I:66). He was a member of the church at Salem in 1636.

It was agreed with Roger Mowry, neat herd, by the town of Salem, that he should begin the keeping of all the town's cattle the fifth of the next second month and to continue eight months, with the help of another sufficient man. He was to be ready at the pen gate an hour after sunrise each day to take them. Those who did not have their cattle ready, were to bring them after the herd. He was to have 7s per head of all except bulls, to be paid in four equal payments and always one-quarter before hand.

In Salem on 20 February 1637 he had fifty acres laid out and on 25 June 1638 he was granted a strip of meadow containing 2½ acres and 1½ acres of upland. At the Salem First Church on 2 April 1637 Roger Mowry had his son Jonathan baptized. His other children were baptized there: Bethiah on 17 June 1638; Mary on 16 January 1640; Elizabeth on 20 January 1643 and Benjamin on 20 May 1649 (Perley, 3:29). His name was in a list of Salem inhabitants 25 December 1637 and five persons formed his family (Perley, 1:463). We can account for Roger, Mary, and little Jonathan and must further speculate that Hannah and Elizabeth cited above may have been adult members of the family at this date.

Roger Mowry served on the jury of trials at the Essex Quarterly Courts in January 1641 (EQC 1:33). On 25 March 1642 he and Lawrence Southwick agreed to keep the cows in all things according to agreement of last year, except wages, which were to be 5s per head.

With John Elderkin, he was witness to a presentment by the constable of Lynn of Jabez Hacket for uncleaness with Jane Somers, 29 10mo 1646 (EQC 1:107). This suggests that Roger Mowry was in Lynn at this time, either as a resident or on business. Due to the destruction of the Lynn town records, it is difficult to trace his full activities. However, Mary's sister, wife of William Bartram, was in Lynn at this time, providing a family tie to attract the Mowrys to the town.

It seems that he left Salem or at least built a new house about September 1649, for mention is made of "where Rogr Morey's old house stood" (EQC 1:175). The road past his house at Salem was to be repaired by the town 28 12mo 1649 (EQC 1:185).

Mrs. Lydia Bunker sued Roger Morey for debt at the June 1650 court (EQC 1:193). A poor reading of the records in this case led Torrey and others to think that Lydia might have been a daughter of John Johnson, but recent research has shown that this is not the case.

Mowry came to Providence much later than 1643, though the deposition of Nathaniel Felton of Salem, made 18 September 1700, declares that Roger Mowry removed from Salem before the year 1644, having sold his land in the woods to Emanuel Downing (Essex Deed 15:5-6). This has been interpreted to mean that the Mowrys were in Providence by this date, but they do not surely settle there before 1652 when he appears on the list of receipts of rates dated June 1652, paying £1.10.00, one of the highest receipts (ERP XV:63).

Land was laid out to Roger Mowry in early 1656 as requested in a bill he presented to the town (ERP II:92). On 27 August 1656 he had a house lot laid out to him upon the hill over against Roger Williams' meadow. He was one of those who had paid all their purchase money and had quittances (ERP II:31).

He was appointed by the Court of Commissioners to keep a house of entertainment. A convenient sign was to be set out at the most "perspicuous" place of said house to give notice to strangers on 25 May 1655. Roger Mowry had it entered on the town books that he bought two ankers [20 gallons] of "Strong waters" from Mr. "Frogmorton," 13 June (ERP II:22). This entry is undated, but follows entries of 1659. Later entries in the list are 1656, however. On 21 July he entered two more ankers of liquors, on 8 September 2 ankers liquors, on July 29 1656 4 ankers of liquors, on 27 October 1656 3 ankers of liquors, on December 14 1656, 2 barrels of sack (ERP II:22-24).

On 27 January 1657 he was allowed 6d for this day's firing and houseroom. Evidently the Town Meeting had been held at Mowry's inn (ERP II:110). His involvement in town affairs went beyond supplying a warm fire. In 1655 Roger Mowry was chosen to serve as one of two constables for the town of Providence (ERP II:81). That year, he made a search of the town with Samuel Bennett and found that Mr. Fowler, Marie Pray and Mr. Sayles had wine and liquors which they had not entered (ERP II:84). He was selected as a juryman to attend the next General Court of Trials at Warwick in 1657 (ERP II:106). In 1658 Roger Mowry served as Commissioner and he was selected a juryman 18 February 1661 (ERP III:13). The town chose Roger Mowry to be the administrator of the estate of William Robinson, deceased, at a Town Meeting on 1 October 1657 (ERP II:108).

At the Quarter Court 27 January 1657[/8], Arthur Fenner, Roger Mowry, Valentine Whitman and John Sayles were empowered to "treat wth ye Indians yt lay claime to ye meddowe of Lokusgussuck & cleere it for ye Towne & yt they above mentioned be accommodated therein" (ERP II:109). On 15 January 1658 he bought a house and 4 acres from Robert Colwell (ERP II:16), which is referred to when five additional acres were laid out to Robert Colwell in the year 1658 (ERP I:42-43). This property was sold by Mowry to Thomas Olney Sr. of Providence 19 March 1658/9 (ERP I:62-3). On 27 April 1659, "Rogger Mawrey in the face of the Court acknowledgeth, that he sold unto Robert Colwell The house and land, which Robert Colwell now dwelleth in..." (ERP II:22).

On 6 August 1658 he testified to the births of his children Benjamin, Thomas and Hannah (ERP II:18).

Due to the vagaries of early recording in Providence, several of Mowry's deeds are lost. A partial deed, with its date obscured, shows that Roger Mowry of Providence sold to John Acres of Dorchester, MA about 90 acres of land a mile outside of Providence (ERP I:14-16). It was ordered that the deed be recorded in 1667, and in the order it reveals that it bore a date of 12 June 1660 (ERP III:118). Epenetus Olney evidently purchased land from Roger Mowry, mentioning it when he petitions the town for a half pole of additional land the length of the lot (ERP II:122).

On 23 November 1660 Henry Neale of Braintree, MA, carpenter, sold to Roger "Mawrey" of Providence everything he had in Providence, including his house, which had been purchased from Daniel Comstock (ERP I:57-8). Anne Smith of Providence, widow of John Smith and also widow of Samuel Comstock, sold to Roger Mowry four acres in the row of houses in the north part of Providence, next to a parcel already owned by Mowry on 4 May 1661 (ERP I:58-9).

Roger Mowry was granted the opportunity to exchange 6 acres of land on Wanasquatucket Plain for the same amount of land on the other side of Neotaconkonitt River, but three acres of the new land had already been taken up by Henry Fowler, so the Town then granted to Roger Mowry all the new land and granted other lands to Henry Fowler (ERP II:126).

When Roger Mowry's daughter Mehitable sold 12 acres of land to Henry Esten on 3 June 1685, her then husband, Timothy Brookes, recited their right to the land, saying, > for & in Satisfaction of a Certaine Sum of money which ye sayd Roger Mawrey promised unto ye sayd Eldad Kinsley in Marriage with his sayd Daughter Mehittabell for part of her portion, did fully freely & Absolutely Give, Grant, make over & Confirme unto ye sayd Eldad Kinsley a Certaine quantetye of land Containeing by Esteemation twelve acres... (ERP XIV:129).

Roger Mowry gave a gift of four acres to his daughter Bethia, who married George Palmer, as seen in Palmer's deed of 30 September 1662 (ERP IV:108-9). Despite the literacy of Roger and his sons, both daughters, Bethia and Mehitable, made their Xs.

Roger Mowry took William Burrowes into his house on 10 October 1661, an agreement having been made with the town that Mowry would keep him (ERP III:7). The next year, Mowry agreed to keep him another year (ERP III:26-7). This arrangement continued into 1664, when William Burrows died (Correspondence of Roger Williams 2:519).

When John Clawson was attacked by an axe-wielding Indian and lay dying, he attempted to communicate his desires for the disposition of his estate. After his death, several persons came forward to support or deny Roger Williams' entitlement to the estate, including Edward Inman who said that he had heard Clawson complain of some men, such as Roger Mowry, but not of Roger Williams (ERP XV:83-4). Perhaps Mowry was a tough master.

On 30 7mo 1659 John Johnson of Roxbury made his will, leaving the primary portion of his estate to his five children, with a double share to his eldest son, having already provided for his third wife, Grace (Negus) Fawer (Suffolk Wills, pp.156-7). Soon after John's death and the proving of his will, Mary Moorre, "eldest daughter of John Johnson," and her husband Roger of Providence, sold her one-sixth interest in the estate by deed of 12 October 1659, making her mark (Suffolk Deed 3:314).

Writing his will on 21 January 1661[/2] Isaac Heath of Roxbury, who died of a "sore throat, being ye issue of his cold wth fever" (Roxbury Church Records, Doc. 114, p.199), willed 20s to his kinswoman Mary Mowry. He also mentioned the time left to serve by Benjamin Mowry, implying that this young relative was serving in his household, leaving him £5 if he served out his time (Suffolk Wills, p.184).

On 1 January 1664, Elizabeth Heath of Roxbury, widow of Isaac, bequeathed to "Thomas Morry, 10s to bee paid him a litle before his time of service now Come out, & as much to his Mother that now is, to bee paid her within a moneth after my Decease" (Suffolk Wills, p.242). This implies that Mary had placed her son, Thomas, with her kinsman Isaac Heath's widow in Roxbury to be raised in that town, just as her older son Benjamin had been.

On 3 February 1661[/2] Roger Mowry of Providence sold to William Carpenter a full right of commonage equal with that of any other purchaser, which Mowry had bought of Henry Naile (ERP I:85). On 22 December 1662, Roger Mowry of Providence sold to William Carpenter of Pautuxett the right of Robert Colwell in the lands between the Pautuckett and Pautuxett Rivers (ERP I:70-76). A few days later, he was one of six men chosen to serve on the petit jury for the town court of trials (ERP III:12-3).

On 25 March 1661[/2] Roger Mowry was one of ten men chosen to levy the rate (ERP II:144). At a Town Meeting 18 June 1663, Roger Mowry was chosen one of six men to hear cases in the town (ERP III:37).

In the Division on the East Side of the Seven Mile Line, Roger Mowry drew lot #74 on 19 February 1665[/6] (ERP III:73).

On 6 May 1669, though he had left a will and made her executrix, administration on Roger's estate was refused by his widow Mary, because the estate was insolvent (Records of the Colony of RI, 2:244). The Town Council gave her over £20 of the estate at her request, to help relieve her old age and for good reasons to them appearing. This was opposed by the Assembly at 6 May 1669 and the council was further given full power to settle the estate.

She had accepted administration by 5 September 1671, when she sold to Stephen Pain of Rehoboth the dwelling house, outhousing and three house lots and commonage, and Pain in turn sold this property to Samuel Whipple of Providence on 2 September 1671 (ERP III:206-13). To this deed the widow made her mark.

Settlement of the estate appears to have been uneven, as illustrated by Jonathan Mowry's presentation to the Town Meeting, saying that he had taken possession of twelve acres of upland that had been his father's right, being the "son & heire apparent to ye sayd Roger Morey" (ERP VIII:93).

Neither the will nor the inventory survive, and were missing as early as 1677 when Arthur Fenner and John Whipple Jr. were appointed to view the town books which had survived the war and noted that Mary Mowry's administration papers and bond were missing. So too on 29 August 1709 when the brothers Nathaniel, Ebenezer and William Jenckes wrote to the town regarding the laying out of lots on the West Side of the Seven Mile Line,

> "...some Time before the former Indian war: Our Honred father bought two Rights of Common on the weste side the seven mile line: (of the widow morey) the which Rightes were by the Towne Counsell of Providence ordred to be at her Dispose for the Raiseing of money to pay her Deceased husbands Debts, but the sd widow morey when shee sould these Rights unto our sd honrd Father: Culd not inform him who the originall proprietor of sd Rights were but Referd him to the Inventory of her husbands Estate for further Information; and with all told him that shee thought originally those two Rights Did belong unto Daniell Comstocke; and henry neale but she was not certaine of it; But when our sd father Came to make serch for a ferther Information by the Inventory the Inventory Culd not be found, nor is it yet to be heard of: but when the devision of land on the weast sid the seven mile line was agreed on and the severall proprietors came to draw: (their lots) our sd father did venter to Draw on the aforesd Rights of Comstock & Neale but sence the lots have been layd out and the Returns given in it doth appere that Neales Right was sould by Roger Morey in his life time to william Carpenter: so that it Doth now appear that Neales Right was Not one of the two Rights ordred to the wido mory by the Town Councell to be Disposd of by her for the purpose aforesd: But it is Evident that two Rights were ordred her to dispose of: for that part of the two, lieing with in the seven mille line were sould to Samuell whiple and allowed of by the Town Councell..." (ERP XVII:259).

Following Roger's death in 1666, Mary waited 7 years before remarrying to the newly widowed John Kingsley of Rehoboth. Her choice was not destined to bring her a life of ease, however, as John's letter of May 1676 to Mr. Joseph Haynes shows:

> Ser, I sallvtue you with al that cal on the Lord Jesus, thayer Lord & oweres. I did despach a few lines to new noriage & so to you & the rest on your river, but fearing it should not com to your hand & those which it concernes, I nowe, in my sicknes that the Lord hath laid on vs as hee did on Iob. NATHANIEL[2] MOWRY (Roger[1]), born Lynn, MA circa 1644; died Providence, RI 24 March 1718 (ERP XVI:50); marriage intention Providence 28 August 1666 (PVR p.134) JOANNA[2] INMAN, died Providence between 18 March 1717/8 when she is provided for in her husband's will and 14 April 1718 when her daughter is paid for care of Joanna during her [last] sickness (ERP XVI:86), daughter of EDWARD[1] INMAN and his unseen first wife (see Inman Chapter).

It is possible that Nathaniel was a Quaker, since when he was called to serve on the jury of trials in 1688, he appeared before the court, but refused to take the oath (Quakers do not swear oaths of any kind), and was fined 5s (Newport Ct Bk A:111). Yet, Nathaniel Mowry had been chosen the sole grand juryman from Providence to serve at the next court of trials years earlier 21 August 1684, without mishap (ERP VIII:141). Later, with James Belloo, Nathaniel Mowry was chosen a petit juryman to serve at the next Newport court of trials at the quarter meeting 27 January 1690/1 (ERP VIII:176). There may be another reason why Nathaniel would not take the oath in 1688, but it is not evident.

Despite, or perhaps because of, the closeness of Joanna Inman to the family of her father's second wife, the Mowrys had quite a bit of difficulty with one of the Phillipses. In court 14 November 1693, James Phillips was indicted for burning Nathaniel Mowry's hay, spoiling his dam, killing his cattle and several violent threats. Phillips pled not guilty, and the court found him not guilty, but he was required to give a bond of £20 for his future good behavior (Newport Ct Bk A:118).

Nathaniel began his appearances in public records very early. Just barely of age, he made his mark as a witness to the deed of George and Bethia Palmer of Providence, conveying land given to Bethia by her father Roger Mowry, to John Scott of Providence 30 September 1662 (ERP, IV:108-9). In later documents, Nathaniel signed his name. Ten years later, Nathanial Mowry was a freeman, 1 May 1672 (Austin, p.346).

Although he was taxed a modest 7d on 16 July 1680, his involvement in town affairs had been for years typical of a comfortable and prosperous inhabitant. On 27 January 1667, Gershom Walling, son of Thomas, was apprenticed to Nathaniel Mowry until he was of age. This was a result of the letter Mowry wrote to the town, saying:

> I pray the Towne to declare their mind whether I shall have Tho. Wallins child [Gersham], now in my keeping and if it be their pleasure I desire that the Towne would take order for his binding to me (Correspondence of Roger Williams 2:785).

With John Mowry and John Inman, Nathaniel took up a stray mare branded [and] with her a yearling foal, perhaps belonging to the town of Warwick, 7 September 1669 (Correspondence of Roger Williams 2:785). Nathaniel Mowry brought in a wolf's head, killed by his teenaged son, Joseph, on 7 December 1687 (ERP IX:191).

With Arthur Fenner, Valentine Whitman, Eleazer Arnold and John Inman, Nathaniel Mowry gave bond for £15 to hold the town harmless from any charges relating to allowing William Garrard to reside within the township on 27 January 1681/2 (ERP VIII:108).

Nathaniel Mowry and his brother, John, were among the associates of Edward Inman, when he struck off from the Town of Providence and purchased land from the Indians. The Town agreed to acknowledge the separate and independant purchase for the sake of peace, and allowed a modest amount of meadow to the settlers 26 April 1682 (ERP XIV:112-4).

With wife Joanna and his brother John Mowry and wife Mary, he deeded to John Reed of Norwalk, CT for £20 certain rights to land in Providence, a confirmation of a deed made years previously (ERP XIV:139-41). When Nathaniel Mowry took up land on the west side of the river by the Keyes, it stirred up a small controversy, as it was supposed that the land might have belonged to either James Clarke or Nicholas Power. The town considered the matter and declared that the land was town common land and free for Nathaniel Mowry to take up 27 January 1692/3 (ERP XI:2). Several years later, Nathaniel Mowry deeded the land at the Keyes, "For & in Consideration of the well being & settlement of..." his son Joseph Mowry (ERP V:105-7). Joanna made her mark to this deed.

On 17 February 1700/1 Nathaniel Mowry, "for & in Consideration of the Well being & Setlement of my Son Henry Mawrey, as also for the Good Affection that to him I beare..." deeded to him about one hundred acres west of the Pautucket River near "Wesquadomesett" (ERP XX:56-8). Joanna did not make her mark on this deed.

It was granted to Nathaniel Mowry that he could change ten acres of land at Mattateconit and take it elsewhere on the common 8 March 1700/1 (ERP XI:62). He made another exchange a few years later when he was permitted to lay down three pieces of meadow and take up a presumably similar amount of upland "in luie thereof" (ERP XI:85).

On the 22 February 1706, Mowry sold to Edward Manton one quarter right in lands on the west side of the Seven Mile line (ERP XX:191-3) and on 13 July 1706, without wife Joanna, he sold to Samuel Bates another one quarter part of a purchase right on the west side of the Seven Mile line (ERP XX:115-7).

Mowry witnessed a deed of James Bick, selling back the family burial ground on a farm sold to Bick by John Mowry, son of John, 3 February 1710 (ERP XX:492, 522). It was necessary to run a special dividing line between the homestead farms of Nathaniel Mowry and John Sayles 16 March 1710/11 (ERP XX:424).

Nathaniel served as administrator of his brother, John's estate in 1690. He kept a meticulous account of the payments for services to this estate, apparently in his own precise hand. He paid his sister, Elizabeth, for help during "theare" sickness, apparently meaning that both John and his wife Mary were ill at the same time. There are payments for transporting Experience and Sarah, John's two youngest children, to "Conannicoat" [Jamestown], where Joseph Mowry lived (Providence Probate A50).

Although in his lifetime he held very few elected town offices, in June of 1693, Mowry was chosen one of three town constables (ERP XI:4).

In a deposition taken 6 January 1711[/12] Nathaniel called himself 66 years of age, placing his birth circa 1644. This makes him approximately 72 at the time of his death. His will was written less than a week before his death:

> I Nathaniel Mawrey of Providence in the Colony of Rhoad Island and Providence plantations In New England, yeoman, being weake of body but of sound and dissposeing memory Praise be given to God for the same: doe make this my Last Will and Testament in manner and form following > first and Prinsipally I Commit my sperit Into the Marcifull hands of almighty God my Creator: and my body I Cummit to the Earth to be decently buried after the decression of my Executor here in after named: and as to the Worldly Esstate which the Lord hath Lent mee in this present Life I Give and bequeathe as followeth

OLNEY

THOMAS[1] OLNEY, born England before 1605; died Providence, RI between 16 June 1682 when his son is called "Jr." and 9 October 1682 when his inventory was taken (ERP VI:90); married St Albans Abbey, Hertfordshire 16 September 1629 (parish register) MARIE ASHTON, baptized St Albans 25 August 1605, died probably between 1645 (birth of last known child) and 15 7mo 1659 when Thomas refers to persons who might claim thirds in a piece of land he was selling (ERP V:77-8), daughter of JAMES and ALICE (_____) ASHTON (see Ashton Chapter).

Thomas Olney, his wife, Marie, and their small sons, Thomas and Epenetus, immigrated to the New World on the ship Planter in April, 1635 (Hotten's Lists). They settled in Salem, MA, where their third son, Nedabiah, was baptized in 1637. In that year there were five persons in Thomas Olney's family and he received three acres in the Salem land grant (Perley, 3:463).

Thomas' ability and competence were soon recognized, for by 27 4mo 1637, he was selected as a member of the jury to hear cases in the Essex Quarterly Courts (EQC 1:6).

The family's sojourn in Salem was short; they were among those invited to leave the Massachusetts Bay Colony, and they moved to Providence, RI, where Thomas rose to a position of importance in the tiny colony. His clear, concise hand is seen on countless deeds and other official documents. From the Rhode Island Colony Records, we find a substantial record of his considerable service to the community, frequently under the title of respect, "Mr."

In 1655 he appeared on a list of freemen of Providence, with his son, Thomas Jr. (ERP 1:298-9). The use of "Jr." and "Sr." was erratic in the early records, and sometimes, even after the younger Thomas' majority, the entries appear as an ambiguous "Thomas Olney," so that distinguishing between the two is somewhat difficult.

Thomas Olney was a signer of the first compact (undated, but probably between 13 July 1638 and 27 July 1640) and received a homelot in Providence (ERP II:24). On 8 8mo 1638 he was one of those prominent men given a deed to Providence by Roger Williams (ERP V:306-8). He was named one of the committee to form a government for Rhode Island (ERP II:42). He deposed regarding the lands purchased from Osamequin (ERP II:33). On 27 July 1640 he was one of thirty-nine signers of an agreement for a government in Providence. Thomas Olney was Providence's first treasurer (ERP I:2).

Thomas Olney was by occupation a shoemaker. This is borne out by his inventory, which included considerable numbers of shoemaking materials. However, Olney is much better known in his role as Court Assistant, Town Councilman and Clerk.

As Assistant, he took the testimony of Peter Buscot of Warwick 11 7mo 1649 (ERP XV:26). From time to time, Thomas Olney was moderator at the town meeting. He first served in that capacity 27 2mo 1649, and repeated this service in the years 1650, 1653, 1656/7, 1659-67 (ERP II:40, 42,45,61,71,99,114,119,120, 121,124,131,133,135,138,143; III:6,17,22,23, 27,28,29,33,40,41,44,47,53,54,55,60, 63,81). Thomas was one of the six selectmen 3 9mo 1649, and 4 9mo 1650 (ERP II:43,53). Nicholas Power was chosen instead of Thomas Olney 28 5mo 1651 (ERP II:58).

He went with Robert Williams and William Wickenden, and three others chosen out of Portsmouth, Newport and Warwick, to answer Massachusetts regarding their summons 27 5mo 1650 (ERP II:48). With other leading men of the town, he was a member of the inquest into the death of Margaret Goodwin 4 3mo 1651 (ERP II:104, likely 1657).

Robert Williams, Thomas Olney and the ill-fated Hugh Bewet (q.v.) were to set to rights the lots of the "New Field" and be paid by the inhabitants of that field for their labors 27 8mo 1651 (ERP II:59). Thomas went out with three others to settle the bounds between Samuel Comstock and Robert Colwell 2 8mo 1655 (ERP II:84).

Thomas was one of the original members of the Baptist church in Providence, but in 1653 or 1654, he and some others withdrew from the Six-Principle group under Wickenden's leadership to found a second church. Olney became lay pastor for this small congregation until his death in 1682 (Historic Records Survey, Church Archives, Baptist, 183, Correspondence of Roger Williams 1:231).

Thomas Olney strongly opposed the imposition of mandatory military service in Providence, when it became an issue in the winter of 1654, but did not prevail (Correspondence of Roger Williams, 2:422). While the conflict's particulars are not known, the disagreement was a severe one. In the town records is a summary of the resolution:

> Imprimis whe[re]as there hath Bin great debate this day about Tho: Olnie Rob: Williams Jon Field Will: Harris & others concerning ye mater of a > tumult and disturbance in ye winter under a pretence of voluntarie training it was at last concluded By vote that for ye Colonies sake whoe hatt chosen Tho: Olnie an assistant & for ye publike union & peace sake it should be past By & no more mentioned (4 June 1655, ERP II:81).

Thomas Olney was made a member of a sub-committee to consider a way of preventing the sale of ammunition to the Indians (ERP I:320).

Thomas Olney was one of three men chosen by the town to end small differences 7 3mo 1656 (ERP I:114).

He was named assistant to the General Court of Tryalls many times between 12 3mo 1652 and 1670 (ERP 1:325-3:302). Several times he was chosen to be next in line as Assistant or actually Assistant to the Governor in Providence (ERP I:353; III:37,61,90,96,147), and only twice refused appointment: in 1666, when he was replaced by Thomas Harris (ERP III:153) and later when he was replaced by his son, Thomas Jr. (ERP III:385). He was Commissioner for Providence 6 March 1655/6, 22 May 1662, and 4 October 1662 (ERP II:93; I:468; III:27). In addition to his duties as Assistant and Commissioner, he was several times named a Justice of the Peace (ERP III:95, 1665), Deputy (ERP II:57, 1651; III:130, 1665) and tax collector for Providence.

Mr. Thomas Olney was chosen to audit Capt. Holden's accounts for the colony (ERP 1:340). He performed the same service on Mr. Clarke's account some years later (ERP III:70).

In 1656, it was ordered by the town, "upon receit of a Letter from y^{e} Govern^{r} of y^{e} Baye that a man be sent thither to treate about y^{e} busines of Pautuxet. The man Chosen to goe is M^{r}. Tho: Olnie Sen^{r}" (ERP II:93).

In 1659, Thomas Olney Sr., William Wickenden, John Sayles and Thomas Hopkins were ordered to meet with some of the Pautuxett men to consider what had lately been done with the Indians in Rhode Island (ERP II:122).

Thomas Olney was a major player in the controversy over the boundaries between Rhode Island and her sister colonies, Connecticut and Massachusetts. He was chosen, with others, to run the northern line of the colony (ERP II:302) and labored long on these questions (ERP II:380,529).

Thomas Olney handled the accounts of the estate of John Clawson for the town in 1661 (ERP III:5). He was chosen with two others to view the lands about Wayunckkeake and to be paid three shillings for his trouble, with the added provision that he should have "Libertye to put another in his Room, in case he findeth himselfe not able to goe" (ERP III:19). We are not told whether it was business or health that might have hindered him.

In 1662, Thomas Olney Senior was one of eight men chosen to levy the £76 rate (ERP III:28). The next year he, and his son, Epenetus, were added to the Town Council to make up the number needed (ERP III:36).

On 31 May 1666, Thomas Olney Sr. was fourth on the list of Providence men who swore allegiance to King Charles II (ERP III:101). Later that year, widow Joane Rhodes called Thomas Olney Sr. one of her "Loving Freimdes," and asked that he serve with others as an overseer of her will, which was proved 28 January 1666/7 (ERP I:30).

Thomas Olney Sr., as surveyor for the town, laid out land for John Steere, as seen in Steere's deed of 23 May 1667 (ERP I:18).

Thomas Olney Sr. was added to the Town Council to make up the number in 1667 (ERP III:103). In June of 1669, he was chosen town treasurer (ERP III:147). In 1670, both Thomas Olney Sr. and Jr. had their three fifty acre divisions from the second division recorded in the town records (ERP III:152). That same year, after a meeting at John Whipple Sr.'s house, for which use several persons paid the fee of 10s, Thomas Olney Sr. was one to whom a portion of this money was to be repaid (ERP III:153). In July 1670, Thomas Olney Sr. was allowed to change 25 acres he bought of Roger Williams in the right of John Closson, having paid his exchange money (ERP III:154, 186-9). In August 1670, that land in Loquasqussuck laid out by surveyor Thomas Olney Jr. for his father was recorded (ERP III:158, 159).

He was executor of the estate of Henry Harris (RIHSM I:160; II:3). He witnessed the deed of Joseph Wise, 28 May 1673 (Providence Deed 1:22).

Thomas Olney and Samuel Bennett were chosen surveyors to lay out land on the west side of the seven mile line (ERP IV:52, 7 June 1675). An article in the Providence Sunday Journal 24 April 1892, provides an interesting account of the creation of the Seven Mile Line and some useful statistics regarding the number of acres assigned through the divisions to each proprietor's share:

> The seven-mile line extends across Providence county north and south, forming the eastern boundary of Burrillville, Glocester and Scituate. It was established by vote of the Proprietors, June 4, 1660. This line, as well as another three miles east and parallel with it, called the four-mile line, was established merely for convenience in laying out the lands; but at a later day the line was found to form a convenient basis for dividing the plantation into townships.
> The Proprietors had two sets of books for recording the titles to land, one set for the east and one for the west side of the seven-mile line. The land on the west side remained undisturbed until that on the east had been mostly disposed of. At a town meeting held February 28, 1694, it was ordered that after the last day of April next, the surveyor might proceed to lay out the land on the west side of the seven-mile line, 150 acres to each purchase right....
> There were in all 13 divisions of this land, covering a period of more > than 70 years, the first, though not actually made till 1694, being decided upon ten years earlier, and the last one being ordered in May 1755....

> The average number of acres assigned to each proprietary right by these 13 divisions was 914, and for the 101 rights amounts to 92,314 acres. At the time this section was opened to settlement about 95 per cent of it was forest. (Providence Sunday Journal, 24 April 1892, p.16.)

Olney's land transactions were long and involved. The Town agreed to give Thomas Olney six acres near Bailey's Cove, if Olney would fence and maintain "the same for ever or else he shall not recouer any satisfactione for any damage done by Catle upone the aforesayd land" (ERP II:1, 27 July 1642). This was evidently an exchange for land already in his possession, for the town record continues, saying that if any other man wished to lay down his acreage on the Neck, he could take up six acres elsewhere if he agrees to fence and maintain it (ibid.). Thomas Olney sold ten acres on the south side of the Wenosquetucket River to William Field, and the deed was recorded 14 2mo 1645 (ERP II:6). Thomas Olney witnessed the deed of William Field 9 12mo 1645 (Providence Deed 1:48). He witnessed the deed of William Carpenter to William Field 9 12mo 1645 (ERP IV:19).

William Arnold of Providence let all of his land in Providence to Thomas Olney, except two acres plus letting one half of all of any future lands he may be granted by the town 11 1mo 1642 (ERP I:64-6). Not long afterwards, on 11 11mo 1642, Thomas Olney let to William Arnold land between the Great Fresh River to the border between Providence and Pawtuxet and other small parcels (ERP I:102-5).

Thomas Olney bought land from Mathew Waller 20 2mo 1649 (Providence Deed 1:62). This deed was witnessed by his brothers-in-law, Thomas Angell (who made his mark) and James Ashton. Stuckley Westcott sold his six acre lot up Wanasquatuget River to Thomas Olney 4 3mo 1649 (ERP II:9). Thomas was granted a house plot above the highway near William Arnold's meadow 24 8mo 1650 (ERP II:52). Thomas Olney sold to Steven Arnold of Pautuxett a parcel of land near the falls of Pautuxett 14 July 1657 (ERP I:93). He sold a thirteenth part of the land on the little neck near Pautuxett Falls near the dwelling house of Steven Arnold to Arnold 8 May 1659 (ERP I:93).

Roger Mowry deeded his title in a home share of land he bought of Robert Colwell that was originally George Palmer's, to Thomas Olney 19 March 1658/9 (ERP I:62-3). Thomas Olney gave a deed to William Carpenter of Pawtuxett 27 July 1659 (Field Papers, Rhode Island Historical Society, 16,17 and Providence Deed 1:49). Thomas Olney sold all his rights to lands beyond the Pauchaset River to Zachariah Rhodes of Pautuxet for good consideration on 15 7mo 1659 (ERP V:77-8). Thomas Olney gave a deed to George Way 20 April 1664 (Esten Papers, Rhode Island Historical Society I:22) and received a deed from him 31 August of the same year (Misc. Mss., Rhode Island Historical Society, W:364).

In the division of of the land on the east side of the Seven Mile Line, Thomas Olney Sr. drew lot 23 (ERP III:72). At the November Town Meeting in 1666, he was allowed to exchange his sixty acres of land in the neck (ERP III:88) and his sixty acres at Caucaunjawatchuch was recorded in April 1667 (ERP III:96). Roger Williams deeded land to him 18 10mo 1667 (Providence Deed 1:64).

Thomas Olney drew lot 44 in the division of lands on the west side of the seven mile line 17 March 1683/4 (ERP IV:66).

As he entered his late sixties, Thomas provided small parcels for his children, but reserved the bulk of their portions for bequests in his will. He freely gave to his son Epenetus Olney about one and a half acres about two and a half miles north of the town on 14 March 1669 (ERP V:6).

Thomas Olney of Providence sold to Zachariah Rhodes of Pautuxet his interest in all his lands in Pautuxet beyond the river called Pauchaset. He further promised to protect Zachariah Rhodes from "any that shall claime any Thirds by vertue of my former Title in it" 15 7mo 1659 (ERP V:77-8). This unusual phrasing would imply that his wife was deceased by this date, or that she had deeded her dower right to someone, an unlikely situation. No direct colonial record of Marie survives beyond her appearance as mother of their child born in Salem. Although Thomas Olney had children in Providence, none of these births are in the town records. She never appeared to release her rights in any recorded deed of her husband's, nor does she depose in any town matters nor leave a recorded will. We know that Marie (Ashton) Olney was buried in the family graveyard on Thomas Olney's houselot, because her son Thomas said as much in his will. Beyond this, her life is unknown.

Thomas Olney deeded to his son, Thomas, one and a half acres of salt meadow and fresh meadow by Great Point on 14 March 1669[/70]. This deed was not recorded until 22 April 1671 (ERP III:174-5). As a deputy for the town, Olney signed the grant of land to new purchaser Shadrach Manton 4 February 1660[/1] (ERP III:195-7).

Thomas wrote his will about three years before his death:

(ERP VI:90-4)

Although not part of his will, Thomas Olney apparently left a document, possibly written at the time of his son James' death, detailing his intention that the Providence Town Council control a cow and her increase, once the property of his son James, to be raised for the best advantage of the three children of John Whipple, Jr.: Mary, John and Elnathan. These three were the children of Thomas' deceased daughter, Mary. The Town Council had put the cattle in the hands of Epenetus Olney, and, observing on 13 March 1682/3 that Mary Whipple, the eldest of the three children, was almost eighteen years of age, they ordered that her father should divide the cattle and report back to the Council (ERP XI:97-8).

It was the realization that this matter of the cattle had not been recorded in the town book that caused the council to order that all such documents be recorded (ERP VI:99, 25 April 1683).

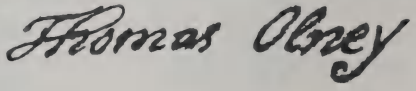
THOMAS[2] OLNEY (Thomas[1]), baptized St Albans, co. Herts. 6 January 1631/2; died Providence, RI 11 June 1722 (ERP XVI:210); married Providence 3 July 1660 (ERP V:293) ELIZABETH MARSH, born perhaps Newport, RI say 1640s, living 1675, but predeceased her husband.



In the Rhode Island Colony Records, Thomas Olney Jr. appears as a freeman, with his father, in a list of 1655 (ERP I:298-9). His clear hand is very similar to his father's, though not so careful, and his career covered many of the same highlights. He was named Assistant in the General Assembly a number of times and may possibly have been the one to run the northern boundary line of the colony. He replaced his father as Assistant one year when Thomas Sr. refused to serve (ERP III:385) and in another year attracted abuse, for which Samuel Winsor of Providence was charged with "maliciously using words of contempt against Mr. Thomas Olney and Mr. Thomas Whipple Assista[ts] in the execution of their offices." Winsor was found not guilty (Newport Ct Bk A:43/45).

At the June 24th 1655 town meeting, with Roger Williams moderating, Thomas Olney Jr.'s petition for 60 acres and 20 acres near the Indian field at "Stukelie" was granted and at the same time his house lot was ordered to be laid out by ye "Stompers according to his bill prowided he follow Taning [sic] & further provided that ye Towne deputi[ ] doe maintaine a sufficient high way (ERP II:83). In January 1655/6, it was ordered that Thomas Olney Jr. be given, "so much of the Stampers boottom as could be spared from a highway for his home share & 80 akers at Wainskock" (ERP II:92).

The free inhabitants of Providence granted to Thomas Olney [Jr.], inhabitant of the town a full right of land and commonage and the rights of a purchaser, having received the full amount of his purchase money. They laid out to him several divisions: one share of meadow in Observation Meadow, one parcel of land on both sides of Third Lake Stream, one parcel in Stampers Bottom for a house lot, also five acres on the west side of Mosshossick River on the north side of Spruce Swamp, and six acres on the small fresh stream at Baileys Cove and eighty acres of land near Wanskuck, 27 April 1659 (ERP III:74-77). On 27 January 1660[/1] Thomas Olney Jr. was one of fourteen men to pay £21 for lands at Aquednesett (ERP II:139).

On 4 February 1660, it was granted that he should have the land between his land and the mill on the east side of Moshosett River, for an addition to his houselot (ERP I:140). On 25 March 1661 he was permitted to exchange his 80 acres (ERP II:145). He was the youngest of six men chosen to meet and decide about the division of new lands as ordered by the town council 7 March 1661/2 (ERP III:18). In the 1665 division of the land on the east side of the Seven Mile Line, Thomas Olney Jr. received lot 41 (ERP III:72).

With his father and elder brother, Epenetus, Thomas Olney Jr. swore allegiance to King Charles II on 31 May 1666 (ERP III:101).

In May of 1667, land was laid out to him between the Seven Mile and Four Mile lines (ERP III:191-3).

With these lands and the property left to him by his father in 1682, Thomas[2] Olney was well established in Providence. In addition to his father's houselot and proprietary rights, Thomas received all his father's books and writings. From the inventory, we see that these volumes were on legal and theological subjects (ERP VI:90-4; XVI:210-12).

> "The mark which Thomas Olney giveth his Cattell is a forke in the Topp of the left Eare it being the Marke which his Father the deceased Thomas Olney alwayes gave upon his Cattell, Recorded the 15th day of December in ye yeare 1684 (ERP V:281).

So well provided for, Thomas Olney did not purchase much land in his lifetime. Among his few deeds, George Way of Providence, husbandman, with the consent of his wife Elizabeth, sold to Thomas Olney Jr. thirty acres of upland and a little swampland at Observation Meadow on 31 August 1664 (ERP III:78-81).

An original letter written by Thomas Olney Jr. to George Fox 5 June 1673 is preserved at the Rhode Island Historical Society (RIHSM I:21).

The house of Thomas Olney was burned down in the attack by Indians on Providence in the spring of 1676 (Correspondence of Roger Williams 2:721). This may have been his father's house, if so, it was rebuilt before his father's death. At any rate, the family had fled, for only Thomas' brother, Sergt. James Olney, "staid and went not away" during the attack on Providence.

Thomas Olney was a perennial member of the Town Council, serving almost continuously from the late 1670s when he was in his forties, until 1714. He was often Town Clerk until this year, when at age eighty-two, he was replaced by Richard Waterman. As early as July of 1669, he was chosen moderator (ERP III:147), an office which he held frequently.

In early 1670, Thomas Olney Jr. was one of the three men asked to audit the town's records in preparation for the General Audit at Newport, however, Olney "haveing received som discouragements," was replaced and another committee completed the audit (ERP III:164-5). With his father and brothers, he helped pay the 10s cost for the use of John Whipple Sr.'s house as a town meeting place (ERP III:153).

In October 1670, Thomas Olney Jr. brought a complaint to the town council, claiming that Thomas Walling "debarr[ed] him from goeing over the Land you Claime unto his meadow, by w[h]ich meanes he Cannot gitt home his hay; by reason of yor blocking up the Way which he hath usually gone in..." (ERP III:158). He protested the vote of the town in November 1679, joined by his brother Epenetus, but not his father (ERP VIII:61).

At the 10 October 1682 town council meeting, Thomas Olney presented the last will and testament of his father, together with an inventory of his estate, and the two documents were approved at the next meeting (ERP VI:46-7).

In the Town Council, Thomas Olney saw a wide variety of events, but most of his time was filled with the standard duties of the Town Officers. Primary responsibilities in those early years included keeping the records of town grants of land, surveying such land, presiding over probating the estates of deceased inhabitants, collecting taxes, recording deeds, appointing committees to deal with special problems, maintaining highways, settling small matters through arbitration, and warning out undesirable strangers.

As Town Clerk, Thomas Olney kept a rather erratic set of birth, death, marriage intention and marriage records. Occasionally, he was faced with something unusual. He joined the other Town Councilmen in forbidding the marriage of Thomas Cooper to Abigail Sibley, since Cooper was already married, 12 July 1683 (ERP VI:111).

Olney was entrusted with the duty of dividing the Matetakonitt meadows and the pieces of meadow which belonged to Edward Inman and his partners in 1678 (ERP VIII:138).

When Samuel Winsor sued Joseph Williams, Thomas Olney's son-in-law, Olney appeared in General Court as William's attorney and won the case (Newport Ct Bk A:69/71, 25 March 1684). The animosity between Olney and Winsor had a long history, and at the General Court 23 October 1678, charges were brought against Winsor for "maliciously using words of contempt against Mr Thomas Olney and Mr thomas Whipple, Assistants in the execution of their offices." Winsor was found not guilty (Newport Ct Bk A:43/45).

In May of 1685, Thomas Olney, Town Clerk of Providence, "Aged 53 yeares or theire abouts," testified in the matter of John Whipple Sr.'s will, saying:

> "That upon y^{e} sixteenth day of this instant may John whipple senior of the aforesaid towne of Providence sent for to speake with him; This deponant sayth he Emediatly went to him: the said John whipple then shewed him this paper & the writeing which on y^{e} other side of this said paper is written, desireing this deponant to peruse it. This deponant saith he then did peruse it, & haveing well perused it, he asked the said John whipple what his mind was concerning y^e^ lands which in y^e^ said writeing he had desposed of to his severall sons, whether or no he did intent by that writeing, or will that y^e^ said lands should be unto his said sons & theire Heirs & Assignes for Ever, or only unto his said sons for terme of life, he Emediatly made this Answer; That how Ever it was worded in y^e^ said writeing yet his mind & will was that his sons Each one of them should have those lands house & Rights which hee in y^e^ said writeing unto Each one of them had desposed, to be unto them, theire Heirs & Assignes for Ever to despose y^e^ same or any part thereof at any time as they see cause. & that y^e^ same was his Mind & Will when y^e^ said will was written: And further, that whereas in y^e^ said Will it was omitted to be inserted that his son Jonathan should have one of his Rights of land & Comoning on y^e^ west side of y^e^ seven mile line, yet that was his mind & will; That his son jonathan whipple should have one of his Rights of land & Comoning on y^e^ west side of y^e^ seven mile line to be unto him his Heires & Assignes for Ever; and that was his mind when y^e^ said will was written, how Ever by y^e^ scribe it was omitted. And whereas in y^e^ first part of y^e^ said Will there is an Exception made only of thirty acres of land to his son John by him formerly given, that he owned to be a mistake, & that y^e^ Exception must be of sixty acres which formerly by deede of Gift he had given to his son John whipple; and all the remainder of his said farme lieing about Loquasqussuck should be devided Equally betweene his said three sons (viz) Samuell, Eliezer, & william; This saith this deponant is trueth, & that hee tooke it Emediatly from y^e^ said John whipple his mouth & wrott it downe. And also that whereas the said Will Expresseth a quarter part of a Right of Comoning to Each of his three sons, (namely) Samuell, Eliezer & william, he said his Meaneing intent & will was that it should be so farr westward as y^e^ Seven mile line & no further; And that the said John whipple was then when hee did declare the Same of Sound mind & of Good memory May y^e^ 27^th^: 1685 upon Oath..." (ERP VI:128-130)

In 1686, Thomas Olney was sent to the Massachusetts Bay to represent the town on town's business, and upon his return, presented a bill for £4.1.6 for his expenses (ERP VIII:169). At a town meeting 10 August 1687, Thomas Olney was appointed to go to Boston to inform them that Anne Waters and her child did not belong to Providence, and to settle any other similar business (ERP VIII:172). In the meantime, the little child, Thomas Waters, and his mother were thought likely to perish if Providence did not take care of them. Thomas Olney, John Whipple and William Hawkins Jr. were appointed to find some person to take them and to put the child out until he was 21 years old (ERP III:174).

His servant, an Indian woman named Mercy, became the mother of a male child named Richard Virgin, born at Providence 22 November 1695, "The Father of the said Child being one Richard Virgin a wandring person, who to avoyd the charge of maintaineing of the Said Child Runn away" (ERP V:267).

Sometimes it happened, especially in the winter, that the widow of a deceased man would refuse to come to the meeting of the Council to answer regarding her husband's estate and to present an inventory. More than once, Thomas Olney was among those delegated to go through the snow to take the engagement or deposition of the heirs, as in the case of Susanna Harris 24 January 1681[/2] (ERP VI:32).

Thomas Olney was also a perennial surveyor, with evidence of his service seen throughout the town records from 1669 to 1706.

He was frequently a witness to deeds recorded in Providence, being conveniently at hand. Although he recorded deeds as a duty of the Clerk, he was also sometimes employed to write the original deed, as in the case of Gideon Crufford, who paid the eighty-year-old Olney, about which he comments, "I the abovesaid Thomas Olney Was the penman which wrott the said deede, being imployed by said Cruffurd" (ERP XXI:42). He wrote numerous licenses and bonds, and beginning 16 June 1682, he was given a small sum, 40 shillings, to reimburse various Town Councilmen for their expenses in the public service (ERP VI:45).

Thomas Olney witnessed dozens of wills, for the great and small of Providence. He was one of those who labored with young Richard Waterman and his step-father, Samuel Winsor, over the division of lands left by Waterman's grandfather (ERP VI:36-7, 6 March 1681/2). He witnessed the will of Joseph Jenckes Sr. (21 October 1708, ERP XVI:20).

He laid out the land of James Ashton 3 June 1682 (Providence Deed 1:24) and was probably the Thomas Olney who surveyed the land of John Whipple Sr. on 13 December 1683 (Providence Deed 1:58) and Edward Inman's border on 30 January 1683/4 (ibid.).

On 10 June 1700, Thomas Olney Sr. was one of three men chosen to fix the bounds of the new burying place (ERP XI:57). The next year, he petitioned the town to build a highway between the north part of his farm at Wanskuck and the land of Ben Smith (ERP XI:62).

He was chosen a magistrate at the town council meeting 7 June 1703 (ERP XI:74). In the division of the thatchbeds in 1706, Thomas Olney received one of the six shares in the first lot (ERP IX:19).

On 13 June 1715, the town chose Major Joseph Jenckes and Mr. Philip Tillinghast to receive the books and papers which belonged to the town from "Mr. Thomas Olney former Towne Clerke and give him a Receipt for the same: (ERP IX:10).

Thomas Olney left a stunningly detailed will:

Thomas[3] Olney made his living as a carpenter, but we see him in the Providence Town Records most often as a surveyor, beginning in 1706 and continuing until just before his own early death at age fifty-seven in 1718. In addition to surveying the bounds of new grants, a number of old grants were unrecorded or lost, "by some axedent," and the bounds had to be redrawn. These surveys were done at all times of the year, there being as many done near harvest time as in the dead of winter.

Thomas Olney Junr. of Providence took up a stray colt about a year old, "of a Bay Colour, somthing neere a Sorrill, foure white feete, a white face, a Gray tayle," and published his find 19 April 1686 (ERP IX:194).

In his comparatively short lifetime, Thomas Olney never achieved the same high visibility his father enjoyed. He was selected as a petty juryman 25 February 1694/5 (ERP XI:14) and served as town constable in 1699 (ERP XI:49). He witnessed a very few wills, such as that of Joseph Jenckes Sr. 21 October 1708 (ERP XVI:20) and, with Joseph Jenkes Jr., proportioned the rate 3 February 1700/1 (ERP XI:61). He was appointed way warden in 1703 (ERP XI:75).

He was one of the men chosen to view the thatch beds and determine the size of each man's share, 11 March 1705/6 (ERP XI:107) and with Captain Thomas Fenner, was chosen to survey the lands on the east side of the Seven Mile Line in 1706 (ERP XI:109). In this capacity, Olney and Fenner were asked to set straight the matter between John Mathewson and Samuel Daily regarding their lands in Maswasacutt Pond (ERP XI:111).

He was one of the twelve men appointed to chose the route of a high road toward Plainfield in 1706 (ERP X:88). A few months later, Thomas Olney Jr., James Olney and Obadiah Browne brought forward a bill that was referred to the Purchasors' meeting 3 February 1706/7 (ERP XI:115).

With three others, Thomas Olney Jr. was given the use of a piece of land by the salt water side of the town for their use of laying of timber, boards, or other matter for transportation (ERP XI:116). He was chosen surveyor again in 1707 and in 1709 (ERP XI:117, 138).

With Capt. Wilkinson and Elisha Arnold, Captain Olney was sent to settle the highway to the Neotaconkonitt River 27 April 1710 (ERP XI:143). He was also asked to set the place for a bridge that same year (ERP XI:148).

Captain Thomas Olney was chosen as a deputy to the General Assembly in 1711 (ERP XI:157). He was on the jury of inquest into the death of Joseph Burden in 1713, which found that Burden, the newly-wed husband of Margery[2] Angell, was drowned by accident in Wanasquatucket River (ERP IX:1-2).

Thomas died intestate, and Joseph Smith and Benjamin Smith took his inventory 27 March 1718:

SMITH

CHRISTOPHER[1] SMITH, born England circa 1600s; died Providence, RI June 1676, Friends records say, Christopher Smith, "an antient Friend" died at Newport, RI June 1676 (RIFR, p.121); married in England before 1625 ALICE _____, born circa 1600s, living 1 July 1679 when she appears on a Providence tax list (ERP XV:186) but presumed dead by 3 October 1681, when her son Edward sold the land given him by his father for taking care of her during her life (ERP XIV:68-9). Although it has been stated that he married three times, no proof for this can be found (Tingley-Myers genealogy). Alice was his only wife of record.

A relatively late arrival to Providence, Christopher Smith is not seen until 3 9mo 1649, when he was one of six candidates to receive "Mris." Lea's lot in place of a home lot (ERP II:42). He was a man of means, paying £1.10.0 in the rate of June 1652, one of just five men who paid this highest amount (ERP XV:63). He paid just 5s in the £51 rate on 3 June 1671 (ERP XV:135), having dropped into the middle rank of valuations in Providence. His son, Edward, paid twice as much, however, suggesting that some of Christopher's drop was caused by a transference of wealth between father and son.

Christopher Smith appears a number of times in the Providence records, accepting modest duties. He was a juror to the general court in 1652 (ERP II:63), a juror again, as well as constable, in 1655 (ERP II:80-81), and finally a juror in 1656 (ERP II:94).

In 1656, when the constable wanted help in transporting James Bitts, a Scotchman, back to "Secunck," Christopher Smith, "to ye good example of all yonger Persons," volunteered to be of assistance (ERP II:80). This action followed his only stint as constable, a sometimes physically demanding position. Soon after, he was visited by ill health, as seen when he was chosen as a juryman, but due to the weakness of his body, was unable to serve. Ordinarily, failure to serve would draw a fine by the town, but on 13 March 1656/7 Providence remitted his because of his frailty (RI Court Records 1:28). He must have recovered somewhat, since he was chosen juryman 22 June 1657, just a few months later, and evidently served (ERP II:107).

Christopher Smith was one of those who swore allegiance to King Charles II 30 May 1667 (ERP III:102). He was in the list of freemen 4 May 1669 (ERP XV:73).

Christopher Smith's first share of meadow was a swamp on the west side of the Moshosick River and a small meadow on the east side of the river by the homeshare of Thomas Olney Jr. circa 1663 (ERP I:55-6). His five acre lot was laid out to the northwest of this. It was ordered that the lot of Christopher Smith be enlarged at the discretion of the Town Deputies in 1656 (ERP II:99). These lands were not properly recorded, however, and it was not until many years later that the town ordered that Christopher Smith's first share of meadow and his five acres of land finally be recorded in the town books 18 February 1661 (ERP III:14). Having learned first hand about the difficulties improper recording presented, when the bounds of his twenty acre lot were laid out 10 February 1667[/8] (ERP III:123), he requested it be recorded soon after (ERP III:128).

Smith made modest gains in his landholdings thanks to his proprietary rights. He took up his sixty acres near Beuet's Brow on both sides of Moshoset River 24 July 1658 (ERP II:18). In the division of land on the east side of the Seven Mile line, 19 February 1665, he drew lot #25 (ERP III:72). Arthur Fenner laid out one lot to Christopher Smith 24 May 1673 (ERP III:245) and Smith drew lots #39 and #13 in the divisions of 1675 (ERP IV:46-7). He drew lot #31 in the division of 1683/4, presumably a lot drawn in his right, as he had been deceased for 7 years at this point (ERP IV:65).

Smith sold twenty acres of upland to Astin Thomas 21 August 1668, signing the deed, while his wife, Alice, made her mark (ERP XX:265-7). But three years later when he sold a triangle of land to Thomas Olney Jr. 13 March 1671, he made his mark to the deed (ERP V:326-8). When he sold his first share of meadow to Shadrach Manton 28 November 1672, he again signed the deed, while Alice, his wife, made her mark (ERP IV:15-6).

Like many of his neighbors, Christopher Smith made exchanges of land drawn in his right; a five acre lot 10 April 1674 and a share of meadow and paid his change money (ERP IV:12). He also exchanged his meadow by Pautucket path for similar land beyond the meadow called Wolds End (ERP II:102).

He was one of those who was invited to attempt the difficult settlement of Resolved Waterman's estate on 9 January 1670/1 (ERP VI:103). Being chosen for this assignment illustrated his neighbors' respect for his judgement, experience, and impartiality.

In the spring of 1676, during an Indian attack on Providence, the house of Christopher Smith was burned to the ground (Correspondence of Roger Williams 2:721). It is likely that he had evacuated to Newport prior to the attack, but he did not long survive the relocation, dying in Newport within a few months. His widow survived him by several years.

While there is no evidence of a probate of his estate, in 1681 his son, Edward, alludes to land freely given him by his father in return for caring for his mother Alice the remainder of her life (ERP XIV:68-9).

The testimony of eight-year-old son John showed that > last Sabbath day within the night his father Thomas Smith came to the river side over against his house and hallowed, whereupon his mother Ruth Smith went out, and his father asked his mother if he might row over, and his mother answered that no one but children had come over and cautioned him not to row. But his father would not stay but went to row over and fell into the water, and his mother went and caught up a stick and he said to her "give me hold of the stick" and he took hold thereof and presently the stick broke and they both fell into the water together. The boy then went to a neighbor for help, saying his father and mother were in the river by the house a drowning (Austin, p.319).

He was a tailor.

Children, surname Smith:

1) John, born circa 1662 (Austin, p.319)
2) Thomas (ibid.)
3) William (ibid.)
4) Joseph, born Providence 18 February 1669 (ibid.)

EDWARD[2] SMITH (Christopher[1]), born probably England circa 1630s; died Providence, RI 8 November 1693 (Providence Probate A57); married Providence 9 May 1663 (PVR, 1:161-3) AMPHILLIS[2] ANGELL, born say 1644, died after 21 October 1694, when she is named in her mother's will (ERP VII:84), daughter of THOMAS[1] and ALICE (ASHTON) ANGELL (see Angell Chapter).

Edward Smith was chosen hayward for the year 1656 (ERP II:95) and was given rights as an inhabitant of Providence 27 August 1656 (ERP II:96). He was also chosen juryman in this year (ERP II:100), showing that he had reached his majority by this date and was well respected in the town. Edward Smith received a homeshare before 24 January 1657 (ERP II:16). Many of these early notices of Edward would imply that he was his father's eldest son, making Benjamin[2]'s identification as a son of Christopher[1] doubtful.

Edward Smith was chosen Town Sergeant in June of 1661 and was paid 20s for his service (ERP III:29). His public service after this date was extensive, including appearances as a juryman through most of the 1660s, as Deputy to the General Court from the mid 1670s into the 1680s and sporadically before and after these dates.

Edward Smith was frequently on the Providence Town Council in the 1670s and 1680s, and as such supervised the settlement of estates and land boundaries. He was one of the four men to meet the men of Pawtuxet to discuss the bounds 24 February 1674/5 (ERP IV:22-3) and was one of the five trustees appointed to settle the difference with Pautuxett in 1682 (ERP VIII:120). He was one of four men to stake out a highway to the free fishing at the Falls (ERP VIII:28) and was one of the men appointed to get the wood to build a bridge over Moshosick River (ERP III:25). He was to view the fences in 1678 (ERP VIII:26). As a member of the Town Council, he opposed the marriage of Abigail Sibley with Thomas Cooper on the grounds that Cooper was already married, 12 July 1683 (ERP VI:110-1).

In his mid-thirties, Edward Smith declared his intention of marriage with Amphillis Angell, 27 April 1663 "it being the first time of their publishing," (ERP III:32) and again 9 May 1663 "It being the second Time of publishing," (ERP III:35). They married later that day. While the Smiths were somewhat more prosperous than the Angells, Amphillis was evidently the eldest Angell daughter, or at least the one to marry first, and had good prospects. Thomas Angell undoubtedly settled a comfortable sum on her at about this time, since she and her sisters received only 2 shillings each in his will.

Edward's family dealings were primarily off the record, but when his sister's child, Josias Wilkinson, died in 1692, Edward Smith was one of the administrators of the estate (ERP 10:1).

Edward Smith was among those who swore allegiance to King Charles II 30 May 1667 (ERP III:102).

Edward Smith was called husbandman when he sold his five acre share which he had received as a twenty-five acre man, to Epenetus Olney, shoemaker, with consent of his wife 8 March 1669/70 (ERP IV:253-6). He deeded three and a half acres of meadow to Richard Evernden 27 January 1672/3 (ERP IV:234). He witnessed the deed of Resolved Waterman to Zachary Rhoads 27 January 1660 [sic] (ERP V:54-5).

Like other men of his generation who received proprietary rights, he drew lot #22 in the 1665 division (ERP III:72), lots #57 and #88 in the 1675 divisions (ERP IV:45-47) and lot #51 in the 1683/4 division (ERP IV:66). He received three acres of land along with others who had given part of their land to Joseph Woodward (ERP VIII:49-50).

In an important deed that shed light on the settlement of his father's estate, Edward Smith sold the right of commonage that had been his father's to Eleazer Whipple in 1681 (ERP VIII:105). This land was given freely to Edward by his father, in return for the promise of keeping his mother during her natural life (ERP XIV:68-9).

His death appears to have been quite sudden and unexpected, for he was serving as Magistrate for Providence the year he died, aged probably in his sixties (ERP X:8).

His widow, Amphillis, brought her husband's inventory to the Town Council 9 January 1693/4 (ERP X:12).

EDWARD[3] SMITH (Edward[2], Christopher[1]), born Providence, RI circa late 1660s, adult 1688 (ERP XVII:129); died Providence 9 November 1726 (Providence Probate A280); married by 1700 MERCY[3] MOWRY, born Providence say 1680, survived her husband, daughter of NATHANIEL[2] and JOANNA (INMAN) MOWRY (see Mowry Chapter).

She married second Smithfield Monthly Meeting 26 November 1741 (SMM 1:22) WILLIAM HALL of North Kingston. He was perhaps married first to Sarah _____ and had children in North Kingston.

As the eldest son of Edward[2] Smith, who died intestate, he inherited his father's lands, but deeded 62 acres to his brother, Joseph, knowing that their father had intended it. He also deeded 50 acres to his brother, Christopher the same year (1703) and deeded 150 acres to his brother Benjamin with house, etc., knowing that it had been his father's intention (Providence Deeds 3:187, 7:83, ERP V:149-52).

Edward's public presence was fairly limited, but he had considerable involvement in the probate matters. He was guardian to the heir of Noah Whipple in 1703 (ERP X:75) and also appraised that estate the same year (ERP VI:238). In 1716/7 he was among those serving on the inquest into the death of Samuel Wright, "he being an aged man it Pleased God to Take his Life away" (ERP IX:21). He witnessed the decision of the Town Council in administering the estate of Arthur Fenner (ERP VI:234-6). He took the inventory of his uncle John Angell of Providence 12 September 1720 (Providence Will Book 2:160-3) and of Seth Whipple 7 December 1724 (Providence Will Book 2:356-8). Smith appraised the farm of Andrew Harris 14 March 1725/6 (Providence Will Book 2:449).

A stranger, one George Walker, came to Providence and lived for a time in the house of Edward Smith. He died 26 November 1713 and Smith presented his will and inventory, amounting to £14, to the Town Council 28 December 1713. The will, dated 24 November 1713, left bequests to Mercy, wife of Edward Smith (£5), to Joseph, son of Edward Smith, deceased (£5), Abigail Ownes, servant maid to Edward Smith (20s), Elizabeth Tripp, wife of James of Dartmouth, and to George Walker's siblings in Saalby, parish of Decar in Cumberland, old England. He named Edward Smith and Joseph Mowry his executors (ERP VII:159-62).

Edward Smith received the legacy left by Nathaniel Mowry to his daughter, Mercy Smith, being a share of his household goods and cattle, 5 May 1718 (Providence Will Book 2:80).

Edward Smith served on the Town Council in 1715 (ERP IX:10) but is otherwise unseen in political positions.

Administration of his intestate estate went to his widow Mercy and son Edward on 20 March 1726/7 (Providence Probate A280). His inventory totalled £396.11.0.

SMITH

JOHN[1] SMITH, born say 1600; died Lancaster, MA 16 July 1669 (LVR p.13); married MARY _____, born say 1600; died Lancaster 27 December 1659 (LVR p.12).

John's family were not the ones to come to America in the Planter, as frequently stated, nor did he have a first wife, Alice (TAG 61[1985]:24-5). They resided in Sudbury, MA prior to the 1647 marriage of their two sons. John Smith took the oath of fidelity there after 9 July 1645. He was delinquent in paying his highway rate 5 January 1651/2 (Sudbury records, p.109).

Shortly before 1653, we see that John Smith moved from Sudbury, by the following entry in the town records: "old Goodman Smith was released by the towne from all that he owed for highway worke levyed upon him in the tyme he lyved in Sudbury (Sudbury records, p. 118).

John subscribed to the Lancaster rules 15 1mo 1653 (Annals of Lancaster, p.30) and received a 20 acre lot, #8 (ibid., p.34). His estate was worth a modest £58.19.0 and when the meadow lots were laid out in 1654, he received #24 (ibid., pp.39-40). He was a townsman in 1654 (ibid., p.41) and received lot #19 in the second division in 1659 (ibid., p.71).

On 31 October 1660, less than a year after his wife's death, John deeded 20 acres in Lancaster to his son-in-law, John Moore, as a marriage portion for his daughter (Middlesex Deed 3:378).

On 18 March 1663, John sold his dwelling house and land in Lancaster where he had lately lived, to Adam Waters (Middlesex Deed 3:342).

On 12 April 1665 he deeded his remaining Lancaster lands to John Moore, for the care and kindness he had received from him, saying, "Now in my old age I being old and infirme, and not able to improve land, nor to maintayn myself by my labours nor to pay publique charges for my land..." (Middlesex Deed 3:379).

John Smith wrote his will about four years before his death:

> These presents testifie & declare unto all Christian People that I John Smith of lancaster in the County of Middlesex in New England, Planter, being sicke & weake in body but of good & perfect memory by this my last will & testament comitt & comend my soul to almighty God

RICHARD[2] SMITH (John[1]), born circa 1621; died before 6 June 1682; married first Sudbury, MA 6 October 1647 (SVR p.269) MARY[2] KERLEY, died Lancaster 27 May 1654 (LVR p.12), daughter of WILLIAM[1] and ANN (____) KERLEY; married second Boston by Governor Bellingham 2 August 1654 JOANNA QUARLES, who survived him. Richard's sister Alice was residing in Boston at the time of this second marriage, providing a possible occasion for Richard and Joanna to meet.

The parentage of Joanna Quarles has never been established. She is called a widow in the record of her marriage in Lancaster, but not in the original record in Boston. The celebrated poet Francis Quarles married 18 May 1618 St. Andrews Holborn, London (parish register) Ursula Woodgate, and had, among his large family of children, a daughter Joanna, baptized Roxwell, co. Essex 17 June 1633 (parish register).

Unfortunately, Francis died in 1644 and was buried at St. Olave Silver Street, London, intestate, and no further trace of his children is found, with the exception of his famous son John, also a poet. Francis' brother Sir Robert Quarles had a grandson who came to Massachusetts some time after the Smith-Quarles marriage, but no link is seen between Joanna and her would-be cousin. Quite a number of clues may be found in the Daisy Quarles manuscript at the NEHGS, but solid evidence for the identity of Richard Smith's second wife is still lacking.

Like his father, Richard took the oath of fidelity at Sudbury after 1645 and was delinquent in paying the Sudbury highway rate in 1651.

After moving to Lancaster, he was witness to some events relating to the slander case between Elizabeth Hall and Lt. George Whaley, as seen in the following deposition which he supported:

> 1651 Declaration of Elizabeth the wife of John Hall of Nashaway against George Whaley of Cambridge. [torn] Sheweth unto this honored Court that about foure moneths since George [Whaley] Steven Day & Samuell Rayner of Cambridge were at Nashaway and [torn] the house of John Prescott there fell out a discourse betweene John Prescott & Steven Day in w^{ch} discourse John Prescott did speake against John & his wife Steven Day did vindicate the cause of Goodwife Hall in her absence against John Prescott till at length George Whaley bade Steven Day that he should not goe about to justify the woman for Whaley [torn] that when Sr Phillips came from Nashaway he came into the buttery at the College in Cambridge where the said George Whaley demanded of Sr. Phillips how all their friends at Nashaway did, to w^{ch} Sr Phillips answered they were all well. Mr Whaley further demanded how he liked the place, he answered very well. It is a desirable place as any was in the country as he conceaved. Mr Whaley further asked how he liked the people, he answered he liked them very well only there were some that held this opinion, that all things were common & said he came one morninge to goodwife halls house & as soon as he was come goodwife hall demanded of him whether all things were not common now as in the apostles tyme, & before that Sr. Phillips could give answer she did further say that this is my judgment, that all things are common, mens wives alsoe, at w^{ch} speech Steven Day was much troubled and grieved & had not one word more to say, & in the morning after, the said Day & Reynor [went] to goodwife halls house & being sad at the report he there expressed his greife in these words. I feare there is an [illegible] amongst you, I wish he may be found out, to w^{ch} goodwyfe hall answered if any of them gave any thinge against me if they will tell mee of it I will give them satisfaction, Steven Day said he was glad to heare it for out of thy owne mouthe they will judge thee, for thus Mr Whaley [says] that Sr Phillips hath reported of thee as is before expressed goodwife hall denyed that ever she spake any such thinge, nor did she hold any such opinion, hereupon Steven Day demanded of Samuel Rayner whether Mr Whaley did not speake as he had then related, to w^{ch} Samuel Rayner answered yt was soe & he would take his oath of it. This relation of Steven Day in goodwife halls house & Samuell Rayners [relation] of it was in goodwife halls house Richard Smith present. Goodwife hall much greived at it that such a scandall should be raysed against her, knowinge herself free & cleare, desired to speake with Mr Whaley & on the next day after, in the morninge did take Richard Smith and Lawrence Waters with her w^{ch} sd Smith & Waters cominge to Mr Whaley desiringe to speake wth him he bade them take heed how they did speake anything for the woman, yet promised to speake wth her after breakfast at w^{ch} tyme Steven Day, Richard Smith & Lawrence Waters & goodwife hall came to Mr Whaley; goodwife hall demanded of Mr Whaley what he had against her Whaley answered that Sr Phillips in the buttery at the College had spoken as before expressed, only he did then leave out - mens wives. this testified Richard Smith Lawrence Waters & Steven Day

(Annals of Lancaster, pp.17-19)

This court suit was never brought for judgment and Elizabeth Hall soon returned to England, selling her estate to Richard Smith (ibid.).

With his father and brother-in-law, he subscribed to the Lancaster town rules 15 1mo 1653 (Annals of Lancaster, p.30) and later that year signed an agreement as an inhabitant of Lancaster to give 80 acres of land to John Prescott in return for Prescott building a corn mill (ibid., p.32).

He sold both his lot #7 and his intervale lot #3 to William Kerly (Annals of Lancaster, pp. 34-35), but was still in town to sign a petition for Lancaster to become a township, which was answered in the affirmative

10 May 1654 (ibid., pp.37-8). His estate was worth the considerable sum of £313.13.10 in 1657 when he drew lot #16 (ibid., p.40). That same year, land abutting his became the town common (ibid., p.41).

Shortly thereafter, he moved to Lyme, Connecticut and participated, however briefly, in the notorious riot between men of Lyme and men of New London over the right to mow grass. Several deponents regarding this fight said that while the constable of Lyme was apprehending Clement Minor, John Baldwin struck one of them with a cudgel, and others of New London struck blows, one of whom with a great pitchfork struck down Richard Smith for dead. We assume that this was Richard Smith Sr., since his son of that name was just approaching his majority (Connecticut Court Records I:123, 25 February 1671). The blow was not truly fatal, since Richard Sr. survived at least ten years after this date.

Richard Smith deeded land to Wolston Brockway in March, 1669 (Lyme Deed 1:25). Joanna joined him releasing her dower in a deed dated November 1674, signing her name (ibid., 1:63). Alone, Richard Smith deeded to his son, Richard on 30 August 1677 (ibid., 1:70).

Mr. Richard Smith of Lyme exhibited the inventory of Hugh Roland, his insolvent son-in-law, at the New London County Court 6 June 1678 (NL Co Ct of Trials 3:107).

Smith sued Wolston Brockway over a fence 7 June 1681 (NL Co Ct of Trials 3:162).

The will of a Richard Smith is mentioned in the New London County Court records under date of 6 June 1682, the widow appearing as executrix, but the will is not recorded. It is alluded to in the Lyme, CT deeds when lands are given to two grandsons of Richard Smith, i.e., Richard and Henry Roland, in keeping with the terms of the will of their grandfather (NL Co Ct 4:21; Lyme Deed 2:184).

Gravestone of Samuel Smith

Although no marriage record has been found for this couple, Samuel and Mary do make a number of deeds quitclaiming rights in her father's lands, which prove both the marriage and Mary's identity. In the first of these deeds, on 18 June 1719 Samuel and Mary join Mary's sisters, Elizabeth Marvin and Sarah Lay in quit claiming interest in land of John Marvin, deceased, to their mother, widow Sarah Marvin of Lyme. Sarah's husband, John Lay, joins in the deed, and Elizabeth Marvin, who was under age at the time the deed was originally written, amended it three years later, having reached lawful age (Lyme Deed 3:228).

Samuel received thirty acres in Lyme from his father on 12 January 1725/6 (Lyme Deed 4:161). With his brother, Quarles, Samuel bought the rights to his deceased brother Joseph Smith's lands from their siblings on 27 January 1734/5 (Lyme Deed 5:27).

Near the end of Samuel's life, the couple again joined with Mary's siblings, Joseph, Benjamin, Mehetable, Reynold, Sarah, Elizabeth and Jemimah, all of Lyme, in deeding their rights to land of their father John Marvin, deceased, to their eldest brother, John Marvin (Lyme Deed 5:136, dated 13 June 1733). With Joseph Marvin, the couple deeded an interest in 29 acres of land in Lyme to Benjamin Marvin for £13 on 22 October 1734 (Lyme Deed 6:242).

STRICKLAND

PETER[1] STRICKLAND, born circa 1646 (EQC 4:293); died probably New London, CT between 23 February 1718/9 when he wrote his will and 7 April 1723 when it was proved (NL Probate #5201); married by 1675 ELIZABETH[2] COMSTOCK, born circa 1656 (calculated from age at death); died New London, CT 9 May 1734 "Old Ms Strickland died before day She was aged 78 years" (Hempstead Diary, p.273), daughter of DANIEL and PALTIAH (ELDERKIN) COMSTOCK.

This surname is seen in a number of variations, including "Stickland," "Stickling," "Strickling" and "Sticklin." Despite the presence of several early immigrants to the colonies of this surname, no convincing connection to any of them has been demonstrated for this Peter.

In his first appearance, Peter Strickland is fined in Essex Quarterly Court for running away from his master, Thomas Putnam, in June of 1664. Jonathan Pickering promised to pay his fine (EQC 10:14).

Having reached adulthood, Peter "Stickland," appeared in this court again, aged 24 years, and deposed in the Essex Quarterly Court, that he was sitting by the fire at Ephraim Fellows' the last Saturday and the latter spit black blood (EQC 4:293, November 1670 Term). Ephraim Fellows was of Ipswich, MA and had a first wife, Mary, whose surname is unknown. Mary died in 1671, shortly after which Peter Strickland is seen to have moved to Connecticut. No relationship is stated between Strickland and Fellows, but at least we know that they shared Fellows' fire one Saturday in 1670.

Peter Strickland's origins are unclear. There is some thought that he could be the Peter Strickland of Flushing, NY who is called the brother-in-law of Cornelius Johnson Berrien of Newtown, Long Island, or that he was the son of Edward Strickland (see TAG 21:85). Given his early history as a servant in Essex County, MA, the connection to Edward Strickland in particular, seems unlikely.

Our Peter Strickland may be more closely allied to the Connecticut family of Thwaite Strickland, and others, who were in the orbit of Gregory Wolterton, or this may be a geographical coincidence.

In August of 1671, a group of men from Lyme, CT, decided to mow at Black Point, on land which was in controversy between Lyme and neighboring New London, CT. The mowers were challenged by a company of men from New London, whereupon the constable of Lyme delivered a warrant to be read aloud. Tempers flared and Peter Strickland's role was the subject of the following deposition:

> Testimony of Woolston Brockway
> This deponent witnesseth that as the constable of Lyme was apprehending Clement Minor at black point, Peter Stickling of New london as wee are informed hee is Called came amongst the company with his sithe, and being desired by Woolstan Brockway to Lay down his Sythe Least he should do some mischeife with it: the said Stickling answered 's wounds I will run it in to your heart lifting up his sythe as if he would have cut him down: but Woolstan clapt in upon him and prevented him: who notwithstanding gather'd up his sythe close to Woolstan greatly endangering the cutting of his neck and body untill it was wrenched out of his hands.
> Deposed March 1671/2 (Connecticut Archives, Towns & Lands, I:114)

No action was taken against Strickland for his feisty treatment of Brockway and the meadow controversy was settled without additional bloodshed.

Nathaniel Royce, late of New London, deeded to Peter Strickland his share of his father, Robert Royse's land and two acres of upland with the barn, house, fencing and orchard around it on 1 March 1678 (NL Deed 5:42). In New London, on 18 December 1679, Peter Strickland was granted three acres of land adjoining his own land that he purchased of Nathaniel Royse (NL Deed 5:15). Peter Strickland purchased from the same man half a parcel of meadow, being two acres, on 24 March 1681 (ibid., 5:93). Among his other New London deed entries is a survey and appraisal of land in New London (ibid., vol. 6, pt. 2, pp. 250,360).

Brothers-in-law Samuel Young and Thomas Halliox of Southold, Long Island, ordered their mother Paltiah Comstock to pay "our patrimony to our brother Peter Strickland" (Comstock genealogy, p.3). Peter made a receipt for his brother-in-law Daniel Comstock, administrator of his father Daniel Comstock's estate, for £12 17 December 1697 (NL Deed 4:100).

After the death of Peter Strickland, his widow was taken into the church at New London 12 July 1724 (Hempstead Diary, p.145). Hempstead mentions that he "endeavors to see that the widow Strickland will be well taken care of by her sons" 18 June 1731 (Hempstead Diary, p.236).

WALLER

THOMAS WALLER, known only from his son, Mathew's, baptism, but died before 1657 (Winthrop's Medical Journal, 1:63), married circa 1600-1605 SARAH[1] WOLTERTON, baptized Heigham, co. Norfolk, England October 1582 (parish register which roughly agrees with the calculated date from, "Waller the widow 74 years at G: Wooltertons she is his Sister & Mathew Wallers mother," Winthrop's Medical Journals, 2 December 1657, 1:63); living 1 January 1658 (Winthrop's Medical Journals, 1:78), daughter of RICHARD[A] and MARY (BENSLEY) WOLTERTON (see Wolterton Chapter).

Since the surname Waller is seen very frequently throughout England, it has not been easy to follow the movements of this family. It is likely that Thomas Waller was one of the substantial members of the cloth working guilds so strong in early 17th-century Norwich, or perhaps from the yeomanry in surrounding Norfolkshire, who supplied the clothworkers with wool and other raw materials.

At some point the family lived in London, since their son, Matthew's baptism is recorded in 1617 at St. Andrew Holborn, London (parish register). Their daughter, Bridget, married in London in the parish of St. Giles Cripplegate in 1629, and a probable son, Richard, married at St. Giles two years previously.

Daughter Bridget (Waller) Brockway returned to Norwich by 1634 when her son, Richard Brockway, was baptized (St. Michael at Plea parish register).

Son Matthew Waller appears with two persons in his family in Salem, MA in 1637, and perhaps was there some short time prior to this date (Perley, 1:461). It is not known whether the second person was his brother, William, or his wife Sarah, since William is not seen until a 1641/2 court case (EQC 1:31) and Matthew's date of marriage is unknown. Matthew proceeded on to Providence, RI, where he was a late member of the group of twenty-five acre men, the first of whom signed the agreement 19 11mo 1645, and where his rights were still being observed as late as the divisions of 1706 (ERP IX:19). Matthew moved on to Lyme, CT where he died.

With children scattered on both sides of the Atlantic, the whereabouts of Thomas and Sarah Waller cannot be accurately predicted. It is possible that they returned to the Norwich area, where Thomas died. It may be daughter Bridget who remarries at St. Katherine by the Tower, London in 1641, making an argument for her parents remaining in London. Grandson Wolston Brockway, Bridget's son, first appears in the colonies 3 December 1659 when he purchases a house and land in Lyme from John Reynolds. Likely he came some time before this date, perhaps in the company of his grandmother.

In any event, we assume that following Thomas' death, the widow Sarah Waller went to the colonies. In 1657, John Winthrop saw her at her brother, Gregory Wolterton's house, and doubtless she died there circa 1658, in her mid-seventies.

A Sarah Waller joined the Salem church in 1648 (Savage, 4:399). It is possible that this latter entry is Sarah (Wolterton) Waller, but more likely it is her son Matthew's wife.

Children, surname WALLER:

i. RICHARD[2], born say 1605; married Saint Giles Without Cripplegate, London 25 July 1627 (parish register) ANNE CARTWRIGHT.

ii. BRIDGET, born circa 1609; married first Saint Giles Without Cripplegate, London 28 January 1628/9 (parish register) WILLIAM BROCKWAY; probably married second St. Katherine by the Tower, London 19 June 1641 (parish register) JOHN MANNINGE.

Children, surname Brockway:

1) Richard, baptised Saint Michael At Plea, Norwich, Norfolk 7 November 1634 (parish register)
2) John, named in his great-uncle Wolterton's will, 1645
3) Wolstone, born circa 1637 (deposed 10 July 1714 age 70 years or thereabouts), died Lyme, CT circa November 1717, when his son Richard administers his estate, named in Gregory Wolterton's will. Tradition erroneously states that he was born on Silver Street, London, son of Samuel Brockway (Brockway Records, Florence M. Brockway, Dorchester, 1949, p.11)

iii. MATTHEW, baptized St. Andrew Holborn, London 18 September 1617 (parish register); died New London 26 May 1680 "Matthew Waller aged about 63, dyed very suddainly, none at yt time in ye room wth him. He was well a few minutes before." (Bradstreet's Journal, Register 9[1855]:50); married perhaps Providence, RI circa 1643 SARAH _____, living 9 June 1681 (NL Co Ct 3:130).

Children, surname Waller:

1) Rebecca, adult 23 April 1671 (baptism NLCh, 1:83), deserted by her husband William Collins, he having absented himself from his wife for 8 years and not been heard from, divorce granted 25 May 1685 (CT Archives III:47), named in Gregory Wolterton's will
2) Sarah, born circa 1646 (11 years old 5 June 1657, Winthrop's Medical Journal 1:379, and "Sarah Waller was Buried Died with a cancer on Thursday [26th]. She was an old Maid about 60 or 70 years Daughter of Matthew Waller one of ye first Settlers in this Town" Hempstead Diary, dated 28 March 1719, p. 86)

\+ iv. WILLIAM, born say late 1610s

Lieut. WILLIAM[2] WALLER, born say late 1610s; died between 4 May and 17 July 1674 (date of earmark, Lyme records, and date of uncle's will calling him deceased); married circa 1651 ELIZABETH[2] MARVIN, baptized Great Bentley, co. Essex, England 29 April 1627; died Lyme, CT 19 November 1679 "widow waler died wensday the .19. shee was buried saterday the 22" (Minor diary, p.157), daughter of REYNOLD[1] and MARIE (_____) MARVIN.

The earliest appearances of the name Waller in New England are in Salem, MA in 1637. On 23 January 1636/7 Matthew Waller was received for an inhabitant, a certificate being received from Mr. Atherton Hough of Boston, MA (Perley, 1:419). Hough was from Lincolnshire, England, where he had been mayor of Boston, and where the Waller name is not unknown.

One William Waller sued William Pester at the January 1641/2 session of the Essex Quarterly Court, but the cause and outcome are unknown (EQC 1:31). Mr. Nicholas Shapleigh paid William Waller a bond; discharged to Mr. William Pester (EQC 1:47) at the December 1642 court.

Despite his relative youth, William Waller filled several responsible positions during his short stay in Essex County. He was on an Essex County jury of inquest which examined the body of Ralph Elwood, who was found dead, a list of jurors appearing in the papers of the August 1644 court (EQC 1:71). William Waller was a witness in the case presenting John Luffe of Salem and his wife for living apart at the February 1648/9 court (EQC 1:158).

Unlike his brother Matthew, William Waller does not appear in the Rhode Island records and did not receive a homelot in Providence. After residing for some time in Essex County, he moved before 1651 to "Seabrook," CT, since shortly after this date he was seen in the Connecticut courts. At this time he met and married Elizabeth Marvin, whose family was settled in Connecticut.

William Waller was successfully sued in the Connecticut Particular Court 7 September 1652 by John Clarke for failing to return a pair of cartwheels. Waller had to pay 2s 4d and costs of court, and was ordered to make good his "promise in making the wheeles." (Particular Court, p.111). At that same session, we see that "William Waller undertakes to pay his Sisters fyne" (ibid., p.112). This appears to refer to Abigail Marvin, William's sister-in-law, who was fined 40s for keeping company and drinking excessively (ibid.).

At the General Court 11 March 1657/8, William Waller was required to make satisfaction for those appointed by the Townsmen of "Seabrook" (soon to be Lyme) to levy the rate for Mr. Fitches' maintenance (Colonial Records of Connecticut).

William Waller "produced Authority to prosecute ye action of Richrd Hartley contr Math Beckwith" at the 15 May 1660 session of the Particular Court (Particular Court, p.211).

Goodman Elderkin and Goodman Waller were to repair the turret of the meetinghouse and to be paid by the town of New London (Moderator's book, 1 December 1661).

William Waller was named executor of Reynold Marvin's will, proved 9 July 1663, and was to be paid 20s for his trouble (Manwaring 1:220). Samuel Collins sued Waller over goods and cattle not delivered from the estate to his wife, daughter of Reynold Marvin (ibid.).

Waller and others were ordered by the Court to survey the western bounds of New London 8 October 1663. Several months later, the Court ordered that New London should pay Ensign Waller for laying out the bound of New London and for two voyages (Colonial Records of Connecticut).

When the Lyme meeting house was first staked out, the bounds impinged on the land of Wolstone Brockway. "Uncle Wm Waler" went to him and informed him of this, and Brockway had the stakes moved. Wolstone Brockway Sr. of Lyme deposed about this 10 May 1686 (Connecticut Archives, Ecclesiastical series 1, 1:83).

William Parker sued William Waller for not performing an agreement about a mare, 7 June 1660 (Particular Court, p.215). Waller lost this case, also (ibid., p.216), but brought it back for review 14 May 1661 (ibid., p.233). Their differences became quite heated for they returned to court 5 December 1661, Parker suing Waller for damage in the review, unjust molestation and slander (ibid., p.242).

William Waller served first as an Ensign for "Seabrook" 3 October 1661 and was promoted as Lieutenant of the train band for Lyme 12 October 1671. He served as a deputy to the General Court 11 May 1665 and 11 October 1666, and made a rate list for Lyme with Matthew Griswold on the east side of the Great River.

William Waller entered an action of complaint on behalf of Wolston Brockway and his wife against Mathew Griswold at the 31 May 1664 New London Court of Assistants (Court of Assistants, p.29). Griswold had stated that Brockway and his wife were liars.

With Reynold Marvin, Waller took the inventory of the estate of Tobiah Colles 2 September 1664. Waller had received 2s in said will (Manwaring 1:188).

Elizabeth (Marvin) Waller makes a brief but tragic appearance in Winthrop's Medical Journals when she brings news of the languishing of her son "John," age six years, for whom Winthrop prescribes several medicines, carried back by the mother, who found that her child had already died (Winthrop's Medical Journal, 2:597). Winthrop may err in the name of the child, whom he did not see.

Winthrop notes that William Waller had jaundice 18 August 1668 (Winthrop's Medical Journal, 2:840) and that he saw Elizabeth Waller, wife of William Waller at Saybrook, at the same time (ibid.).

In the notorious riot over the mowing of land between the settlers of Lyme and of New London, William Waller played a violent part, as seen in the following depositions,

> William Douglas Jr. age about 25 and Richard Dart age about 33 and Hugh Mould age about 33 deposed that Ensigne William Waller strike with vilence att Ensigne Clement myners Load two blowes the First hee mised his Blow & the second Ensign miner Fended ofe with his sith. William Dowglas Junres saith further that Ensigne William Waller was the first person that he saw strike the first blowes Ensigne William Waller accknowledged that he did strike at Ensigne Clement Myner
>
> Manasas Miner testified to all that is above written...& that he heard Ensine Waller say after the broyll was over that hee would have given somthing that his pick had been six inches longer for then he would have layd Clement miner forth
> (Connecticut Court Records I:121-125a, 26 February 1671/2)

William Waller Sr. recorded his ear mark in Lyme 4 May 1674, but must have died very shortly thereafter, for he is called "William Waller deceased" in the 17 July 1674 will of his uncle Gregory Wolterton (Manwaring, I:259-260). Widow Elizabeth attempted to break the Wolterton will (see Wolterton Chapter).

Elizabeth Waller, the relict of William Waller deceased and administratrix of his estate sued Robert Perringo and Edward DeWolfe, representatives of the town of Lyme, for their neglect or refusal to perform articles of agreement made by the town with William Waller, not making good a grant of the said town 13 March 1676. She won one hundred and twenty acres of land according to covenant and also the meadow mentioned in the grant, along with costs of court 17 September 1678 (NL Co Ct 3:113).

The town sued back for breach of covenant respecting a gristmill, and the court finally decided to pick a third person to settle the matter, allowing the two parties to pay the costs accordingly (NL Co Ct 3:113; 126, 3 June 1679).

William Waller appeared in the New London County Court of Trials 24 September 1680 and swore to the inventory of the insolvent estate of his mother, Elizabeth (NL Co Ct 3:153). William and John Waller were appointed administrators of her estate (ibid., 4:9).

Children, surname WALLER:

i. WILLIAM[3], born circa 1652 (age 9 on 21 May 1661, Winthrop's Medical Journal, 1:423); died circa 1682; married Lyme say 1675 MARY[2] TINKER, born Boston, MA 2 July 1653, died after 1700, daughter of John[1] and Alice (Smith) Tinker.

Mary probably married second 26 October 1685 her cousin John Smith, son of Richard and Joanna (Quarles) Smith.

Children, surname Waller:

1) Elizabeth, born circa 1676
2) Mary, born spring of 1679 (Lyme records, 2:182)
3) Alice, born circa 1681

ii. JOHN, born circa 1654 (age 7 on 21 May 1661, Winthrop's Medical Journal, 1:423); died before 9 February 1685/6 when his widow brought his inventory to court (NL Co Ct 4:133); married Lyme, CT 28 December 1678 (LVR, p.269) MARY DURANT, born circa 1668, living 29 August 1712, daughter of George Durant and schoolmistress to young children and girls in the town of Lyme as seen in the Lyme Town records.

Mary married second after 1685 SAMUEL[2] SHEATHER, born Guilford, CT 3 11mo 1657 (GVR A:60), died before 1694 (wife's remarriage), son of John[1] and Susan (_____) Sheather; married third as his second wife ROBERT[2] CHAPMAN, born September 1646, died at court at Hartford, CT November 1711 (Chapman genealogy, p.69), son of Robert[1] and Ann (Bliss) Chapman.

Robert Chapman had married first 27 July 1671 Sarah Griswold, and had with her children, surname Chapman: Samuel, Robert, Sarah, Francis, Dorcas, Stephen, a son, Sarah, and a son.

With Samuel Sheather she had children, surname Sheather: Mary, born Killingworth 17 September 1689 (KVR 1:77); Deborah, born 12 February 1691[/2] (Register, 59[1905]:45) and with Robert Chapman, she had children, surname Chapman: Benjamin, born 1 March 1695[/6] (Chapman genealogy, pp.69-70), Mehetable, born 15 May 1697 (ibid.), Stephen, born 5 March 1699[/1700] (ibid.), Abigail, born 20 March 1701[/2] (ibid.)

Child, surname Waller:

1) John, born Lyme 11 November 1679 (LVR, p.269)

iii. ELIZABETH, born circa 1656 (age 5 on 21 May 1661, Winthrop's Medical Journal, 1:423); likely died between Winthrop's visit in 1661 and before 1674 when Gregory Wolterton does not mention her in his will.

\+ iv. SAMUEL, born circa 1658 (age 3 on 21 May 1661, Winthrop's Medical Journal, 1:423)

v. JOHN, born circa 1659 (calculated from age below); perhaps incorrectly named in Winthrop's Medical Journal since he had an older brother of the same name living and Winthrop never saw the child

Waller John 6 y: son of William at Saybrooke is now at William Gutredge at Wethersfield his mother saith he lian dying divers Daies that they know not whether he will live till night...ye child was dead before ye things came hither his mother carried them but it died before she returned to it (Winthrop's Medical Journal 1:597); died Wethersfield, CT June 1665 (ibid.).

vi. MATTHEW, born circa 1660 (age 1½ on 21 May 1661, Winthrop's Medical Journal, 1:423); died shortly after 13 February 1715/6 (date of will, NL Probate #5509); married SARAH _____, living 8 May 1716 (presented husband's inventory, ibid.). No surviving children seen, but he leaves all to loving "cousin" John Edwards, who may provide a clue to Sarah's identity since Edwards is not a known Waller connection.

SAMUEL[3] WALLER, born New London, CT circa 1658 (calculated from age at fourth marriage, Hempstead Diary, p.264); died New London 9 February 1741/2

> my uncle Samll Waller Died of I know not what Distemper, being very aged & had Several weeks Illness: his 3d wife my Aunt by home he had only 2 Daughters. the first was Elizabeth the wife of Jonathan Beckwith & the Second the wife of John Keeny, her first Husband was Abel Moor the first of yt name here. my Aunt was born in april 1652. She was a few years Elder yn uncle Waller (Hempstead Diary, p.389);

married first circa 1679 a woman whose name is unseen, but regarding this marriage and the birth of their first child Samuel Waller is fined ten shillings for not "recording his marriage and child according to law" (NL Co Ct, 4:22, 6 June 1682); married second New London 26 December 1685 (NLVR 1:68) MARY DANIELS; married third circa 1690 HANNAH[2] (HEMPSTEAD) MOORE, born New London 11 April 1652 (Manwaring 1:126), died New London 26 April 1729

> Aunt Waller died about one of the Clock Sick but one day Aged 77 years. She was my Grandfather Hempsteds youngest daughter & Child & Born here near this house in an old one in April 1652 (Hempstead Diary, p.209), daughter of ROBERT[1] and JOAN (_____) HEMPSTEAD and widow of Abel Moore (see Hempstead Chapter); married fourth published New London 23 September 1733 "uncle Samll Waller aged about 78 & the Widow Abigail Shipman published" (Hempstead Diary entry dated 23 September 1733, p.264) ABIGAIL (_____) SHIPMAN, died New London 6 February 1738/9 "my old uncle Wallers wife Died on Tuesday Last & buried Wednsd" (Hempstead Diary entry dated Thursday, 8 February 1738/9, p.346).

Samuel was quite young when his parents died just five years apart, and coming fully into his inheritance allowed him to marry quickly when he reached his majority. The inheritance did not proceed smoothly, however, for in the course of closing the estate of his mother, Samuel's brother John Waller and Mr. William Ely, sued Samuel for pretending to be the owner of certain lands belonging to the estate and selling them (NL Co Ct 4:28, 19 September 1682). The case was postponed and never taken up again. Persumably they settled the matter themselves.

The young couple had a very short marriage and produced only one child before Samuel's first wife died. His second wife, Mary, also died after only a few years and only one child. His third wife, whom he married when he was in his early thirties, was the widow of a neighbor and the aunt of the diarist Joshua Hempstead. She was somewhat older than he, yet she still bore two daughters with him before the end of her childbearing years.

Hannah, Samuel's third wife, was admitted to the First Church of Christ at New London in June 1695/6 (NL First Church records 1:7), and Samuel followed 6 July 1701 (ibid., 1:8). Thanks to her relationship to Joshua Hempstead, there are several mentions of the family in his diary. Hempstead notes that he "went to Aunt Wallers & fetched 2. coverlids yt She wove & Spun" (Hempstead Diary 7 January 1720/1, p.105).

Samuel received a portion of the land laid out to his brother John Waller's estate 21 December 1722 (Lyme Deed 4:82) and received land in his own right that same day (ibid.).

With the comfortable property inherited from his family, Samuel made very few deeds until he prepared to settle on his sons. For love, good will and parental affection he gave to his two sons Samuel Jr. and William five acres in Lyme that had belonged to his brother, Matthew, deceased, and his right in fifty acres in Lyme which he had bought of Aaron Huntley (Lyme Deed 4:71B). Huntley confirmed the deed 21 July 1724 (Lyme Deed 4:73). For natural love and affection, Samuel gave one half part of his right in the Common lands in Lyme and Saybrook to his son Samuel 18 March 1726/7 (NL Deed 10:19b).

Samuel Waller of New London sold to John Colfax one half of one right in common or undivided land in New London 9 January 1732/3 (NL Deed 10:19).

In his last year, Samuel Waller lived with the family of his youngest daughter. Among the items in his son-in-law John Keeney's account was a bill for boarding and nursing him, "hee being verey seeck and childesh."

> In the Name of God Amen I Samuel Waller of New London in the County of New London, and Colony of Connecticut, Being Sick and Weak in Body but of Sound Disposeing Mind and Memory, and knowing the Uncertainty of my time in this world Do for the Settlement of that Estate which it hath pleased God to Bestow upon me Make and Ordain this to be my Last Will and Testement in Manner and form following, Viz - First and Principally I Resign my Soul to God who gave it me Beseaching him to Accept the Same through the Merritts and Mediation of his Son Jesus Christ my Only Saviour and Redeemer, My Body to be Decently Intered by my freinds.--

WAY

Sgt. GEORGE[1] WAY, born England circa 1614 to 1619 (depositions, ERP XV:73 and Massachusetts Archives 38B:73, respectively); died Providence, RI circa 1684; married perhaps Boston before 1651 ELIZABETH _____, born circa 1630, died New London, CT 20 April 1713 "I was at work at home & Ebe making a Coffin for Goodee Way who died this morn" (Hempstead Diary, p.22, dated 20 April 1713), daughter of JOANNA (_____)(_____) SMITH, whose second husband was John Smith.

Considerable confusion exists over the origins of George Way. He must be distinguished from the much older George Way of Dorchester, co. Dorset, who had land in Dorchester, MA, the Pejepscot patent in Maine, and other lands in New England, which he bequeathed to his son Eleazer. It was probably this older George Way who received a share of the Dorchester necklands in 1637 and it is possible that there is a relationship between this older George and the Thomas Way, fisherman, seen on the Isle of Shoals in 1649. The elder George's will of 1641 shows that our George Way was not his son.

A George Way (LND says possibly a boy) was with Thomas Wallen and Richard Seeley when they helped Katherene Warner and Mary Mills run away from their husbands. They were arrested in Barnstable, MA 4 April 1650 and sent east to Winter Harbor from whence they came (LND, p.725).

Our George Way has been described as the son of Henry[1] Way, as the settler of Providence, or as the settler of Saybrook. Actually, there is no proof that he was related in any way to Henry Way of Dorchester, despite the close proximity of the two families (TAG 61[1986]:241-256). Although Savage divides his career and lists him under two separate George Ways, our George was the Boston man with wife Elizabeth, whose daughter Elizabeth was born there 19 March 1651, and who went to Providence soon after. It was his wife who fled to Saybrook to her mother after some twenty years of marriage (Savage, 4:440).

Some insight to George's wish to move to Providence may be found in the following court case. A complaint was brought that men accompanying the Boston constable had used brutal force in arresting a drunk and disorderly Mr. Henderson at a Boston inn in 1652. Several witnesses came forward and claimed that George Way and others had grabbed Henderson by the hair, called him "dogge" and hurled him to the ground. Way's own deposition showed a somewhat different account:

> George Waye aged 33 yeares or thereabouts deposeth and sayth, That about half an hower after eight of the Clock on the last day of the last week at night, this depo[ne]nt comeing forth of John Smyth's house to go hoame to bedd this depo[ne]nt saw one who by his habitt seemed a gentlelike man and Jeremiah Murrill and George Pierce were w[i]th him and he was sweareing twine by God's wounds that he would mak all fly that come neere him whereupon this depo[ne]nt & the sd Jeremiah went to call a constable and left ye sayd George Pearse to see which way he would goe. and when yis depo[ne]nt & ye said Jeremiah were returned w[i]th ye Constable the sd pearse informed them that he was gone in to Evan Thomas house and ye Constable repaireing thither good wife Thomas met ye Constable at the doore who enquired of her for the man that was newly come in and she answered that he was there and willed the Constable to take him and the Constable called for a candle & pr[e]sently there was one brought and he was showed where he was, and then the constable requested him the [to] go w[i]th him, but he sayd he would not whereupon the Constable as he was going up the stayres lay hold on him by ye drawers and comanded this depo[ne]nt george Pearse and the foresaid Jeremiah to lay hold on him & to help the Constable which this depo[ne]nt & the rest did accordingly takeing him very friendly downe of the staires and he did not fall at all and whilst they were with him in the roome below the stairs ere they carryed him away Evan Thomas tend[e]red the Constable to bring him in on the second day on the morneing w[hi]ch the Constable was content w[i]thall, p[ro]vided that he would be quiet and to go to bed and when this depo[ne]nt & the rest had thereupon lett him loose, he pr[e]sently struck the constable twine upon the head w[i]th his fists and soone he took away the Constable's staff from him whereupon the Constable did then commanded this depo[ne]nt & the other two to lay hold on him and to carry him to prison w[hi]ch when this depo[ne]nt did begin to do, he struck this depo[ne]nt upon the face w[hi]ch was there w[i]thall much swelled and being yet out of the door he stroke this depo[ne]nt againe upon his head and threw thother depo[ne]nt George Pierce downe and fell himself upon him and this depo[ne]nt & thother got him off & gott him upon his leggs but he would go no further than the pump but there fell downe uppon his back and this depo[ne]nt & the said Pearse & the said Jeremia[h] w[i]th others carryed him by mayne strength to the prison the Constable carried the candle and the staff > taken upon oath the 27th of the eighth mo 1652
> (Massachusetts Archives 38B:73)

We are not told the eventual outcome of this set of accusations, but we learn three important things from this deposition, one, that George Way was a man of action and perhaps some physical strength, and two, that he may have been somewhat younger than his calculated age has been presented in the past. If he were 33 in 1652, his birth would have been circa 1619, a more likely age for a man married to someone born circa 1630. The third interesting thing is that he says he was leaving John Smith's house to go home to bed when the whole affray began. Perhaps he was doing business with his wife's step-father, John Smith, who had yet to move to New London at this date.

In February 1654/5, George Way petitioned the Providence town council to allow him to become an inhabitant > Providence 1654 the 12 month So Called the request of gorg Waye to this present towne meetin that thay wold bee plesed to grant mee a Comodation to bee a inhabytant with you if you ples not so to doe then that you wold give mee lef to by for my mony granted (ERP XV:70).

He was accepted into the town "after the Manner that John Browne was," 16 February 1661/2 (ERP III:13), and remained there for the last thirty years of his life. Apparently there was little doubt that he would be confirmed as an inhabitant, for on 25 August 1657 he was granted Swan Pond and nearby land (ERP II:107) and he was admitted a freeman 13 May 1658 (RI Col Records I:387), joining with other men of the town in paying for the land at Aquednesett 27 January 1660[/1] (ERP II:139).

We see him frequently in the Providence Town Records, as in the following routine deposition:

> George Way [age | |] about 42 yeares being engadged testefieth yt he rec of Hen. Fowlar for and on the Account of Tho: Pierson one Coate one Cloake & six howes being prized at in all the summ of fivetie & two shillings & more he sayth not taken this first of Decem: 1656 Before me Arthur Fenner Towne Deput. (ERP XV:73).

George Way was granted a small parcel of land that he had enclosed in his orchard 27 January 1660[/1] (ERP II:139).

Although he was allotted considerable amounts of land, he sold much of it rather quickly upon acquiring it. On 9 4mo 1662, George and Elizabeth Way sold one half of all his right of land in Providence to William Harris (ERP IV:95-6).

He was granted liberty to alter the form of his sixteen acres 27 January 1662 [sic] (ERP III:31). This did not satisfy him, and he was allowed to exchange his sixteen acres for other Common land shortly thereafter (ERP III:53). This was still not to his liking, and at the 27 April 1664 town meeting, George Way was allowed to lay down his sixteen acres and a parcel more near Robert Colwell's land and his two ponds with the lands belonging to them near Moshosick River, in trade for some other place on the common where he shall think it convenient (ERP III:53). The exact nature of his dissatisfaction with the various parcels is never alluded to, but other inhabitants of Providence were active in their trades, as well.

He was granted about one and a half acres of swampy land 1 June 1663 (ERP III:36). He sold his three acre lot to Thomas Walling 1 April 1664 (ERP XIV:49-50). He received 30 acres of land 28 April 1664 (ERP III:55-6).

On 31 August 1664, George Way of Providence, husbandman, sold to Thomas Olney Jr., tanner, thirty acres, part upland and part low swampy land, about three miles north of the town in Observation Meadow. To this deed George made his mark and his wife, Elizabeth, signed her name in releasing her dower (ERP III:78-81). He drew lot 10 in the 1665 division on the east side of the Seven Mile Line. On 27 July 1669, George and Elizabeth Way sold to Richard Evernden, yeoman of Providence, half a share of meadow (ERP III:237-8). These transactions left the Ways with an unusually small amount of land. In the later divisions of common land, he drew lot 59 on 12 April 1675 (ERP IV:45); lot 85 on 24 May 1675 (ERP IV:47) and lot 21 on 17 March 1683/4 (ERP IV:65).

Way petitioned the town, saying "I desire that the Town would take Som Care about Fenncing in of oure neck with all speed as may be it being Great damage to the Towne that it is not don before now," 27 January 1670[/1] (ERP XV:125).

George Way was ninth on a list of Providence men who swore allegiance to King Charles II 31 May 1666 (ERP III:101).

George Way's most significant contribution to the early town of Providence was his service as town sergeant. He first filled this position in 1662. The next year he was asked to serve as sergeant in the Providence train band in the absence of John Steere (ERP III:41), which he did, but payment for his work was not quickly forthcoming, and on 3 October 1664 he asked for sixteen acres of land in lieu of two years' wages as town sergeant (ERP III:57-8). The land may have been a generous salary, for his only recorded payment the next year was just 10s for an undisclosed part of his year's wages, 5 June 1665 (ERP III:64). A regular duty of town sergeant was to warn the town meetings, for which he was to be paid 12d for each family in town (ERP III:103). Although few recorded orders pertaining to his activities in this office survive, as town sergeant, George Way was sent to get William Carpenter 27 July 1668, when Carpenter failed to appear at Quarter Court (ERP III:127).

Way must have been effective in the job, for he was almost continuously town sergeant in Providence from 1665 through the 1670s, including one appointment in 1676 when he served in lieu of James Olney who had died (ERP III:200). Since this was during a time of conflict with the Indians, Way may have been passed over in favor of a younger man who was perceived to have better military or command qualities.

Way did not appear on later lists of men who stayed and went not away during the burning of Providence, so he may have taken his wife and last three children out of harm's way, perhaps even to New London, CT, where Elizabeth's mother and step-father lived. Way served as constable of Providence in 1681 when he would have been in his very early sixties (ERP VIII:100).

On 27 November 1671, George Way paid a house rent of 12p for 2 years to John Whipple Sr. (ERP III:204). There is little doubt that he was actually living in this house, since he paid 1s 3d in the £51 rate, one of the lowest amounts in the town (ERP XV:135). George Way paid just 7½d in the £27 rate 1 July 1679 (ERP XV:185) and paid an extremely low rate 16 July 1680 (ERP XV:207). There seems little doubt that despite his in-law's prosperity, George Way's family lived a marginal existence.

George Way could not write and, probably in his capacity as town sergeant, attempted to engage John Whipple Jr. to write a petition to the General Court complaining of William Hawkins Jr. and Mary Pray, wife of Richard, that they not be allowed to keep a house of entertainment or retail strong drink. Whipple did not have time, so advised Way to get Daniel Abbott to write it, which he did, as Whipple deposed 17 October 1674 (ERP XV:143-4).

He was chosen with Richard Pray to see the highways repaired (ERP VIII:30). On 20 November 1678 he reported that he had picked up a stray horse of a chestnut color, a white streak down his forehead, a slit on his left ear, having then a sore on his right shoulder (ERP IX:197).

As town sergeant, he was regularly exposed to legal matters, but it was not until quite late in his life that he was appointed as a juryman. He served as a petty juryman 16 October 1678 (ERP VIII:35) and was sent to represent the town at the Council at Newport 15 November 1679 (ERP XV:198).

His appearances in court as a witness were surprisingly few, particularly given his work as town sergeant. In court he deposed that George Sheppard had agreed to the matter in controversy with Captain Arthur Fenner 5 July 1680 (ERP VIII:79).

In two of his last appearances, a deed from George Sheppard to George Way was signed 26 April 1683 and recorded 27 April 1683 (ERP VIII:129, XV:72-3), and Way sold off all his rights in land beyond the Seven Mile Line 5 August 1683 to Pardon Tillinghast (ERP XX:68-9). As an inhabitant, his rights survived him, however, and land was set off to a quarter of a right of George Way as late as 1706 (ERP IX:19).

From surviving documents, there is no evidence that he ever provided land or portions for his children. On the contrary, he seemed unable to hold onto any material estate, although it is possible that the sword found in son George's inventory in 1717 had once belonged to the town sergeant. The children received some inheritance from their maternal grandmother.

Joanna, mother of Elizabeth, evidently was a widow when she married John[1] Smith of Boston, MA and later, of New London, CT. At the death of her second husband in 1680, Joanna withstood two court challenges by his nephew, Edward Smith, to the terms of John's final will. The original papers of this case are found in the Connecticut State Archives Series 1, Private Controversies 1:254-281 and are summarized here. Depositions were taken from several neighbors and friends, who told how John Smith had always treated Edward Smith as though he were his own son and that he had called for him out of England with the intention of making him his heir. Edward came as a minor and worked diligently with his uncle and fully expected to become his heir at the death of Joanna. Her constant distress at the terms of an earlier will leaving all to Edward at her death, brought John Smith to change his will in his last days, leaving all to Joanna with no provision for Edward.

It was very clear from these depositions that it was Elizabeth, wife of George Way, for whom Joanna fought so hard, because the earlier will would have left nothing to Joanna's children, but the later will would allow Joanna to remember her daughter or not, as she wished.

The hapless nephew, Edward, died in an epidemic, with his wife and eldest son, only a few years after his last unsuccessful challenge and in 1687, Joanna Smith left her estate by will to her own descendants.

Among the depositions taken in the John Smith will controversy, Richard Smith of New London indicated that John Smith said "his wife had been very earnest with him to make one of her daughters children his heir but...he wholly declined it because his wife's daughter was a Quaker and he could not abide the Quakers; and also her husband was a rude and lewd man in his life."

The youngest Way grandchild lived for a time with John and Joanna Smith, and John expressed a wish to leave her a cow, but made no further promise of settlement upon her. By all reports, he was very grieved when little Mehitable died before she reached the age of ten.

Two of the other Way daughters, Alice and Agnes, married men from New London and it is likely that the children and mother, Elizabeth, resided in New London for at least six years after 1675. She evidently refused to return to her Quaker husband in Providence, RI, and the court issued an order for her to do so in 1682, saying:

> Whereas Elizabeth Way hath bene Complained of for absenting her selfe from her husband to his great griefe trouble and Damage in many respects as he Complaines this Court do there fore order the said Elizabeth Way forthwith as opportunity may offer to depart this Towne & to returne home to her husband w[hi]ch if she shall refuse or neglect to doe the authority of this place are ordered & appointed to commit her to prison untill she shall give sufficient caution for her speedy departure (NL Co Ct 4:35).

Forced to return under these circumstances, Elizabeth presumably lived the next two years in Providence with George, until his death in 1684, although Caulkins says that the order of the court was ignored (History of New London, p.252). She was in New London very soon thereafter, for she was complained of for being drunk and on 2 June 1685 was ordered by the New London court to sit in the stocks for two hours (NL Co Ct 4:114).

Elizabeth Way of New London, widow, deeded to son Thomas for £10 that part of the dwelling house where her mother had lived along with the garden and four apple trees, all given her by her late mother, to be enjoyed by Elizabeth during her life, then to revert to son Thomas at her death (NL Deed 2 July 1695).

viii. MEHITABLE, born Providence, RI circa 1670; died New London, CT before 1680 (CT State Archives, Private Controversies 1:254-281).

Ensign GEORGE[2] WAY (George[1]), born Providence, RI circa 1655; died West Farms, Lyme, CT 23 February 1716/7, during the "Great Snow" his remains being kept for 11 or 12 days and finally interred 7 March, being brought into town by men on snow shoes (Hempstead Diary, p.65); married first circa 1687 SARAH[2] NEAST, died Lyme, CT circa 1708, daughter of JOSEPH[1] and SARAH (BODINGTON) NEAST; married second circa 1711 SUSANNA (TALLMAN) BECKWITH, widow of Joseph[2] Beckwith, who survived him (NL Probate #5577), daughter of PETER[1] TALLMAN (see Beckwith Chapter).

"George Way was baptized himself, and admitted to ye Lord's Table, and also had his children baptized" (NLCh 1:8,110, dated 22 June 1701). Four unnamed children were baptized at this time, although the couple had five living.

George Way inherited a portion of his grandmother Joanna Smith's lands in 1687 and on 16 March 1692 George Way of New London sold a three acre parcell called Little Owle Meadow to Clement Minor Jr. and Nathaniel Chappell. This inheritance came to him in his early thirties and allowed him to marry comfortably and raise his eight children in good circumstances.

A modest amount came to him when, at the death of his first wife's father, George Way petitioned for power to sell the house and land of Joseph Neast, deceased, of New London, he having married Joseph's daughter and only child (Ct Col. Rec, IV:265 dated 8 May 1713). "mr Neast Died yesterd. was buried today" (9 [?] 1711, Hempstead Diary, p.5). Way presented the inventory 8 April 1712, totalling £47 (NL Probate A:604).

By 1695 he was of Lyme, having sold the land in New London called the Hopyard and land on the west side of New Street between the land of his brother, Thomas Way, and Thomas Crocker. He was accepted as an inhabitant in Lyme and with Mathew Beckwith Jr. was given a piece of common land lying between their two lands, they to maintain a sufficient horse bridge and causeway over the brook (LTR, p.83).

George Way served the town of Lyme, CT in a number of minor capacities from 1698 through 1713. On 18 December 1699 he was chosen a collector of the Minister's rate, as well as fence viewer at Nehantick (LTR, p.88). He repeated the latter office in 1703 (LTR, p.108). On 26 December 1700 he was chosen a surveyor of highways at Nehantick (LTR, p.89). Five years later, George was again selected surveyor of highways and also chosen brander for Nehantick (LTR, pp.111-2). He was a lister in 1698 and 1702 (LTR, pp.75, 104), and was chosen again in 1708, but not sworn (LTR, p.118). He was a lister one last time in 1712 (LTR, p.129).

An inventory taken of George Way's property after his death showed him to be a successful husbandman, with a sizable herd of sheep, as well as cattle, swine, horses and oxen. His ear mark "for all sorts of creatures" was a hole in the near ear and a half penny one through the upper side of the same ear (Lyme Ear Marks book, 7 May 1700, p.7). It is possible that not many of "his" beasts bore this mark, however, since many of the cattle had come to him with his second wife's property. The animals reverted back to her at his death (see his will, below).

George Way was voted onto a committee for ordering the Town School 27 July 1702 (LTR, p.102-3). Two years later, George Way and Joseph Beckwith Sr. were chosen to provide a school Dame "to make good what is wanting for last year" (LTR, p.110). Evidently, the town school issue had not yet been settled by 1708, for on 24 December of that year, George Way was one of five men selected to settle it (LTR, p.119). On 31 January 1714/5 his last public act was to sit again on a committee to settle a school (LTR, p.137). In his inventory, George Way was seen to have owned several books, including a law book (see below).

He was one of three men ordered to show an account of the arrears for Mr. Noyes if not presented properly by the collector 25 December 1706 (LTR, p.113). In 1713 he was a grand juryman (LTR, p.131).

His will was written at the beginning of the long winter, some two months before men on snowshoes took his body to its final resting place. The will was proved 8 April 1717.

THOMAS[3] WAY (George[2,1]), born Lyme, CT 18 March 1700[/1]; from deeds appears to have died between 10 April 1778 and 16 May 1782 when his son Daniel refers to land left him by his honored father in his last will and testament (Lyme Deed 15:424); married circa 1722 JANE[4] LEE, born Lyme 20 May 1701, died Lyme 16 March 1738/9 (LVR, p.270), daughter of JOHN[3] and ELIZABETH (SMITH) LEE (see Lee Chapter); married second Colchester, CT 29 November 1739 (First Church Society, Colchester records) SARAH WELLS, born New London 18 April 1704, daughter of EPHRAIM and ABIGAIL (ALLIS) WELLS.

Thomas received a modest bequest of land from his father in 1717 and when young Jane Lee came of age, he was able to woo her successfully. Jane's own father had died some years earlier, leaving her a significant quantity of land. It was the quitclaiming of rights to this land which accounted for most of the couple's deeds.

Thomas and Jane Way sold four-fifths of their interest in the real estate that Jane had inherited from her father to her brother, Joseph Lee, 8 July 1727 (Lyme Deed 4:284). They sold one half of the third part of the Fourth Division and six pence right in the third quarter of the third of the Fourth Division, which Jane had inherited from her father, to this same brother on 31 January 1736/7 (Lyme Deed 6:106). They both signed their names to the latter deed. Together they also quitclaimed their rights to her father's right in the third quarter of the third part of the 4th Division in Lyme (Lyme Deed 6:212).

Thomas was also remembered in the will of his elder brother, Captain Joseph Way, who died unmarried in 1726. Joseph had received more than his brothers in the will of their father, but his lands were bordered on the north by lands of Thomas Way. On 24 January 1728/9, Thomas Way sold his right in land of his brother, Joseph Way, deceased, to Mary Dart, widow of Ebenezer Dart of New London (Lyme Deed 5:42).

Thanks to these comfortable circumstances, Thomas and Jane Way were able to add other lands to their holdings. Thomas Way bought land in Lyme from Thomas and James Smith 3 March 1724/5 (Lyme Deed 4:206). Thomas bought 7½ acres in Lyme from the town and it was laid out 4 January 1733/4 (Lyme Deed 5:100). The town also laid out land originally in the right of Elizabeth Ely to Thomas Way (Lyme Deed 6:280).

In the now sizable town of Lyme, Thomas Way's public service was modest, including being selected a grand juryman in 1734 and also in 1738. He was a surveyor of highways in 1735 and in 1746.

The ear mark of Thomas Way was a hole in the near ear and a half penny on the fore side of the same ear and a halfpenny on the fore side of the off ear, a variation of his father's mark (22 May 1722, Lyme Ear Mark book). Unfortunately, no inventory of his estate has been found and it is not known whether he was able to carry on his father's good husbandry.

Thomas gave his son Thomas a deed to four acres in Lyme 19 February 1762 (Lyme Deed 13:284) and gave another four acres to son Daniel 23 April 1772 (Lyme Deed 13:434). Second wife Sarah did not release her dower on either of these deeds. Although no recorded will has been found for Thomas Way, his son, Daniel, mentions it in a deed in 1782 (Lyme Deed 15:424).

Lieut. JOSEPH[4] WAY (Thomas[3], George[2,1]), born Lyme, CT 21 October 1724 (LVR, p.215); died Montville, CT 22 February 1802 age 78 years (gravestone, Chesterfield Cemetery, Montville, CT); married circa 1753 MARY[5] SMITH, born circa 1730s, died after 8 March 1800 (husband's will), daughter of SAMUEL[4] and MARY (MARVIN) SMITH (see John Smith Chapter).

It would appear that this is the Joseph Way who served in Elihue Chauncey's First Company, 4th Regiment, in the French and Indian War's Campaign of 1755, who enlisted 12 September of that year and was discharged 8 December (CT Historical Society Collections, 9:49).

Gravestone of Joseph Way

Joseph Way was elected Lieutenant in the new company of the 3rd Regiment in Lyme in 1765 (The Connecticut Way Family, p.19). As the Revolution approached, his patriotic tendencies were seen at a town meeting of 13 September 1774, when Joseph Way and seven others were selected as a committee to take up a collection for the relief of the poor in Boston, who were struggling in the aftermath of the siege (Lyme Miscellany, p.240). Although Joseph Way did not take up arms in this conflict, his sons Reynold and Durien enlisted for several terms of service.

Perhaps as a result of the influence of his new wife, Joseph Way became a member of the East Lyme First Baptist Church shortly before 1753 (East Lyme First Baptist Church record book, Connecticut State Library, 974.62 Ea77lb r). Almost all the children of Samuel and Mary (Marvin) Smith were members of this church. Joseph Way was quite strong-minded, however, as can be seen in the following excerpt:

> feb 16 1771 at a Church meeting held at Brother David Packs house after prayer to God the Church began to Labour with Brother Joseph Way sd Way offered to Travel with the Church and the Church had Nothing Against his morals: But thought that he did not stand in the Cause of God and had bin two much building up aNother Constitution and there by made him self a Transgresser and declared that they Could not Travel with him (ibid.).

Shortly after his marriage, Joseph Way began purchasing land. In a complicated series of deeds dated between 7 February 1754/5 and 15 January 1761, Joseph Way bought land on Pygan's Hill from the heirs of Robert and Content Chapman (Stephen, Ebenezer, Robert, Samuel, and Edward Chapman [Lyme Deeds 9:328, 10:82,84, 12:81, 14:515,516, 15:194]). Henry Roland deeded him land on 19 May 1770 (ibid., 16:229).

When Mary's mother, Mary (Marvin) Smith, died in 1777, the Way's received an equal share with the other Smith siblings. Joseph and Mary Way soon deeded their share of the real estate of her mother to her brother, Samuel Smith (Lyme Deed 14:474, dated 10 April 1778).

Joseph Way sold land to the Town of New London 1 May 1770 (Lyme Deed 13:321), to Lawrence Johnson 3 May 1779 (ibid., 14:505), to Samuel Beckwith 17 February 1785 (ibid., 17:43), and to William Tinker 5 September 1788 (ibid., 18:353).

As a result of his considerable land transactions, Joseph Way had a substantial estate to divide amongst his children. He deeded land to his son Durien Way on 27 November 1789 (ibid., 18:427), but provided for his other children, particularly his incapable son, Elihu, in a will written several years before his death. The will was proved 12 April 1802 (NL Probate #5581).

From the CG Way ms, we see,

"Durien Way removed to Ohio, in 1818, and the following account sent me by his Grandson is of interest.

> Grandfather first visited Ohio in the summer of 1810, in company with Samuel S. Peck, to view the country. They returned with a good report. They travelled horseback. My father in February, 1811 (then in his 21st year), in company with three other gangmen, started for Ohio on foot. They arrived here in March. He, with his comrades, cleared a patch of land without any team, and planted it with corn and potatoes. He selected his land, and returned to Connecticut on foot. He was married the last of August, and then in company with ten other families, started again for Ohio, with teams of oxen and horses. They arrived here in October He then built a log-cabin, and in one year from that time, father and mother being absent, the cabin was burned, with all they had, did not save even their clothes, except those they had on. My father again started for Connecticut on foot, to see his father. Receiving a small sum, he immediately returned to his family, where he lived to see the giant forest give way before the woodman's axe, and in its place, splendid fields of waving grain and grass, and the country interlaced with good roads, and dotted with fine buildings. My Grandfather came to Ohio with his family, in the year 1814, and settled in the town of Rome, adjoining."

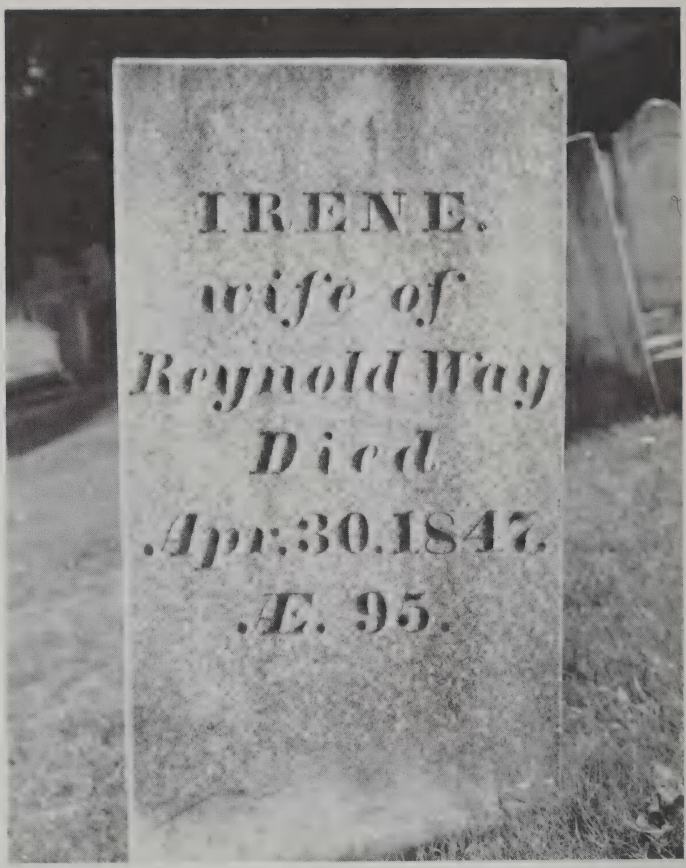
Gravestone of Reynold Way



Gravestone of Irene (Beckwith) Way

Thanks to the detailed recollections preserved in Irene (Beckwith) Way's Revolutionary pension application, a vivid picture of this couple's courtship and subsequent travels can be accurately described.

Revolutionary War Pension Application
Reynold Way, widow Irene

On the twenty sixth day of January A.D. 1837 personally appeared before the County Probate holden at Newport in sd County by adjournment Widow Irene Way a resident of Newport in the County of Sullivan and State of New Hampshire aged 84 years, who being first duly sworn according to Law doth on her oath make the following declaration in order to obtain the benefit of the provision --- by the act of Congress passed July 4th 1836

That she is the widow of Reynold Way late of Newport in said County deceased, who was a private in the Army of the Revolution and the services which he performed in the Army as near as she can recollect are as follows -

In the year 1776 in the month of May Reynold Way then a resident of Lyme in the State of Connecticut was drafted into the service of the United States, and marched to Newlondon in said State; where he remained in the army as near as she can recollect till the last of November next following - when he returned home, making a term of service of more than six months. The names of the Officers under whom he served, she does not now recollect, but she well remembers that he performed this term of service from the following facts. That they had mutually pledged themselves to each other in marriage contract and that should he live to return it was to be publickly and legally solemnised and just before he Joined the Army he willed to her the most of his personal property, among which was a certain Cow - with peculiar marks as to color, and that in about two & half months after his return they were married -

She further declares that on the first of March 1777 after they were married, her husband, the above named Reynold Way, entered the Service as an Orderly Sarjent by draft and Joined the Company Commanded by Capt. Matthais Palmer of said town of Lyme, where the applicant and her husband, the said Way then resided. She well remembers that Sylvanus Avery, and Nathan Tinker both of the same town Joined the same company, when they marched to Newlondon where they were under the Command of Capt. Nathan Palmer she says her husband returned home on the first of June 1778 after an absence of 14 months in the Army.

She further declares that in the same month June 1778 her husband the before named Reynold Way after having been at home only about one week, was again drafted into the service for six months, which time he served, when he returned home about the 15th Decr 1778 She does not distinctly recollect whether he served under the same Officers he did the preceding term or not.

She further declares that in June 1779 as near as she can recollect her husband the said Way was for the fourth time drafted to serve in the Army for a term of 9 months, during which time he was at New London, Groton, and New York, how long at each place she cannot tell. She believes that the three last terms of service her husband performed he discharged the duties of an Orderly Sarjent - after his last term of duty expired being 9 months, he returned home and when he entered the house he threw his Sarjents warrant into her lap, saying here is my Warrant, and my discharge from the war - She further declares that on the last Wednesday of August in the year 1834 her dwelling House with almost all the contents was consumed by fire - and she sincerely believes that the said Warrant and discharge were consumed, as all her ---- writings and paper Books &c together with the family record were burned she has no doubt but that the said Warrant shared the same fate, for she has not seen it since that time,

She further says that she has no documentary evidence to support her claim - She further declares that she was married to him the said Reynold Way on the 20th day of February A.D. 1777 in the town of Lyme in the State of Connecticut where she then lived, and that the marriage was solemnised by Doctor Eleser Mather of that place, who was a Justice of the Peace for the County of Newlondon and duly authorised to join in marriage

She further declares that her husband the said Reynold Way died at Newport in the said County of Sullivan State of New Hampshire on the 6th day of April A.D. 1831 and that she has remained a Widow ever since that period - as will more fully appear by reference to the proof hereto annexed Irene Way

I Jesse Beckwith of Lyme of Lawful age Depos & say that in the year 1777 on the 20 day of February I called in Eleaser Mather Esq of Lyme by request who Lawfully joined in marreage Reynold Way and Irene Beckwith both of Lyme in New London County & State of Connecticut I further depose & say that I stood by the side of the said Reynold Way while he the said Way and Irene Beckwith was Lawfully pronounced man & Wife by Dr. Eleaser Mather who was a justice of the Peace at that time and further the deponant saith not Jesse Beckwith sworn 13 July 1837

I Elisabeth Davis of Norwich aged 76 years after being duly cautioned to speak the whole truth ---------the early part of the Revolutionary War Raynold Way & Irene Beckwith both of Lyme were married together by Eleazer Mather Esqr. that Jesse Beckwith of Lyme was present and many more but I suppose that they are all dead but Mr. Jesse Beckwith. I cannot recollect the precise year but suppose it to have been a year or two after the war commenced I was present at the wedding & saw them married and further the deponent saith not Elizabeth X Davis
sworn 17 July 1837

Lempster 16tth Janry 1837
I Ezra Miner of Lempster County of Sullivan and State of New Hampshire of lawful age depose and say That Mr Reynold Way late of Newport State & County aforesaid deceased and Irene Way wife of the said Reynold Way were persons with whom I have been intimately acquainted for nearly forty years I have some acquaintance with them previous to their marriage at the time they resided in Lyme in the State of Connecticut, I was not present when they were married yet I never entertained the least doubt but that they were legally and lawfully married and I as firmly and sincerely believe it as I do any event whatever and I further say that I never heard the fact doubted by any one, I resided in Lyme in the State of Connecticut at the time of their marriage, and it was understood by all in that place and doubted by none, that they were married and as near as I can recollect the marriage was solemnised in the month of Febry 1777 Although I was then but eleven years old still I well recollect the event The above named Reynold Way and Irene his Wife Since they moved into the State of New Hampshire they united with the Baptist Church in the town of Unity in said State of New Hampshire, And their reputation for truth and veracity has never been doubted

I further say that in the month of April 1831 the above named Reynold Way died of a Billeous Complaint, and his Widow the above named Irene Way has not again been married. Ezra Miner Eld[er] of the Baptist Chh in Lempster

A pension of $93.33 per year was granted 29 August 1837, with retroactive payments from the date Reynold Way died.

Earlier accounts of the Way family assign Irene Beckwith to the family of Jesse Beckwith Sr. of Lyme, most probably based on the statement above that Jesse Jr. stood beside Reynold Way during the marriage ceremony and even called in the Justice of the Peace who performed the ceremony. The will of Jesse Beckwith Sr., however makes it clear that Irene was not his child (for further discussion, see Beckwith Chapter).

From the above depositions, we learn that Irene and Reynold pledged themselves to marry in about 1776 and Reynold made out a will giving Irene property, including a cow. Following his first service, they were married, but he was repeatedly called back to duty. Finally, he returned to their home in Lyme "and when he entered the house he threw his Sarjents warrant into her lap, saying here is my Warrant, and my discharge from the war."

Following the war, Reynold Way of Lyme bought an sold land with his wife's relatives. He purchased 100 acres from Samuel Beckwith of Montville 2 September 1788 (Lyme Deed 18:334) and paid £18 to Stephen Beckwith of Springfield, Luzerne Co., PA for 15 acres in Lyme 5 May 1793 (Lyme Deed 19:552). Later that month, Reynold Way of Lyme sold Stephen Beckwith's 15 acres to Samuel Beckwith (Lyme Deed 20:417).

In his final appearance in Lyme, Reynold sold 100 acres in Lyme that he had bought of Samuel Beckwith back to Samuel Beckwith of Montville for £225 on 7 March 1797 (Lyme Deed 20:498).

The Ways followed the massive migration up the Connecticut River valley and by 1798, Reynold Way was paying tax in Marlow, NH, for one poll, one horse, 2 oxen, 3 cows, but no land or buildings (Marlow town records 2:129, 130).

By the next year, Reynold Way was in Unity, NH town tax records (Unity town records) and on 8 July 1799 they made their next move, when Reynold Way of Unity, NH purchased 80 acres in Newport, NH from Jesse Bailey of Newport (Cheshire Deed 39:300).

By 1824, Reynold Way was paying taxes in nearby Wendell, NH (Sunapee town records 2:447,456,464). He made a deed for his land to his son, Reynold Way, Jr. 11 January 1830 (Sullivan Deed 7:88) and Reynold Jr. promptly mortgaged the land to his father, giving Reynold Sr. and his wife Irene, meals and clothing during their lifetimes (Sullivan Deed 3:442). Reynold Sr. survived this agreement barely a year.

On 20 November 1844, Reynold Way Jr. of Unity, NH petitioned the court that his mother, Irene Way, who had now reached an advanced age, was insane. She was given an opportunity to object, but did not come into court, and, with the selectmen of Unity agreeing that she could not handle her own affairs, a guardian, Horace Huntoon of Unity, was appointed. After service of only a month, Huntoon petitioned to be discharged (Sullivan Probate 7:85).

Like her parents, Irene lived well into her ninties. Many of her descendants also enjoyed long lives, some even passing the age of 100 years.

JOHN[B] WOLTERTON, born say 1520s; died Welbourne, co. YOUNG

It is well established from Revolutionary Pension application records and Cheshire County, New Hampshire deeds, that the six Young brothers and one sister of Wendell, NH were from Smithfield, Rhode Island. However, nothing in New Hampshire, aside from the frequency of given names, points to the identity of the parents of this sizeable family.

The scarcity of records on the Youngs in Rhode Island forces us to draw many conclusions from the few that do exist and to fashion a preponderance of the evidence case from little solid fact. To outline a family for the seven Youngs who settled in Wendell, NH after the Revolutionary War we have extrapolated from these fragments and created a very plausible picture, as seen below.

The following analysis is based on a statewide survey of all Youngs found in Rhode Island in the 17th and 18th centuries. An alphabetical summary of this survey appears in the Appendix.

The Young surname is reasonably rare in 17th-century Rhode Island. Only Nicholas, son of Thomas and Mary Young of North Kingston, shows a birth record in this time period and his family is uncertain. A number of Youngs, born before 1700 but not necessarily in Rhode Island, include James Young of Providence and Scituate, Alexander Young of New Shoreham, John Young of Newport, John Rowland Young of Providence, and Robert Young of Providence. Of these, only James Young of Providence and John Rowland Young of Providence have well defined families. Of the remaining early Youngs, we are most interested in Robert Young of Providence.

Providence is a natural place to search for the antecedents of the Wendell Youngs, since their native town of Smithfield was set off from Providence in 1731. The only undefined Young family in Providence was that of Robert Young who died in 1727. He is demonstrably not part of the John Rowland Young family, although they were contemporaries in Providence. Neither is Robert related to the prominent Archibald Young, a native of Hull, England, who had considerable interests in Providence, where he twice married and ultimately died.

The Youngs of Wendell ranged in age from the eldest, Sarah, perhaps named for her grandmother, born circa 1747 to James, born 1768, called youngest by his brother, Esek, who said, "there being seven of us..." (Revolutionary Pension application S22614). It is clear from the depositions in these records that all the Youngs were born in Smithfield, and that their father was still living there in 1783 when Esek returned home from war (ibid.).

From this we know that the Young's parents must have lived in Smithfield in the period 1747-1783 and that the mother of this family had to be young enough to have a child as late as 1768. There is no evidence that any of the Youngs were half-siblings.

There are only five Young men who leave records in Smithfield in the period who were of an age to father the Youngs of Wendell: Andrew, David, James, John and Robert. Several of these can be rapidly eliminated from consideration.

Andrew's children are known from an 1803 Smithfield deed (see below).

David Young appears in only two Smithfield records, that of his marriage to Jemima Blackmar in 1743 and in the taking as a servant of his wife's illegitimate niece, Susannah Smith (Smithfield Town Book 1:200). In the latter, David is called, "of Scituate," and he doubtless came to Smithfield for his marriage because it was the home of his bride. Thus, David was not of Smithfield and could not be the father of the Young's of Wendell.

A family can also be built for James Young. His career is somewhat vague, but he can be eliminated from our consideration by his marriage to widow Lydia (Angell) Hawkins in 1755, a woman far too old to have been the mother of the Wendell Youngs.

Robert is seen in North Providence rather than Smithfield, and his eldest and perhaps only, son, Ezekiel, eliminates this family, as well.

Although he does not appear in the records of Smithfield, there is one other Young who evidently had a presence in the town, at least in the period just before the Revolutionary War. In his fascinating literary diary, Rev. Ezra Stiles records the following memories of Elder Nathan Young under date of 3 May 1770:

> Mr. Bellomy Bosworth tells me he lived a month this last Winter as Schoolmaster in the House of Elder Young, a Baptist minister in Smithfield aet 48 circa: that he appears to be a solid substantial Man, yet don't believe that Christians are obliged to Family Worship; & seldom practises it; & that only on Lordsday morning, & this not every Ldsday; never pforms it on Sabbath Evening, nor any other day of the Week; that he has seen Elder Young administer the Lds. Supper in a private house to a Branch of his Chh. in Scituate. He says in Scituate they have 3 or 4 baptist Meet^{g}houses which they preach in, in Circulation in Summer, but leave in Winter & hold Ldsday Meet^{gs} in private houses in different vicinities, so as to come to the same place once a month - that this is the common practice thro' the Counties of Provid. & Kent or the back Towns. The largest Meeting he saw did not more than fill 3 Rooms of house. Elder Young is Illiterate - don't like the College - says when the old > Ministers die off he foresees a new Succession of Scholar Ministers: - that it has got so far already as scarcely to do for a common Illiterate Minister to preach in the baptist meet[g] at providence.

Nathan was a son of James and Jemima (Blackmar) Young of Scituate, and this is the only reference to Nathan having a house in Smithfield, in the winter or otherwise. Nathan's family is well known, appears in the appendix following this chapter, and does not include the Youngs of Wendell.

Only John Young and wife, Elizabeth Briant, fit all the required parameters to be parents to the Youngs of Wendell. The names of the Wendell Youngs also support this choice. Their son Cornelius carries the unusual name of Elizabeth's likely father, Cornelius Briant. The grandchildren boast six Johns and Elizabeths.

It is highly likely that James, Robert, Andrew and John Young were closely related. While there is no conflicting evidence to deny this, the supporting evidence amounts to little more than chronology, proximity and naming patterns. That Robert had a sister, Sarah, who married Jonathan Pike, is strongly indicated in deeds. That these two were children of Robert and Sarah (_____) Young of Providence is very likely. As for the others, the proof is less compelling.

A possible reconstruction of the family follows.

ROBERT[1] YOUNG, born say before 1690; died Providence, RI 2 June 1727 (Arnold 2:278); married before 1710 SARAH _____, who survived him.

In 1718, Peleg Williams of Providence, yeoman, for "Love and Good will" sold to Robert[2] Young, "now resident of Providence," husbandman, and for, "other mature Considerations," six acres not yet laid out, on the west side of the Seven Mile Line in Providence, originally owned by Edward Hunt, deceased (Glocester Deed 3:305). Immediately following this deed, Robert Young of Smithfield quitclaims his right in these six acres to Andrew Brown of Glocester on 27 August 1753 (ibid.). Robert[2] made his mark, and was witnessed by in-law Ebenezer Jencks and Richard Waterman.

On 22 June 1723, Tristram Darby of Providence, deeded for "love & good will" to Robert Young of Providence, husbandman, and for "other mature Considerations me moveing thereunto," two acres of land which, "is not yet Laid out," on the west side of the Seven Mile Line in Providence, originally owned by George Way, deceased, part of the Hundred Acre Division (Glocester Deed 3:305). The sole witness was Richard Brown. Again, immediately following this deed is a deed of Robert Young of Smithfield, labourer, who quit-claimed to Andrew Brown of Glocester, yeoman, his right in the two acres cited above the same day with the same witnesses as in his deed for six acres (ibid.). These two deeds seem to establish Robert Young of Smithfield (later of North Providence) as a descendant, and likely a son, of the first Robert.

While there are no other similar records of other Young men quitclaiming rights in this land, there was a court case in Providence County Court between several of the wealthy merchant Brown family and John Young, Thomas Woodward, John Woodward, Robert Woodward, Nathaniel Woodward and Jeremiah Robinson over land in Smithfield, which the plantiffs and defendants held together in common, of which the Browns wished to divide out their fifteen and three-quarters acres, but the defendants refused to make the partition. After several years, the case was sent to a referee for final partition. Unfortunately, the original file papers in this case are lost and we may never be able to reach a sure decision on the relationship, if any, this might have to the missing land of Robert[1] Young (Providence Co. Court, 5:488)

Most of the information about Robert[1] Young's life comes from his few probate documents. These call him husbandman and give an unremarkable inventory including 18 acres of land, presumably in Providence. We can account for only eight of these acres

The widow, Sarah, was appointed administratrix of the estate of her husband and charged to, "discharge his debts and for the support and nurture of his family and paying of legacyes..." (Providence Probate 1:80). This is a strong indication, although not a direct one, that Robert left children.

The administratrix' bond in this probate is an interesting document. Sureties for Sarah were James Angell and John Hawkins, both yeomen of Providence. The witnesses to this document were Thomas Woodward (who signs twice) and Jabez Bowen. These individuals are interesting in that they have later connections to the Youngs of Smithfield, RI.

Probable children, surname YOUNG:

i. ROBERT[2], died Providence 2 January 1723 (Arnold 2:278)

ii. ANNE, born say 1709; died after 1762 (Smithfield Deed); married Providence 18 October 1727 (Arnold 2:204) THOMAS WOODWARD (Arnold says Samuel, which is certainly incorrect), born say 1702; died after 1770s.
Children, speculatively reconstructed from Smithfield records, surname Woodward:
1) Robert, born circa 1728
2) Nathaniel, born circa 1731
3) Stephen
4) Zephaniah
5) Mary
6) Elijah
7) Micah
8) Zilpha

iii. JAMES, born say 1710s; living 30 March 1791 (Providence Deed 22:322); may have married first _____ _____; married perhaps second Smithfield 19 November 1755 (SVR 1:115) LYDIA[4] (ANGELL) HAWKINS, born Providence 8 May 1715 (ERP V:204), died 1802 (ibid.) (see Angell Chapter).
According to the Angell genealogy, James was known as a poet, and an innkeeper.

> [James Young] was a gay young man, fond of lively company and pretty free with his money. Besides, he was a natural poet, and so ready to make up a verse or a number of verses to suit any occasion, that he was considered the most noted man of the time, in that vicinity. From his inclination to spend money and to enjoy lively company, Oliver and Elisha, older brothers to Lydia, objected to his marrying their sister. On his hearing of this, he wrote them a letter beginning thus:
> And Oliver,
> Why are you thus offended?
> If I have done you any harm,
> 'Tis more than I intended.
> (Angell genealogy, p.19)

His wife, Lydia, was probably a second wife, as she was 37 and a widow with at least two children at the time of their marriage.

James Young was apparently incapable in 1788 (Smithfield Deed, 11:45).

Lydia had married first Providence 8 October 1741 (PVR 1:92) Stephen Hawkins and had at least two children with him (see Angell Chapter).

Children, compiled from Smithfield records, with postulated first wife, surname Young:

1) Esther, born circa 1740

Children named in Arnold 2:238, surname Pike:

4) Phebe, born Providence 20 November 1748
5) Hannah, born Providence 19 June 1751
6) Peter, born Providence 27 December 1755

v. ANDREW, born say 1720s; died before 1803 (Smithfield Deed 8:223); married _____ _____, died before 1803. Andrew's children are known from Smithfield Town Records, 10:223 in which Nathan Young, cordwainer of Smithfield, buys four undivided fifth parts of the land and real estate of Andrew Young, late of Smithfield, father of Othaniel Young of Uxbridge, MA; Rhoda (Young) Kinyon of Glocester, RI; and Eunice (Young) Clark of Smithfield.

Children, surname Young:

1) Othaniel, born 29 January 1758 (Rev. Pension Application)
2) Nathan
3) Rhoda
4) Eunice

\+ vi. JOHN, born say 1722.

vii. ROBERT, born say 1726; died after 27 June 1777 (North Providence Deed 2:28); married MARY _____

Child, surname Young:

1) Ezekiel, born circa 1746

JOHN[2] YOUNG, perhaps of Providence, RI, periodically seen in Smithfield, RI; born say 1722; died after 1783 (Revolutionary Pension application of his son, S22614); married Smithfield, RI 16 February 1745/6 (Arnold 3:20) ELIZABETH[2] BRIANT, born circa 1720s, perhaps daughter of CORNELIUS[1] BRIANT of Smithfield (see Briant Chapter).

Elizabeth (Briant) Young is probably the sister of the Israel Bryant of Wendell, NH, who on 8 May 1818 deposed, age 69 years, that he enlisted in November 1775 in Smithfield under Capt. John Spurr and was discharged at English Neighborhood in New Jersey in March 1777. His deposition was supported by Nehemiah Woodward of Bridgewater, VT, age 68 and Abiathar Young of Wendell, NH age 67, who both testified that they had been acquainted with Bryant from "boyhood" (Revolutionary Pension application S45525). Elizabeth and John used the unusual name, 'Cornelius,' for their fifth son.

In the 1748 districting of Smithfield, John appears in District 10, James in District 11, a Robert in District 7 and Andrew in District 4. The only Smithfield deed in which John figured was dated 27 December 1768, when Thomas Woodward of Smithfield, yeoman, deeded to John Young of Smithfield, yeoman, one and a half acres in Smithfield adjoining Arthur Fenner (Smithfield Deed 6:211). This land may have been more trouble than it was worth. John is seen only once in the courts, but it seems to revolve around this small piece of land. Moses Brown of Providence, merchant, sued Thomas, John, Robert, Nathaniel Woodward, Jeremiah Robinson and John Young all of Smithfield, yeomen, in an action of partition of land in Smithfield containing 130 acres more or less, which the plaintiff and defendants held together in common and undivided as tenants in common in fee simple, of which the plaintiff had right to hold in severalty fifteen acres and three quarters of an acre, which partition the defendants refuse to make. The case commenced June term 1765, was heard June 1767, and the partition report was ordered due 1 October 1767; and finally, a report made 26 May 1768. Despite a lengthy search, no further information has been found regarding the specifics of this case.

A John Young of Scituate, son of James Young, has often been confused with John Young of Smithfield. In 1747, John of Scituate had a wife, Mary (Scituate Deed 3:356), just over a year after John of Smithfield had married an Elizabeth. While it is possible that Elizabeth died and John married second, Mary, within the eighteen months between these two records, subsequent records make this appear extremely unlikely, and favor an interpretation of two separate John Youngs, one a regular resident of Scituate, and the other an occasional resident of Smithfield. John Young of Scituate is last seen when he deeds his farm to his son Joseph Young on 4 September 1775 (Scituate Deed 6:756).

In the 1774 Smithfield census, John appears with 6 males above age 16, 3 males below age 16, and one female above age 16. They do not appear in the 1778 Smithfield tax list. In the 1777 Military census of Rhode Island, there are three Johns, one of Providence, one of West Greenwich and one of Scituate. The first two are between 16 and 50, and the John of Scituate is over 60. There are obviously more Johns in Rhode Island at this time than seen here since a John Young, age 35 or so from Newport deserted from the sloop Fly in 1776.

It seems likely that John lived in Smithfield, raised his children and died after 1783. In 1832, Esek Young of Wendell, NH testified that James Young was his youngest brother "there being seven of us..." (Revolutionary Pension Application S22614).

Onomastically, the family shows a strong pattern. The only daughter, Sarah, may have been named for her paternal grandmother. Among the grandchildren, the first granddaughter was named Elizabeth and the first two grandsons were named John. The first daughters of three of the sons were named Elizabeth. Three known grandsons bore the name John.

SELECTED YOUNG FAMILIES OF COLONIAL RHODE ISLAND

While attempting to construct a lineage for the Youngs of Wendell, NH, considerable research was done in Rhode Island among all early Young families. Synopses of the records seen are presented here in alphabetical order, and where the evidence supports such a construction, two or three generations are combined. This is not intended as an exhaustive treatment of any of the families, but merely reflects records used. In most cases, as soon as chronology could eliminate a family as parent to the Wendell Youngs, further work was discontinued on that family. Consequently, Smithfield area families received more attention than any others.

Records were taken from Arnold's vital records series, Beaman's abstracts in the Rhode Island Register, the docket books of various Rhode Island county courts, deeds for towns in Providence County, censuses, military lists and a few Revolutionary War pension applications.

One large Young family only briefly represented here is that of Gideon Young of Providence. These Youngs were well treated in the September 1988 issue of Rhode Island Roots, and are not repeated in any detail here, 6 December 1741 to daughter Mary Dolloff and her husband Jonathan Dolloff (Scituate Deed 3:35). For years this deed was read as written, Mary "Doles," but further research showed that the land was sold via a power of attorney from Samuel and Mary Thurston of New Hampshire held by David "Dolloff" of Exeter, NH. A marriage in Exeter 17 November 1737 between Jonathan Dolloff and Mary Young is unquestionably that of James Young's daughter. The location of the marriage and Mary (Young) (Dolloff) Thurston's later career in New Hampshire is solid support for the long-held theory that James Young of Providence and Scituate, RI came from the New Hampshire Youngs (see The New Hampshire Genealogical Record 8:31).
